Official Word On Hall Delay

By DAVID DIETZ

Marin County officially acknowledged yesterday that the new Hall of Justice at the Civic Center will not open next month.

Although another delay in completion of the $11.7 million building had long been rumored, county officials had not previously confirmed it, officially holding to the announcement in April that the building would be ready next month.

Yesterday, however, Asst. County Administrator John F. Barrows wrote the board of supervisors that the opening is now "generally scheduled" for October — one month short of being a year late.

Reports persisted, meanwhile, that even the October timetable was unrealistic because of the slow pace of the work.

In his letter to the board, Barrows quotes project architect Aaron Green as expressing doubt that the building will be finished in six weeks, or by Oct. 1.

"This doubt is based upon the frustrating experience of the past months during which very little progress has been made relative to the overall magnitude of work necessary to complete," Barrows quoted Green as saying.

Green told the Independent-Journal recently that housecleaning chores remained.

Barrows' letter went on, "The judiciary, the sheriff and other affected department heads are becoming increasingly frustrated in their efforts to plan properly the operations of their departments (now located in the courthouse in San Rafael) through the continuing delays in occupancy of the Hall of Justice."

He recommended that the county "demand of the contractor (Robert E. McKee of Dallas, Tex.) an early and substantial increase in the current pace of efforts with specific and satisfactory action toward completing or correcting all work items as required by the architect."

Barrows said that the contractor has complained that Green is interpreting too strictly some provisions of the contract and this puts an "excessive and . . . undue burden" on the contractor.

"In the opinion of the county counsel, the public works director and the county administrator, these contentions provide absolutely no justification for delays in the project," Barrows wrote.

He said if the contractor wishes to raise these issues, he should do it by completing the building under protest. "The protest can then be resolved after completion of the job."

Barrows recommended that McKee be given until Aug. 27 — at which time a meeting is scheduled with McKee's repre-

B52 Raids Try To Abort New Red Offensive

SAIGON (AP)—Despite a heavy mauling, about 5,000 enemy troops in the jungles near the Cambodian border north of Saigon are believed preparing for new attacks, U.S. officers said today.

To try to keep the enemy off balance, 10 missions totaling up to 50 U.S. B52 Stratofortresses dropped 750 tons of bombs on suspected enemy positions in that region in the past 24 hours, the U.S. Command reported.

It brought to 45 the number of B52 missions in the border area since the enemy opened a fall campaign early Tuesday with a score of ground assaults and the shelling of 150 allied bases and towns across South Vietnam.

"We expect another strike any time in the near future," said a U.S. officer, "more action of a rather heavy nature. They made a heavy strike Tuesday and followed it up with nothing really significant."

The heaviest fighting has been in the border provinces forming an arc ranging from 55 miles northwest to 80 miles northeast of Saigon.

Fifty-eight more enemy soldiers were reported killed along the border today, bringing to more than 1,100 the number killed in the region by allied in-

More Blood Spills In Belfast As Religious Rioting Goes Unabated

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Hit-and-run snipers, machinegunners and firebombers spread more bloodshed through Belfast's flaming streets today in new fighting between Catholics and Protestants outsidt barbed wire zones manned by 400 British troops.

Military sources said up to 600 more soldiers might be moved into Belfast by sundown to reinforce the peacekeeping troops.

At least eight persons have been shot to death since the religious rioting erupted in this capital city of Northern Ireland Thursday night. Two died early today. Another 336 persons have been injured, including 66 by gunfire.

A ninth person was killed in the city of Armagh.

Across the border, the overwhelmingly Roman Catholic Irish Republic mobilized 2,000 reserve troops to support 1,600 men already massing along Northern Ireland frontiers.

The illegal Irish Republican Army (IRA) said it was ready to send help to Northern Ireland's Roman Catholics.

The 10 months of intermittent strife in Northern Ireland erupted into near civil war this week and is the result of the Roman Catholic minority's contention that the predominantly Protestant government of Northern Ireland systematically discriminates against Catholics, particularly in jobs, housing and voting.

The Irish Republic which includes all but the six northern counties which make up Northern Ireland has never recognized the 1920 partition which established the predominantly Protestant area which is still loyal to the British Crown.

British troops rolled into the adjacent Protestant and Catholic neighborhoods along the Shankhill and Falls Roads Friday night. Police were helpless to separate mobs fighting with guns, firebombs, stones, bricks and fists.

The British troops surrounded a mile square area with barbed concertina wire and violence scaled down to sporadic sniper fire and rock throwing.

But the fighting erupted anew in areas outside those where the troops stood guard.

Roman Catholic gunmen roared past the home of militant Protestant leader Rev. Ian Paisley, firing into his house. Others blazed away with submachineguns at the Tenant Street police station.

A gang of shouting Protestant youths hurled firebombs into the Roman Catholic St. Gall's school. Flames quickly destroyed it.

Police in armored cars rolled up and down Crumlin Road between entire blocks of burning buildings firing bursts of machinegun fire at gangs racing along in the glow of fires. Gangs hijacked buses and overturned them for barricades from which they fired guns,

Nine Injured In Three Auto Crashes; One Reported Critical

Nine persons were injured, one critically, in three separate accidents last night in Marin County, the California Highway Patrol reported.

Jerrold Frederick Lehman, 30, of 1720 Center Road, Novato, was reported in critical condition today in the intensive care unit of Novato General Hospital after his motorcycle hit a car at 11:55 p.m. yesterday on the Highway 101 offramp at the intersection of Nave and South Ignacio boulevards.

Hospital officials said Lehman was unconscious following surgery for a fractured skull, multiple bone fractures and back burn caused by gasoline.

Highway patrol officers said Lehman failed to stop at the yield sign on the connector road between Ignacio and Nave boulevards and hit a car driven by John Irwin Ahlers, 42, of 12 Capilano Drive, Novato.

Five persons were injured at 1:25 a.m. today when a car driven by Michael Alan Axton, 25, of the Presidio of San Francisco crossed over the center line on the Golden Gate Bridge 300 feet north of the toll gates and hit a car driven by John Aura Estes, 43, of 299 Flamingo Road, Mill Valley.

Estes was reported in good condition at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Francisco with undisclosed injuries. His wife, Marguerite Estes, 37, and daughter Katherine, 17, were treated for minor injuries, according to hospital spokesmen.

Axton and Larry Baker, 20, whose address is not known, were taken to Letterman General Hospital, where neither the nature of their injuries nor their condition was available today.

Three persons were injured in a four-car accident at 11:25 p.m. yesterday midspan on the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge, highway patrol officers said.

Treated yesterday at Marin General Hospital were Jurgen Knemeyer, 26, of Gualala, Mendocino County, for minor burns; Charles E. Whitmire, 19, of Bremerton, Wash., for a cut forehead; and Richard W. Jacobs, 22, of Bremerton for a cut hand.

Officers had no details of the accident which involved cars driven by Knemeyer, Sheldon Lawrence Spangler Jr., 20, of Fremont; Coralie Jeanne Paris, 21, of Fairfax; and Sauborn Grant Jr., 41, of San Rafael.

Whitmire and Jacobs were passengers in Kentmeyer's car, officers said.

Florida Bracing For Fury Of Hurricane

Worst Blow In 54 Years Predicted

MIAMI (AP)—Hurricane warning flags flew along the Florida Panhandle today as Camille, the worst storm to threaten that coastal area in more than half a century, roared in from the Gulf of Mexico with winds of 115 miles per hour raging around the eye.

Pushing ahead tides of five to 10 feet, Camille was described by forecasters as the most dangerous storm to head for that white sandy coast since a devastating blow in 1915, in an era when hurricanes had no names.

WIDE AREA

Hurricane force winds howled over an 8-mile-wide area around the center, gales lashed a 300-mile-wide expanse, and conditions favored further increase in intensity, forecasters said.

Gale warnings were raised at noon EDT from Pensacola, Fla., to Cedar Key well down on the Florida peninsula.

The north-northwest track Camille had followed since she hit western Cuba with a fierce one-two punch of wind and rain earlier had aimed her toward a point where the coasts of Florida, Alabama and Mississippi converge on the Gulf shore.

TO MISSISSIPPI

"Camille still is not showing the northerly turn, but we are predicting that she will," said Dr. Robert H. Simpson, chief of the National Hurricane Center at Miami.

Red and black hurricane warning flags were expected to fly by noon EDT for a smaller, more pinpointed area.

Slowly rebuilding fury lost in the overnight crossing of Cuba, Camille chased small craft into port the length of the Florida West Coast and all the way around the Gulf to Grand Isle,

'MINOR EXPLOSION'

Hamilton Nuclear Danger Is Doubted

By LARRY D. HATFIELD

A saboteur could not trigger a nuclear explosion in Marin County by attacking Hamilton Air Force Base's quasi-secret nuclear arsenal, an Air Force investigator was told yesterday.

The testimony was offered by a nuclear weapons specialist at a pre-trial hearing for Sgt. Robert V. Ballou, 22, a security guard who was kept on duty — including the guarding of the nuclear weapons storage area — after he was declared psychiatrically unstable by an Army psychiatrist.

Ballou, who had said he would do anything, including using a gun, to get out of the Air Force, is accused of threatening S/Sgt. Arthur J. Moore with a loaded and cocked carbine, then a .38-caliber pistol on Aug. 2. The hearing which concluded yesterday was to determine whether he should face a court-martial.

Chief M/Sgt. William M. Leopold, a nuclear weapons maintenance superintendent at Hamilton, was called by investigating officer Capt. John D. McQuaid Jr. to counter earlier testimony that suggested a nuclear explosion could be detonated by an unstable guard with a gun.

Asked, in a "hypothetical situation," whether a nuclear warhead could be exploded by shooting at it, Leopold replied: "(He) could sabotage the weapon, that's all . . . there would be no possibility of a nuclear explosion."

He said, however, that a "minor conventional explosion" could be touched off.

When McQuaid asked him what the "maximum damage" by such an explosion would be, Leopold said, "The most he could possibly do is to destroy the weapon. At the most, it (the conventional explosion) might scatter a little bit of radioactivity. . . ."

Leopold emphasized that the radioactivity would be limited to "several hundred yards," if that, and would be caused by nuclear devices in the warhead being scattered by the explosion, similar to that caused when the Air Force accidentally dropped H-bombs in Greenland and at Palamores, Spain.

There would be no danger to the civilian population, he said, adding that built-in safeguards made nuclear explosions impossible except when highly-skilled teams triggered them.

McQuaid asked Leopold if he saw "any possibility of a mushroom cloud rising from an attempts to sabotage" a warhead. The sergeant replied, "None whatsoever."

Pressing a point, McQuaid asked him "if you heard the statement that Marin County could be destroyed by the (sabotage of a nuclear weapon) by one individual, would you say that statement was totally erroneous?"

Leopold answered, "Yes, sir."

In the closing summary, Ballou's attorneys, Air Force Capt. Frederick Graham and Novato attorney Robert V. Carrow conceded that Ballou had attacked Sgt. Moore but blamed the incident on Maj. Donald H. Tidwell, the commander of the security police, for keeping Ballou on duty after the psychiatric evaluation.

Carrow told the inquiry, "It is difficult in this case to keep sight of the fact that the issue is not Major Tidwell's competency . . . I think his imcompetence has been well established."

Charging that Tidwell "did not heed his responsibility either to the individual, Sgt. Robert Ballou, or to the Air Force," Carrow said Tidwell ignored the psychiatrist's report, Ballou's

Bolinas Lagoon Filling Work Ordered Halted

Filling of southeastern portions of Bolinas Lagoon was ordered halted yesterday.

Marin County Public Works director Donald R. Frost, who issued the order, said he had been informed that the filling, on the property of developer George P. Leonard of Stinson Beach, had exceeded legal limits.

Conservationists and county parks and recreation officials had expressed concern over the effect of filling on lagoon wildlife and shellfish.

Frost said the fill limit without a permit from his office is 1,000 cubic yards, but that much more had been dumped on the Leonard property. One estimate placed the amount at 5,000 cubic yards.

Frost said that not only does Leonard lack a county fill permit but also needs one from the Army Corps of Engineers, which also has jurisdiction.

Leonard has applied for a permit that would enable dumping of 54,000 cubic yards of fill on portions of his 22 acres along Shoreline Highway.

About 10,000 yards would be used at once to provide a new bridge and realigned causeway to the Seadrift community from Shoreline Highway. This is the spot where filling had been going on until yesterday.

Leonard plans to hold the other 44,000 yards in reserve for future filling of property farther north that already is partially filled. He said a shopping center was planned in that area in the distant future.

Melton Ferris, a member of the parks and recreation commission, said he was concerned over whether filling in the causeway area would disrupt tidal action in the extreme southern portion of the lagoon, a popular feeding area for birds. Leonard said it wouldn't.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Grant Wins Battle

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Cary Grant won a court battle yesterday to keep his 3-year-old daughter from being taken to visit her maternal grandparents near Seattle, Wash.

The actor told Superior Court Judge Marvin A. Freeman that little Jennifer disliked the parents of his ex-wife, actress Dyan Cannon, and became upset last Christmas when she was taken to visit them.

He said Jennifer would be "just dumped" in Seattle with Ben and Clara Friesen, adding, "I am quite concerned."

Miss Cannon was in tears during Grant's testimony and told the judge Jennifer had nothing but "love and devotion" for the grandparents.

Johnson In Public

ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP) — In one of the rare public appearances since leaving the White House, former President Lyndon B. Johnson walked down the street of this city without attracting a crowd.

Johnson, visiting Rochester yesterday for a one-day meeting of the foundation that runs the Mayo Clinic, went unnoticed by some passers-by as he walked a block from his hotel to the meeting. He flew back to his Texas ranch last night.

The clinic's administrator emphatically denied a published report that Johnson underwent routine medical tests while here. Johnson has served on the Mayo Foundation since February.

Atheist Gets Hearing

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Atheist Madalyn Murray O'Hair has won a federal court hearing for her suit that seeks to stop American astronauts from radioing religious matters while in space.

Mrs. O'Hair had previously instituted a suit that led to a Supreme Court ruling against mandatory prayers in public schools.

She now seeks a temporary restraining order against the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the astronauts to keep them from permitting or conducting any religious activities in space, "especially the reading of the sectarian Christian religion's Bible."

Canadian Defense

Defense Minister Leo Cadieux ended months of rumors with an announcement yesterday that Allard, a 56-year-old French Canadian, will retire from the country's No. 1 military post.

Sharp was one of about six career officers in line for the job.

Unlike Allard, who has an army background, Sharp, 53, came up through the Air Force, which was a separate service before the mid-60s unification of Canadian armed forces.

Indonesian Decision

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — President Suharto declared today that the decision of West Irian to remain part of Indonesia is "absolute, it cannot be made void by anyone under any pretext whatever."

Suharto, delivering his annual state of the union speech before Parliament on the eve of Indonesia's 24th anniversary of independence, formally announced that the troublesome territory will be granted "full and real autonomy" now that it is legally part of Indonesia.

Hungary Is Warmer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department sees a little thawing in the sometimes icy relations between the United States and Hungary in an exchange of letters of concession — granting certain privileges — between the two nations.

Department spokesmen said the letters were exchanged following talks in Budapest between U. S. Ambassador Alfred Puhan and the Hungarian deputy foreign minister, Bela Szilagyi.

The agreement allows Hungary to join most other East European nations in setting up its own trade-promotion office in New York City.

Airport Gun Duel

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — The Swiss government has filed murder charges against three Arab commandos and an Israeli security agent in the Israeli El Al airliner gunfight Feb. 18 at Kloten Airport.

The three Arabs have been confined in Switzerland and their requests for bond refused. The Israeli security agent, Mordecai Rachmanin, charged with second-degree murder, has been free since March on $23,000 bond. Israel has guaranteed he will return for trial.

Cambodian Review

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Prince Norodom Sirhanouk, the Cambodian chief of state, said today his country is ready to re-examine its policy of rejecting U.S. aid.

Sihanouk was quoted by the official press agency as saying the new cabinet under Gen. Lon Nol would have complete latitude in determining new policy lines — "for example the question of American aid and cooperation with the United States."

Collision On Nile

CAIRO (UPI) — Divers today searched the Nile River 10 miles north of Cairo for more victims of yesterday's collision between a pleasure boat and a barge. Seven bodies have been recovered so far and about 25 other persons are missing and feared drowned. Sixteen persons were rescued a short time after the boat slammed into the barge, splitting the pleasure craft in two and spilling its 40 to 50 passengers into the water.

A New Grandfather

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Entertainer Danny Thomas is a grandfather. His 25-year-old daughter, Terri, gave birth to a 6-pound, 8-ounce girl yesterday in Cedars of Lebanon Hospital. She is the wife of Larry Gordon, a publicist.

Doctors said mother and daughter, named Dionne Theresa, were in excellent condition.

Asthma Convention

LISBON (UPI) — Medical authorities from 38 countries sailed yesterday aboard a Portugese cruise liner on a 20-day voyage to discuss one of man's most troubling afflictions—asthma. The 300 delegates, guests of the Portugese government, will attend the 6th congress of the International Association of Asthmology aboard the liner Principe Perefeito during its cruise off northwest Africa.

Israel Claims Guerrillas Intercepted

TEL AVIV (AP) — The Israelis said today they killed seven Arab infiltrators in two separate overnight clashes along the Jordan River frontier.

An army announcement said the Israelis killed five Arab guerrillas in a band of eight intercepted two miles south of the Dead Sea early today.

The band was attempting to set up Soviet-made rocket launchers, a spokesman said.

Three Soviet-made rifles, four bazooka shells and ammunition were reported captured.

Two hours earlier, an army patrol intercepted another band in the Negev Desert 50 miles north of Eilat, killing two Arabs, the spokesman said.

Russian-made rifles, "sabotage packages" and timing devices were reported abandoned by the fleeing Arab survivors.

The army made no mention of Israeli casualties.

The army also said an Israeli border policeman was shot and wounded near the Lebanese border when his jeep came under light arms fire, and bazooka shells fell into an Israel camp in occupied Golan Heights of Syria early today.

Dirty Water Foes Collect Congress Help

WASHINGTON (AP) — Backers of the war on dirty water are rapidly recruiting a large bipartisan army of congressmen to battle for a $786 million increase in the President's pollution control budget plan.

President Richard M. Nixon asked for $214 million for construction of waste treatment plants. Supporters of a move to raise the level to the $1 billion authorized by Congress in 1966, when it passed a comprehensive water pollution act, said yesterday they have rounded up 162 House members who will vote for the extra money.

Rep. John D. Dingell, D-Mich., heads the group of five Democrats and two Republicans which has been gathering pledges of support since July 15. Backers include Rep. Hale Boggs, D-La., the House whip; five committee chairmen and many members of both parties who rarely are supporters of big spending legislation.

The money involves matching grants to state and local governments. The federal share is from 30 to 55 per cent.

A major contention of the backers of the additional funds is that the 1966 law encouraged states to begin ambitious projects to clean up lakes and rivers in the expectation of getting substantial federal assistance. But, except for the initial year, federal appropriations have not come up to the authorized level.

Twenty-two governors also have given their support to the funds boost move.

Canadian Recalls 'Days Of Horror' In Zanzibar Cell

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — A free lance Canadian journalist described today "five days of horror" in a Zanzibar jail where he was held on suspicion of espionage.

Ronald Laytner, 35, of Toronto, arrived here after being deported by Tanzanian authorities.

Laytner said he had gone to Zanzibar last week after covering the civil war in Biafra.

He said he saw Communist Chinese troops and workers in Zanzibar and "got himself invited" into an Arab house from where he could observe them and take photos with a telephoto camera.

Laytner said he got his pictures, but later was seized by police who accused him of spying and thought his telephoto lens was "some sort of weapon."

Laytner said he lost 28 pounds during his six days in police hands. He said he was taken to a Peoples' Revolutionary Court to be tried for criminal trespassing.

Senator Will Fight Any Thai Troop Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John Sherman Cooper, fearful of another Vietnam, will press for putting the Senate on record opposing use of U.S. troops in Thailand to combat possible Communist insurgency.

But the Kentucky Republican declines to relate this effort to the acknowledgement by Nixon administration sources that a secret 1964 U.S.-Thailand military agreement could put American forces under Thai command in event of a threat from Communist Pathet Lao and North Vietnamese troops operating in Laos.

Cooper, who withdrew an amendment to the military aid portion of the $20 billion military authorization bill because of the congressional recess, said in an interview yesterday he will offer it when the Senate resumes consideration of the legislation next month.

"I hope it will prohibit use of funds for the support of local forces by U.S. troops to engage in combat against any insurgency," he told a reporter.

The amendment would limit U.S. aid to Thailand and Laos to supplies, equipment, materiel and related costs in order to prevent the authority for assistance from becoming a basis for expanded U.S. involvement in the two Southeast Asian countries.

But senior members of the Armed Services Committee said the Cooper amendment might cost U.S. lives.

At the State Department, press officer Robert J. McCloskey said the secret agreement "specifically states it cannot be put into effect without the specific agreement of both governments."

McCloskey also said "this contingency plan has not expanded our defense commitment to Thailand beyond that already contained in the SEATO (Southeast Asia Treaty Organization) treaty.

"It involves no commitment to any specific military action and that is made clear in the document itself," McCloskey said, adding that as a military agreement, not a treaty, it does not require Senate confirmation.

According to administration sources, the main feature is that U.S. troops could be committed to help Thai forces stop Communists in Laos before they reach Thailand.

Under such a plan, the over-all allied command would be exercised by Field Marshal Thanom Kittikachorn, Thailand's prime minister and defense minister.

The 1964 plan provided that, in such an instance, Lt. Gen. Richard G. Stilwell, then chief of the U.S. military assistance Advisory Group in Thailand, would become ground forces commander. In the event of a general Red Chinese offensive, the over-all command would have been assumed by Gen. William C. Westmoreland, then U.S. commander in Vietnam.

The sources insisted the plan does not expand U.S. commitments under SEATO but was signed to reassure the Thais that the United States would honor its commitments.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, one of the members of the Foreign Relations Committee who have assailed the Pentagon for refusing to give it a copy of the agreement, suggested earlier in the week that it involved putting U.S. troops under Thai command and asked for an explanation.

Church was unavailable for comment on the latest details of the plan.

Cooper said he could not comment on the still seceret agreement.

Possible Tribunal Jurist Claims Record Is Cleared

NEW YORK (AP) — Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. says a Justice Department investigation exonerated him of a conflict-of-interest charge in connection with a 1963 federal court decision he made in a labor case.

A Washington dispatch in the New York Times today said Haynsworth called the allegation "blatant falsehoods" when reached at his Greenville, S. C., home yesterday. He said an investigation made when Robert F. Kennedy was attorney general showed the charges against him were false.

The Textile Workers Union accused Haynsworth of conflict-of-interest six years ago after the judge joined in a ruling that was unfavorable for the union. An AFL-CIO official agreed yesterday that the charge was found to be baseless, the Times said.

Reports of the old charges began circulating amid speculation that President Richard M. Nixon would nominate the 56-year-old federal appellate judge to the Supreme Court.

The core of the textile union's 1963 charge was Haynsworth was first vice president and a shareholder of Carolina Vend-a-Matic Co., which had contracts with plants owned by Deering Milliken Co., a large textile firm, the Times said.

Haynsworth voted with the majority in a 3-2 decision by the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, that reversed a National Labor Relations Board finding that Deering Milliken had committed an unfair labor practice. The NLRB said the company had closed a plant to avoid bargaining with the union.

Indonesia Reports Defeat Of Communist Insurgents

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — President Suharto declared today the army has defeated Communist guerrilla forces in West Kalimanthan—Indonesian Borneo.

"The execution of suppressing armed rebellion by the PGRS (Sarawak Peoples Guerrilla Forces) in Kalimantan can be said to have been accomplished and we are now beginning the territorial operation to rehabilitate and restore the daily life of the people," he said.

The Indonesian army, working with Malaysian units across the border in Sarawak, have killed or captured hundreds of guerrillas, mostly Chinese, in the last three years.

Suharto, in his annual state of the union speech in Parliament on the eve of Indonesia's 24th anniversary of independence, announced that the government is sending 2,500 lower echelon Communist prisoners to the remote island of Buru in the Moluccas group to clear land and make a living by farming.

This, he said, is the first step toward rehabilitating the country's 80,000 Communist detainees and may be "a positive step" toward solving the serious and costly problem of keeping the prisoners and easing them back into society.

He appealed to Indonesians for "understanding and assistance" in helping released prisoners readjust.

While noting that internal security has improved in Indonesia, he warned that the government will not tolerate any move to revive the outlawed Communist party and will deal harshly with those who aid the underground.

He appealed to this nation's 115 million people for unity and declared: "Let us sacrifice everything for the success of development."

Suharto, who has staked his reputation and his nation's future on the five-year development plan launched last April, said: "The greatest danger which might threaten us at this moment would be the failure of the five-year plan.

"Failure of this development would not only mean the loss of faith in the government but would also mean the destruction of the achievements in economic progress we have obtained with so much effort."

Any major deterioration in Indonesia's still precarious economy, he warned, would permit a comeback by the Communist party.

"Strategically speaking our economy is indeed getting better," he said, but "I know very well that your living conditions, you peasants, vendors, civil servants and soldiers, are still burdensome."

The president made no bones about it—Indonesia's slow mending economy, which his government salvaged from its headlong race to disaster under the ousted Sukarno regime, is still "far from our expectations."

As he has done many times already, Suharto called on this vast and diverse nation to set aside religious, political and regional differences to build up the economy to ensure progress.

Suharto, the one-time army strongman dressed in his now familiar dark business suit, repeated in his speech, broadcast nationwide, his oft-stated warning that although the economy is finally moving "in a positive direction" his people should not expect an overnight miracle.

"I said that our economy is improving," he added. "I did not say 'already good.' We should truly understand this."

Abernathy Reelected As SCLC Head

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — The Southern Christian Leadership Conference has reelected Rev. Ralph David Abernathy as president and pledged a militant new attack on poverty, racism and war.

The reelection came yesterday, a day ahead of schedule, as the civil rights group hurried to finish pressing business before recessing a four-day national convention in Charleston today. The convention will reconvene in Chicago to decide whether the SCLC will become more involved in an assault on what it calls "racism" in the building trade unions there.

Abernathy said the SCLC will spend the next year involving itself more heavily in labor affairs, including the organization of nonprofessional hospital workers in several Southern cities. He said there will be a nationwide effort to organize the working poor into labor and political groups.

The convention met in the historic port city that this year became the scene of the SCLC's first effort to organize nonprofessional hospital workers. The SCLC led numerous demonstrations on behalf of Negro workers striking two Charleston hospitals before compromise settlements were reached.

As the convention neared its end in Charleston, the SCLC received another request for help in the city. Negro garbage workers and street workers went on strike yesterday and Abernathy swiftly promised help.

The convention was filled with tributes to Abernathy, a close friend and colleague of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Abernathy became president of the SCLC after King was slain while leading a strike of garbage collectors in Memphis.

Abernathy, a Baptist minister, was reelected without opposition, despite a campaign by one SCLC faction to replace him with the younger Rev. Jesse Jackson of Chicago. Jackson endorsed Abernathy in an emotional speech.

Home Building Industry, Asks Federal Credit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Association of Home Builders, pointing to the continuing drop in the building of new housing, wants the government to institute credit controls.

In July, for the sixth consecutive month, new construction of private housing slipped—down 9 per cent from June. The Commerce Department said the level fell to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1.34 million units.

Eugene A. Gulledge, president of the home builders' group, maintained the production slide "is accelerating faster than during the disastrous period of 1966 when production in October of that year fell to an annual rate of just 845,000 units."

During the first seven months of 1966, housing starts dipped 31 per cent. Currently, fresh construction of housing is down 29 per cent from the point six months ago.

Party Paper Report Protested By Dubcek

VIENNA (AP) — The Czechoslovak Communist Party newspaper Rude Pravo said today it received a protest, apparently from Alexander Dubcek, over an article it printed earlier this week.

The article quoted Dubcek and other Communist officials as telling a top-level conference May 12 and 13, 1968, that there was a danger from the right and that, if it tries to remove the Communist Party from power "we will mobilize all means and suppress such force."

Dubcek, then party chief, was further reported to have said: "The Communist Party of Czechoslovakia can rely entirely on the aid of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union."

Today Rude Pravo said "one of the quoted officials made a protest with us" in which he charged that "parts of the speeches were published in a tendentious and untruthful way."

Although Rude Pravo did not say who made the protest, the wording of it indicated that it must have been Dubcek himself. He still holds a position of power, president of the Parliament and member of the party presidium, and this would oblige Rude Pravo to acknowledge his protest.

When the minutes of the 1968 meeting were published by Rude Pravo, observers here said they thought they appeared incomplete. Dubcek had made several speeches before the invasion in which he also attacked the right wing, but he always added the Czechoslovak Communist Party was strong enough alone to repulse it.

Therefore it appeared logical that Dubcek had added the same statement in the speech from which Rude Pravo had been quoting but which it did not publish.

Commenting on the protest, Rude Pravo, which now firmly supports the tough line and new party chief Gustav Husak, said that "before August (the invasion), one position after another was weakened" and ". . . there is no other solution than to organize the struggle against the right wing in all spheres."

The newspaper did not go so far as to say the invasion was needed—no leading Czechoslovak Communist up to now has said so—but the comment continues in the vein of previous statements, that the inactivity of the Dubcek leadership was at least partly to blame for the invasion.

The attacks on Dubcek were part of a campaign to persuade the Czechoslovaks to ignore the first anniversary of the invasion. This has been coupled with threats to use force against troublemakers

PROTEST A BUST

'Bras-Less' Advocate Gets Fired From $18,000 Post

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A woman engineer who says brassiers are "nonfunctional and uncomfortable" was fired after urging female employees at an aerospace firm to come to work yesterday without their bras.

A company spokesman said her planned antibra protest was a bust.

"Bras are horrible things, and I thought calling for a 'bra-less Friday' would be fun," said Joan Andre, 39, who lost her $18,000 job at General Dynamics in suburban Pomona as a manufacturing and engineering supervisor.

Mrs. Andre, a 39-29-43 divorcee, says she "never, never, never wears bras."

She said she was fired Thursday for "conduct unbecoming a member of management" after urging for a week via bulletin boards that the company's 2,200 women employes come to work "unstrapped" yesterday.

A General Dynamics spokesman said apparently not many women had the courage. "We don't know of anyone working without their bras," he said.

Mrs. Andre said her superiors told her that "society in the Pomona area would not accept the braless fad and that for a woman in my position it was considered improper behavior."

She said her supervisor told her the company would lose a number of work hours because men would stare at women without bras.

"I told him men have been staring at women for centuries and will continue to stare at women—bra-less or not," Mrs. Andre said. "Someday bra-lessness will be bigger than miniskirts."

Mrs. Andre is looking for another job.

WOMAN DRIVER SETS MARK AT 34 FAILURES

LUPSET, England (AP) — After spending $480 in the past eight years on driving lessons, Miriam Hargrave has done it again. She just flunked the test for a driver's license for the 34th time.

"I drive quite well," Mrs. Hargrave protested, "but none of the examiners wants the label of the man who passed Miriam."

She said she plans to complain to the transport. ministry.

Judge Wipes Out L.A. Dance Laws

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Sections of a new county ordinance which prohibited adults from dancing with minors at youth events and prohibited minors at public dances where liquor was served, were found invalid in Superior Court yesterday.

Judge Bernard S. Jefferson said the provisions do not have a legitimate purpose of protecting the public health, safety and morals.

The court issued a permanent injunction preventing the county, the Board of Supervisors and Sheriff Peter Pitchess from enforcing the two sections.

A WILD RIDE

They Abducted Him With Knife, Kisses

An amorous, knife-wielding woman and her young feminine companion abducted a 44-year-old San Rafael man last night in San Francisco and forced him to drive them to Black Point.

Bruce Rosemont Burket, 44, of 9 Serra Way, told sheriff's deputies that his wild ride began about 7:15 p.m. when he stopped at a stoplight at Scott and Lombard streets in San Francisco.

Two women got into his car and one, whom he described as about 30, pulled a knife with a two-inch blade and told him to drive them to Vallejo.

While heading north on Highway 101, Burkett said, the knife-wielding woman repeatedly kissed and caressed him while her companion, who appeared to be about 18, urged that she attack him with the knife.

When he neared Black Point on Highway 37, Burket told the women that he did not have enough gasoline to drive to Vallejo and they told him to stop.

While one held the knife on him, the other flagged down a light tan van, he said, and then the two got into the vehicle and were last seen driving toward Vallejo.

Tides will build up slowly during the day along the area of the hurricane watch and squalls with gale-force winds were expected to begin raking the coastline tonight.

Havana Radio was silent today on the damage wreaked by the storm as rains up to 10 inches sent floodwaters pouring down the mountainsides.

As Camille spun toward a landfall, tropical storm Debbie grew to hurricane force in the Atlantic 1,200 miles east-southeast of San Juan, Puerto Rico. Debbie's winds were up to 80 miles per hour and increasing.

Risky Mosquito Found In Marin County

The mosquito that carries encephalitis in California's central valleys appeared in greater numbers than usual in Marin and southern Sonoma counties this summer, according to the Marin County Mosquito Abatement District.

However, not a single case of human encephalitis has been recorded in the state to date and "evidence at hand" does not indicate this type of mosquito can cause encephalitis "under prevailing Marin County conditions," the district reported.

Hijacker Sets Course To Albania

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — A DC3 Olympic Airways plane with 31 persons aboard was forced to fly to Albania today and land, the line announced here.

A bulletin from Olympic, which is owned by shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis, said the plane "was forced from its course to Vlore."

It was the second time an Olympic Airways plane had been hijacked; the first known hijacking of a plane to Albania.

A young Greek waving a pistol at the pilot hijacked a DC6 airliner to Cairo last Jan. 2 on a flight from Athens to Iraklion, Crete. The passengers returned later that day aboard another Olympic plane and the gunman, George Flambourides, was arrested in Cairo when the plane landed.

Greece still is officially at war with her northwestern neighbor. A Greek-Albanian treaty was never concluded following the end of World War II and borders between the two countries are heavily guarded.

Greece would have to negotiate for the passengers and plane's return through a third party which enjoys diplomatic relations with Albania, and there are few of these.

fantrymen, artillery, armor and air strikes since Tuesday. U.S. officers say in this period about 50 Americans have been killed and probably 200 wounded in the area.

Generally, the North Vietnamese and iVet Cong slackened their activities along the Cambodian border, where fighting has been sharp on most days since Tuesday. But allied forces presumably were keeping the pressure on the enemy.

The enemy increased the tempo of shellings, however, hitting 45 allied bases and towns with rockets and mortar shells overnight. The average has been below 40 since the high point Tuesday.

U.S. sources with access to field reports said allied troops had killed about 3,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong soldiers throughout South Vietnam since Tuesday. In that period they estimate at least 200 Americans have been killed and probably 800-1,000 wounded. South Vietnamese losses were believed to be about the same.

One U.S. source said that despite the B52 raids and heavy losses, the enemy is still capable of mounting a strong attack.

"He's capable of hitting pretty hard where he's closest to his sanctuaries and supply lines," the source said.

sentatives — to show substantial progress in the work.

Failure to comply, Barrows said, should be considered a breach of contract, enabling the county to hire others to complete the job.

McKee had earlier promised — after numerous contract extensions — that the building would be ready for final inspection on July 25, but then asked for more extensions when it became apparent that that deadline could not be met. The county ruled out more extensions.

Although the official construction agreement still calls for a completion date on July 26, McKee has not been held in default. Asst. County Counsel Richard V. Godino said it is normal practice to decide upon any penalties when the job is completed.

Much of the blame for construction delays had fallen on allegedly lethargic subcontractors, most of whom are not from Marin and have no local reputations to protect.

Hondurans Claim Looting During War

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — Troops from El Salvador that invaded Honduras during a week-long war between the two countries last month assaulted women, robbed and destroyed private property and committed murder, Honduran witnesses told an investigation committee from the Organization of American States yesterday.

"The Salvadorans murdered my father and beat my mother," said Jose E. Chinchilla of Las Piles, one of the 50 persons who testified. "Then they looted their house and robbed the few livestock they had."

Rev. Rodrigo Brennan, a Roman Catholic priest from Nueva Octoepeque, said he was captured by Salvadoran troops and taken to their capital, El Salvador, after being accused of espionage. He said the U.S. Embassy arranged his release.

When he returned, he said, women parishioners told him that Salvadoran troops had assaulted them. He also said the troops desecrated his church and took money from collection boxes.

The OAS commission promised those who testified that it would investigate a charge that more than 60 women and children were kidnaped and taken to El Salvador.

Probation Set In Kentfield Narcotics

Jacklynn Diane Arzio, 20, of Oakland, was placed on a year's supervised probation yesterday in Marin Municipal Court for being in a place where narcotics were used Feb. 24 in Kentfield.

Mrs. Arzio earlier had been given summary probation, which entails less stringent requirements, but Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr. ordered a new probation report after he sentenced her to a day in jail for contempt of court Aug. 1. Mrs. Arzio slammed her chair into a table in protest when her husband, John Nicholas Arzio, was sentenced to seven days in jail for being where narcotics were used.

own plea for a transfer and Ballou's past record in "obviously circumventing and disregarding" Air Force "human reliability program" fitness standards for men in sensitive positions.

"I submit that the guilt, if any lies, lies with Major Tidwell," Carrow said. He urged McQuaid not to recommend a court-martial because the evidence presented in the two-day hearing was not sufficient to prove Ballou had "sufficient control of his actions on the night in question to establish specific intent."

Graham told the inquiry, "We blame Major Tidwell for making a command decision that was certainly a mistake . . . perhaps an honest mistake." He saidt he defense does not blame the Air Force for the incident, but blames Tidwell.

Later, however, Graham said that the government was partly responsible because Tidwell was an agent of the government. Saying he would find it "hard to swallow" if the Air Force, instead of rectifying its mistake, "lashed out against an unfortunate and, I think, innocent individual," Graham suggested that court-martial proceedings not be brought and Ballou be given a medical discharge.

"He warned the government and the government didn't listen," Graham said, adding that a recommendation for a court-martial would reflect an attitude by the Air Force of "and eye for an eye and 'Vengeance is mine, saith the Lord'."

McQuaid will make his recommendation, possible late next week, to base commander Col. Michael J. Stubblarec, who can either accept or reject the suggested course of action.

MARGOT JONES, professional dancer, choreographer and singer, works on movements for her ballets in the inspiring setting of a cliff above the ocean. Her dance company performs ballets with a message. Universal love and the oneness of man are the themes of of the performance to be held tonight at 8 p.m. in Angelico Hall on the Dominican College campus in San Rafael. The performance which will combine dancing, singing and drama, is sponsored by the Festival Theater. (Don E. Wolter photos)

Dancer Carries Message Of Oneness

By JOAN LISETOR

"Many performers measure success materially — they have to have a fancy car and a penthouse. I don't really care about success," says Margot Jones, professional singer, dancer and choreographer.

Miss Jones is back in Marin, her home until six months ago, to direct a performance of her dance company, which will be presented tonight in Angelico Hall at Dominican College.

WHAT MARGOT cares about is a message in the ballets her company is performing.

"Our message is the oneness of man and universal love, a phrase I hesitate to use because it has been so overused," she says. "But we want to show what is beyond the human being who is black or white."

The message most recently has been delivered in Bay Area churches, where her dance company has performed as a part of the church service.

"Churches are touching more levels since they realized they were not doing enough to reach the people with just words. They have realized that they need art, dance and music."

She feels that creativity can ride on the coattails of religion in its rebirth, and the two forms can work together to produce a better world.

"I WANT TO tour churches throughout the United States and work on a creative rebirth of enjoyment on more than one level," she explains. "In the setting of a church people are susceptible, and the audience is there. You don't have to seek it commercially."

She is very excited about an upcoming performance, Sept. 7, when her group will perform at Grace Cathedral in San Francisco, the first time in history the church has allowed dance during its services.

Born in Palo Alto and reared in Los Altos, Margot came to Marin in 1964. Her mother, Mrs. Joan Jones, still lives in Tiburon, but Margo has moved to Chico, where she will begin teaching dance and choreography in the fall at Chico State College.

Also in Chico she has done the groundwork for a children's theater.

"I love working with children," says the 27-year-old performer. While living in Marin she taught at Maringate Nursery School, at St. Andrew Presbyterian Church in Marin City and has been active this summer in a children's program in Marin City.

As a child, Margot decided she wanted to enter a creative field but was not sure in which area. She has tried singing, appearing among other places at the Hungary I in San Francisco, a night club she considers almost unique because it is geared toward entertainment instead of drinking.

"IN OTHER places there is always the drunk who wants to hear 'Melancholy Baby.' The only way to handle him is to tell him to sing it himself. Performers develop ways of handling hecklers, but that life just isn't for me."

Margot says dancing is more rewarding to her, and she enjoys what she is doing now because she can combine dancing, singing and acting and express herself spiritually, mentally and emotionally.

"I am up in arms over television," she says. "It doesn't have enough creativity. It is art by laymen who learn lines, read lines and their timing and types of material are not creative. Television viewers are physically oriented. There is no emotion of spirit on television because it is all on one level — physical — and people are mesmerized by it."

Another area of the theater of which she is critical is the Broadway stage, where the measure of success is based on the length of a play's run.

"Broadway has repressed a new birth in the creative arts and stifled creativity by its repetition. Actors say the same lines performance after performance, and they have no chance for inspiration," she says.

"INSPIRATION IS what art is all about. Did anyone teach Leonardo da Vinci how to paint or Isadora Duncan how to dance? And Nijinsky was inspired from within."

Margot says creativity must be felt, not taught, and hopes that this will be the theme of a reconstruction period she believes is going on in the field or art.

If this reconstruction is successful creative persons won't have to support those who are only interested in making money — agents who take 25 per cent of an entertainer's salary and night club owners who just want to sell drinks, she says.

Margot's 18-year-old sister, Gillian, has formed a folk rock group of six girls, who have been appearing in Marin and San Francisco, mostly in coffee houses. Their music, Margot says, is on the folk level, and it has a message.

CHURCHES AND coffee houses, she explains, are better for the creative performer than the theater. The theater is not an effective way to communicate the point because there is not room for originality in a theater format.

Margot says she dreams of appearing in Trinity Church in New York and then she wants to do concert work, performing what she wants to perform.

"Contrary to what most people believe, a creative person can survive," she says.

Velveteen Coat Can Add Flair To A Drab, Practical Wardrobe

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE,

I have seen some expensive coats made of printed velveteen, and they look so exciting that I would like to make one. My problem is I don't have a very large wardrobe and am afraid that because these prints are so different and unusual, it would be hard to find one that goes with everything I already have. In the end, I usually end up with something practical and drab.

MRS. M.T.E.

DEAR MRS. M.T.E.:

You have the same problem that lots of women have. They see something very exciting and lovely in ready-to-wear and decide to make one like it. But, somewhere between the time they have seen the ready-made garment and end up in the fabric shop, their courage leaves them and they decide to use a more basic color and fabric.

The most challenging part of my job is to try to persuade women to put more flair in their clothes, especially if they make them. You have no idea how much more fun it is to make them and wear them.

I would make the printed velveteen coat and forget about trying to make it go with everything. A coat is not part of an ensemble unless you want it to be. A coat can carry itself beautifully, but you must remember to make it with a covered up look, not a low-notched collar which would show part of your dress.

Unless you have an ensemble that will be worn open and must be coordinated for the effect, treat your coat and your dress as two completely different units. Did you ever notice how drab most women's clothes look on dull, rainy days? You'll make everyone who looks at you feel better if you wear a pretty color or an unexpected print.

"I have discovered a new use for the versatile paper towel. When altering a pattern in such a way that it must be cut apart, use a piece of paper toweling for patching the pattern into the correct shape. It is firm, flexible and when taped into place, lasts almost indefinitely. The pattern can be easily folded without disturbing the alteration since this material is both soft and strong."

DEAR EUNICE,

I have just finished using the press-on hem tape for hemming a dress and found that I had to change part of the hem because it looked uneven. When I tried to remove the press-on tape, some of the adhesive stayed on the fabric, and I can't get it off. Every suggestion anyone has given me has failed to work; you are my last resort. Have you ever had this problem come up before?

MRS. M.V.

DEAR MRS. M.V.:

Yes, I have had this question come up many times in the past, and I'm afraid I don't have a magic solution. I recently spent some time with a representative from one of the companies who distribute this type of hem tape, and they say that in order to really bond the tape to your fabirc, it has become a permanent thing. Sometimes, if it hasn't been applied too tight, it can easily be removed by simply pressing over it with a warm iron and peeling it off. However, they admitted that if part of it doesn't come off, there is no way to remove it. It really shouldn't be used except for an emergency and not on your better clothes. If any of our readers have a solution to removing these marks, it would sure help lots of frustrated gals if you would write to me and let me pass on the good word.

DEAR EUNICE,

I am making a coat out of a beautiful wool that has a diagonal weave. It is turning out beautifully with the exception of the collar. The collar was an oblong shape with a seam at the center back and was to be cut on the bias grain. When I stitched the center back seam, one half of the collar had the diagonal weave going vertical, the other half was going horizontal. It looks perfectly terrible, and I tried to cut it again and it came out the same way. Please help!

MRS. H.C.C.

DEAR MRS. H.C.C.:

The difficulty you are having is because of the diagonal weave in your fabric. Instead of cutting your collar according to the directions, eliminate the center back seam in the instance. Cut another piece of paper the shape of the collar pattern, eliminate the seam allowance at the center back and lay this complete collar pattern on a single layer of your fabric on the bias grain .

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

What To Tell The Boys Who Are Dedicated To "The Proposition"

DEAR HELEN:

In college you meet a lot of fellows who figure sex is the friendliest thing, and love has very little to do with it. They have all kinds of comebacks like "Don't be Victorian," "Be liberated," 'It's the natural thing to do," "Don't be a second class citizen — be as free as the men," etc., etc.

I like these guys and figure they have as much right to their point of view as I do to mine. They aren't pushy, but they sure do like to argue. What do I say to close them off ? — NOT READY

DEAR NOT:

Says our daughter Kathy:

How about telling them you aren't dedicated to the "proposition" and — sex can ruin a beautiful friendship? — H.

DEAR HELEN:

My fiance and I will be married soon but one thing bothers us. His folks belong to a church that doesn't believe in smoking or drinking. He doesn't attend, having changed to a church that is more liberal.

My parents aren't alcoholics or even regular social drinkers, but we would like to have champagne for the reception in the traditional manner. His parents say they won't come to the wedding if liquor is in evidence. We say it's bride's choice and those who don't approve can stick to punch.

Should we give up champagne and look chintzy, just to keep the peace ? — FEELING PUNCH DRUNK ALREADY

DEAR FPDA:

You probably can't unbend these rigid people, so rather than a family split, how about a compromise? Serve two bowls of punch, one with champagne, the other plain. And be sure you keep the punch bunch on the right side of the table! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

This girl I know is fine as long as I don't have a boy friend, but when I do, she takes over. She comes barging in every time he drives up, as if he were hers instead of mine. She sits between us even, and does everything possible to attract his attention, like wearing low cut dresses and bending over.

She even came prancing through our living room to use the telephone in only panties and bra. (She's always inviting herself to stay overnight, and this was one of those times.) My boy friend was sorta shocked, but he sure did look!

She thinks my boy friends are always neater than hers. Once she said she couldn't stand to see my date and I get along so well.

My folks say she is jealous of me and will cause trouble. Maybe she just doesn't know any better, as her parents don't tell her much and she does about as she pleases.

Should I be frank and lose a friend, maybe, or keep on being tactful, and not getting through? —OH, TO BE A LONER!

DEAR TO BE A LONER:

Lay it on her! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I am a 13-year-old boy and the girls like me. I guess because I came from England and they expect me to be rich some day.

The trouble is they're all cute, but no one likes two-timers, so I start going steady with one, and then the other girls get mad. So I break up and choose another. Now I like two girls and two more girls are fighting because of this. What to do? — STEVE

DEAR STEVE:

How about taking up summer baseball? — H.

First Lady Takes Reports On A Tour Of The Western White House

SAN CLEMENTE (AP) — Pat Nixon showed off the redecorated Spanish-style ocean-front Western White House and told how she tried to keep expenses down and make the place "light and airy."

"I try not to be extravagant," the President's wife said Thursday as she took reporters on a tour of the $340,000, 14-room, five-bath Nixon home set amid cyprus, palm and eucalyptus trees.

She said she tried to make use of French provincial furniture the Nixons had in their New York apartment, painting things "to make them fresh and new."

From the six-hole golf course and blue-tiled, scallop-edged swimming pool to the President's red-and-white bedroom with a Vietnam painting over the bed, Mrs. Nixon said, "I love it."

With a minimum of time on the project—"We did it all in one day"—Mrs. Nixon put to work Los Angeles interior decorators Cannel and Chaffin to create a predominately yellow-and-white color scheme with accents of royal blue.

THE MAJOR IMPROVEMENT, Mrs. Nixon said, was making the place "light and airy" by painting the heavy wooden ceiling beams white, replacing venetian blinds with white shutters and cutting back shrubbery to enhance the Pacific Ocean view.

The yellow living room looks out on yellow marigolds in the garden and has three high arched windows for a view of the sea.

Flowers are everywhere in pots and patios and colorful Spanish tiles are indoors and out.

Every room has a white telephone and Nixon's has red ones too.

A closet in a downstairs hallway houses the Nixon' music system. Mrs. Nixon tried to put on a record to demonstrate, but confessed, "I haven't been here long enough to learn how to use the machine."

There have been reports that neighbors in the Cyprus Shores community are upset over the security restrictions the Nixons have imposed on them. But Mrs. Nixon said all the neighbors have written her nice notes inviting her to tea. And she plans to have them in for a visit.

When she showed off the dining room with French provincial table and chairs and an American Oriental rug, Mrs. Nixon confided "we haven't had dinner here yet."

SHE SAID her husband is "a taco man." One night when they were home, he "sent down to the local taco place" for his favorite Mexican food. A taco is a sandwich made with a tortilla instead of bread.

The President's study is the only second-floor room in the sprawling white stucco, red-tiled house. The house surrounds a courtyard with a fountain.

There were still only a few books on the low shelves. Nixon's reading on a coffee table before the curving blue couch was "Great Presidential Decisions" by Richard Morris.

In their redecorating, the Nixons even fitted the Secret Service into the Spanish-styled decor. The agents occupy matching white stucco, red-tile roofed gazebos with tinted glass windows.

HUMOR DESPITE HARDSHIPS

200,000 Jam Roads To Rock Festival

WHITE LAKE, N.Y. (AP) — Like legions of vagabond soldiers, more than 200,000 young followers of pop music have descended here in rag tag fashion for a three-day rock festival, partially paralyzing this town and jamming area roads.

With increasing numbers of cars being abandoned on the highways leading to this Catskill Mountains resort area, the festival producers today called on "all vehicles heading for the festival to turn back home."

"Everything is quite out of hand," said a state trooper who described the area as "supersaturated." He said troopers at some posts had to be relieved by helicopter because traffic made the roads impassable.

MOST PEACEFUL

Despite the road jams, intermittent thunderstorms and a shortage of food, most of the young people remained peaceful, taking the inconveniences in good humor and helping each other out.

The town has a population of 3,000 and is about 100 miles northwest of New York City. Normally it is a summer haven for the middle-aged and middle class.

What brought everybody here is something the producers call the Woodstock Music and Art Fair, an aquarian exposition. It is set up on a 600-acre farm with the stage at the foot of an alfalfa field that forms a natural amphitheater.

By early yesterday atfernoon the crowds had pushed the ticket situation out of control. "Anybody can get in," said one observer, "tickets don't matter."

State police said 50 to 60 persons had been arrested on charges of possessing such drugs as LSD, barbiturates and amphetamines but there were no serious incidents or violence as of early today.

DRUG ARRESTS

Elsewhere around the state, troopers reported another 100 youths arrested on drug charges as they made stepped-up spot checks of cars headed for the festival. One car had a half-filled suitcase of marijuana and peyote, police said.

At the festival itself there were no reported arrests for marijuana. "As far as I know the narcotics guys are not arresting anybody for grass," said one state police sergeant. "If we did, there isn't enough space in Sullivan or the next three counties to put them in."

Both police and young people at the festival appeared determined to try and avoid a major confrontation.

"There hasn't been anyone yelling pig at the cops and when they ask directions they are polite and none of them has really given us any trouble yet," a state police lieutenant said.

Helping to keep the cool were 100 members of the "Hog Farm" commune of Taos, N.M., and special security guards wearing orange shirts with "peace" emblazoned on the front.

FEW TAKE NOTICE

The music that brought everyone here had become almost unimportant. The opening concert last night was of folk orientation. Richie Havens opened the bill but few people seemed to notice which performer was on stage.

Today's acts—set to run from 2 p.m. to 2 a.m.—include the Who, Jefferson Airplane and Janis Joplin. Tomorrow the billing includes Jimi Hendrix and Crosby, Stills and Nash.

Performers were being ferried to the site by helicopter from hotels in nearby Liberty. Most of the fans, however, had no shelter. A carnival-like atmosphere prevailed as they prepared to sleep in the open fields.

There were some tents set up but most of the youths simply unrolled a bedroll and turned in.

Those who could afford the $25 nightly rate at nearby hotels and motels were not much better off because of the difficulty of travel.

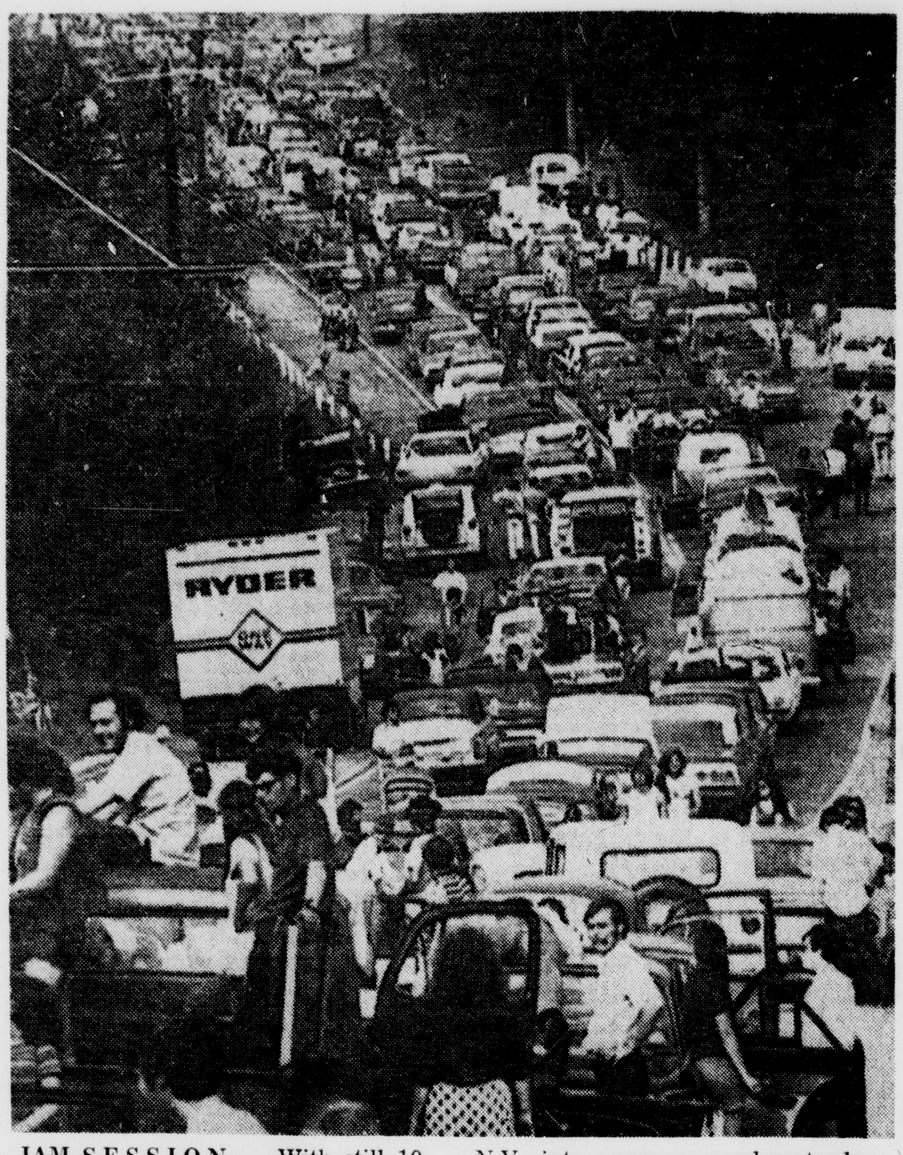
Facilities were meager. Portable toilets had been set up and six wells dug to provide running water, but there was no shelter available at the site.

There were long lines at the mobile food centers even though many of the young people had packed in their own food. One commune was passing out a free gruel made of peanuts, oatmeal, raisins and sunflower seeds.

There seemed little likelihood that the massive jam would break until the festival ended.

Word spread quickly when the producers asked early today for cars to turn around and go home.

"No chance," said one youth shaking his head. "This is where it's at."



JAM SESSION — With still 10 miles to go, rock music fans find traffic at a frustrating standstill in the Catskill Mountain area of New York. Converting the normally two-way highway near White Lake, N.Y., into a one-way road yesterday was still not the complete solution to handle an estimated 200,000 incoming festival fans. (AP Wirephoto)

HAWAIIAN SANCTUARY

Military Resisters Form Church Village

HONOLULU (AP) — A small village of young people has formed within the grounds of a church where 18 young U.S. servicemen, disgruntled with the Vietnam War and the military have taken sanctuary.

"We are finding a greater security in the increasing numbers. The esprit de corps is tremendous," said Rev. Robert Warner, leader of the group of servicemen and their supporters who are in the Church of the Crossroads.

Three more servicemen joined the group yesterday.

"We're getting organized now and have our own little community going. We're even getting out a newspaper now," said Warner, an instructor in religion at the University of Hawaii.

The protest, sanctioned by church officials, began Aug. 7 when Airman Basic Louis D. Parry, 21, of San Jose, announced that he could "no longer cooperate with the military."

By yesterday the group included seven soldiers, six sailors, four Marines and Parry, the only Air Force man.

The central area of sanctuary has been the church's chapel, which seats more than 100. Fifty to 75 young people including the servicemen have been sleeping, eating, playing and studying there.

The church, near the University of Hawaii, is affiliated with the United Church of Christ and has said it supports "men who for conscience sake must resist what they believe to be the immoral activities of their own government." The Resistance, an antidraft group, is supporting the servicemen.

The military so far has officially ignored them.

Warner said the young people spend the time singing, dancing and carrying out study projects on the Vietnam War, U.S. foreign policy and political science.

Police Seek Father Of Chained Boy

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A federal fugitive warrant was issued yesterday for the father of a 6-year-old boy who was found chained in a wooden crate at a desert commune near Blythe, Riverside County.

Warrants for four other persons who were living at the commune at the time also were issued.

Anthony Saul Gibbons was found July 27 in a wooden box near a livestock pen at the ranch. The child told authorities he was kept there for 56 days as punishment for setting a fire at the commune. His story was supported by his 11-year-old sister, Tammy.

James H. Gibbons, 37, a former Los Angeles County probation officer, and the others are accused of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution.

The five persons sought are among 19, including the boy's mother, indicted by the Riverside County Grand Jury for felony child abuse.

A Virginia Hitches Ride In Police Car

WAUKESHA, Wis. (UPI)—The little old lady from Duluth said she didn't mind hitchhiking the 90 miles to a Seventh-Day Adventist rally at Portage, Wis.

Sheriff's deputies, however, had different ideas when they found the woman, identified only as Virginia, looking lost and confused by the side of the road.

She wore a pink and red checkered dress, a small flowered hat and white leather boots reaching almost to her knees. She said she had stopped in Oconomowoc, Wis., to buy the boots, specially fitted with braces for her legs.

The deputies took Virginia to the courthouse, where Sgt. James Carroll talked to her.

"We can't let you hitchhike 90 miles at night, Virginia. You might get hurt."

Virginia looked even more perplexed. "Doesn't the Lord protect us?"

"I wish he did, Virginia, but people get killed every day."

"Well, don't you all drive cars? Can't you give me a ride to my camp? They're going to set up a tent for me."

Carroll telephoned authorities in Jefferson, Dane and Columbia counties and arranged for sheriffs' cars to meet at the county lines to ferry Virginia to her destination.

Columbia County authorities said yesterday Virginia reached the camp without mishap.

When completed, the interstate highway system will have cost more than $62-billion, based on today's prices.

William Goetz, Top Film Producer, Succumbs At 66

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Motion picture mogul William Goetz, who produced such film greats as "Sayonara," "The Man from Laramie," "Song of Bernadette" and "The Glenn Miller Story," is dead at 66.

The movie maker, who was of the same era as Louis B. Mayer, Harry Cohn, Samuel Goldwyn, Cecil B. DeMille and the Warner brothers, died in his Holmby Hills home yesterday after a long illness.

A retiring, quiet man, Goetz' career began in the days when studios held absolute power over their stars. He was the first producer to sign a profit-sharing agreement with a star, Jimmy Stewart. The practice is the norm in modern Hollywood.

The screen's biggest stars appeared in pictures Goetz produced or supervised.

They included Fredric March and Constance Bennett in "Cellini"; Jennifer Jones in "Song of Bernadette"; Tyrone Power in "Crash Dive"; Alice Faye in "Hello, Frisco, Hello"; Claudette Colbert in "The Egg and I"; Olivia De Havilland in "Dark Mirror"; James Stewart in "The Man from Laramie"; Gary Cooper in "They Came to Cordura"; Donald O'Connor and Glen Ford in "Cry for Happy"; Marlon Brando in "Sayonara"; and Joan Crawford in "Autumn Leaves."

Goetz made more than 100 movies. He had served as vice president and a director at 20th Century Fox, and formed a major independent company, International Pictures, in 1941. The studio later became Universal - International, and Goetz was head of production.

Total number of vehicles that day was 22,764, compared to the last high of 21,703 on June 16, 1968.

Erotic Film Patron Raids Are Halted

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A federal judge has ordered San Francisco police not to arrest patrons attending theaters where erotic movies are shown.

Some 19 embarrassed persons were arrested this week in police raids on two sex film theaters.

U.S. Dist. Judge Alfonso J. Zirpoli stressed that the temporary restraining order he issued yesterday is limited to patrons, and would not prevent the arrest of the theater owner or operator.

The judge set next Friday for a hearing on the matter.

Zirpoli acted in a suit brought by the American Civil Liberties Union on behalf of James Mitchell, 25, operator of the O'Farrell theater, scene of one of this week's raids.

The suit charged state laws regarding obscenity and "visiting a disorderly house" were unconstitutional.

After the court action, Mitchell said, "We are open for business and we will stay open.

"Our customers are protected even if we aren't. But we'll take our chances."

Mitchell was arrested July 25 on charges of showing an obscene film. But with some 27 theaters in San Francisco showing erotic movies, police decided to change tactics and arrest the customers.

Reagan Pens $134 Million School Aid Bill With Some 'Reluctance'

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California schools were assured today of an additional $134 million in state assistance after Gov. Ronald Reagan signed "with some reluctance" the extra aid measure.

Reagan stressed yesterday in a statement announcing his signature of the measure that the amount was a one-shot boost in the regular school aid program which totals $1.3 billion.

"I must warn the school districts of California that at least a portion of the increased level of state support contained in this bill will not, in all probability, be available in 1970-71," he said.

The governor cautioned school administrators to heed this and plan their next year's school budgets accordingly.

The bill by Assemblyman Victor Veysey, R-Brawley, cleared the Legislature in the closing days of the session. It represents a compromise worked out between the two houses.

It includes $95 million contained in the current $6.2 billion state budget, plus another $40 million in anticipated surplus money from last fiscal year.

If the surplus exceeds $40 million, the first $5 million will be pumped into ghetto schools for disadvantaged children. Anything over that up to $30 million will be allocated for junior college construction.

However, it will be late fall before the state can accurately estimate how much the surplus will be.

The measure also includes $8 million for special reading programs.

The bill also extends for two more years the legal requirement that voters approve any school tax rate increase. The provision was due to expire July 1, 1971.

However, another bill on Reagan's desk by Assemblyman Robert Burke, R-Huntington Beach, would make permanent the requirement of voter approval for all school tax overrides by eliminating the expiration date.

The governor has not said whether he will sign the Burke bill. If he does, it would supersede the provision in the Veysey measure since the last piece of legislation signed is the law.

Reagan said he "broke past precedent" this year by requesting $105 million extra in school aid and later agreeing to up the amount to $120 million. But lawmakers did him one better and increased the sum another $14 million.

The governor said he had urged the Legislature to commit the one-time surplus to other purposes such as classroom construction, but noted his suggestion was ignored.

"They (awlmakers) saw fit to use some of these funds to increase the regular support formula," he said. "Therefore, today I must make the same plea to the school districts of California—to commit, to the extent possible, these one-time funds to one-time purposes."

Deadline For Pesticide Sales

Information released to the Independent-Journal this week by County Agricultural Commissioner R. Allan Ballard on the use of pesticides containing DDT or DDD was erroneous.

A story in Wednesday's Independent-Journal quoted Ballard as saying that the use of such pesticides in home gardens would be banned after Jan. 1.

In a clarification issued yesterday, Ballard said that persons may buy DDT or DDD-bearing pesticides for garden use until Dec. 31, 1970, by which time retail stores must have disposed of their stocks.

Burton Maps Plans To Save Fort Point

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Fort Point, an aging Civil War era Army fort that never fired a shot in anger, is the object of a new drive aimed at its preservation.

"This historic fortress must be preserved—and if anybody wants to tear it down, it will be over my dead body," declared Rep. Phillip Burton, D-Fifth District, on a tour of the fort yesterday.

Burton is the author of a bill to designate Fort Point a national historic site and authorize $2.6 million over a five year period for its restoration.

"The money would allow the fort to be restored as it was a century ago," Burton aisd

Retired Army Maj. Herbert Batz, vice president of the Fort Point Museum Association, was enthusiastic about the chances of the bill's passage. He also said the interest of youth in the old structure "restores your faith in America."

"The young people realize what this thing called heritage means after they visit Fort Point," he said, adding that 164,000 persons had visited the structure under the shadows of structure in the last 16 months.

Churchmen Attack Black Manifesto

SEATTLE (UPI) — About 8,000 church members meeting here for the five-day General Assembly of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) were asked last night to reject the "black racism" of the black manifesto submitted by James Forman.

Throughout the day, attacks were heard on the black leader's demands for $500 million in reparations from the churches and synagogues. Bishop Gerald Kennedy of Los Angeles made the sharpest criticism of the day.

"Forman doesno't know any more about the church than a rabbit," he said during a question-and-answer period. "We don't owe him a nickel and I'm not going to pay reparations for the actions of my forefathers."

The demand in question stemmed from an April 26 National Black Economic Development Conference in Detroit. Forman, former national chairman of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, headed that conference.

The church's general board has gone on record as opposed to the manifesto and urged members to put more than $30 million into church programs designed to help solve urban and racial problems over the next four years.

In other first-day business, the General Assembly elected Rev. Forrest D. Haggard, Overland Park, Kan., as president of the National Evangelistic Association of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ)

Nonconforming Use Problem On Agenda

The San Anselmo Planning Commission will discuss the non-conforming multiple family use of property in single family residential districts at its 8 p.m. meeting Monday in the city hall.

Commissioners will also discuss an application from Lani L. Waller for a use permit for living quarters secondary to commercial use at his painting and sculpturing studio at 1525 San Anselmo Avenue.

Plans For Downtown Tiburon To Be Eyed

Four master plans for the development of downtown Tiburon, submitted to the city by various planners and interested residents during the past four years, will be reviewed by the Tiburon planning commission at 8:30 p.m. Monday in city hall.

Planning Director Wayne E. Moody, in a written report, will outline the history of the search for an acceptable downtown plan and will present a brief analysis of each of the four plans studied by the city — Callister and Payne plan, Gatter plan, lagoon plan and Buskirk-Noble plan.

On Sept. 4, 1968, the city council adopted the development policies of the Gatter plan but submitted the plan map to the planning commission for further study, particularly with reference to the then newly submitted lagoon paln.

In April of this year a fourth plan, this one by Philip K. Buskirk and H. Morgan Noble, was submitted to the city and referred to the planning commission for study and recommendation.

In his report, Moody will recommend that the planning commission and city council make policy decisions on these four questions before adopting any one or portions of the four plans:

1. — Elimination of a new Tiburon Boulevard through the heart of the undeveloped area.

2. — Designation of a recreational-open space corridor through the heart of downtown, acting as a common complement to new residential development on one side, and intensive busintsses on the other and linking other areas surrounding the downtown with a pathway system.

3. — Provision for construction of as much business as possible over parking areas and development of pedestrian-level shops on terraces above the parking.

4. — Provision for a minimum of 20 per cent of all downtown housing to be developed for moderate income families and the elderly, with appropriate density bonuses as necessary.

After Sept. 1st, will move to a new, larger location in the RED HILL Shopping Center San Anselmo

Most home buyers insist on Oak Floors, even with wall-to-wall carpeting. This enables them to change their room decoration to accent rugs when the carpeting gets worn and shabby, or needs replacement as a result of damage. Oak floors also insure higher resale values . . . make homes more salable than ones with carpeting laid directly over concrete or plywood.

Rather than furnish carpeting with your homes, doesn't it make more sense to provide a permanent floor of solid Oak and let the owners choose their own floor covering . . . in colors to match their furnishings and personal tastes?

Both you and the buyer come out ahead when you use Oak floors in your homes and apartments. Think it over.

Offers Far Between For Alcatraz

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

SAN FRANCISCO — For rent: One 22-acre island in scenic San Francisco Bay. Main building sleeps 315 persons in maximum security. No water or electricity. Price: $1,800 a month.

With real estate like that on its hands, neither the federal government nor the city of San Francisco has had much luck finding a prospective developer for Alcatraz Island, once the home of the meanest and most difficult convicts in the federal prison system.

Since 1963 when the last prisoner was removed for reasons of economy, "the Rock" has been abandoned except for the occasional visits of a federal caretaker and scores of pelicans which nest among the fast-decaying walls.

Officially, Alcatraz is for sale as surplus government property. Unofficially, San Francisco plans to buy the island on the installment plan for $1 million and lease it to a private developer for the cost of its monthly payments.

So far, only one man has come up with a firm offer to redevelop the island. He is Texas millionaire Lamar Hunt, one of the founders of the American Football League and son of H. L. Hunt.

The most spectacular aspect of Hunt's plan is the construction of a 364-foot tower topped by a replica of the Columbia space vehicle used by the Apollo 11 astronauts.

Hunt said the tower would be the exact height of the Apollo 11 capsule with its Saturn booster. The Columbia replica, however, would be "four to five times" the size of the actual capsule to allow more people to get in it at one time for a "magnificent, 360-degree view of the bay area."

The monument, called "Apollon," would tower over an underground "living museum showing the history of our space program." A plaza surrounding the Apollon would feature "life-size statues of astronauts, scientists and administrators of the American space effort."

Hunt estimates the cost of the monument, museum and plaza at about $5 million. Later projects would include restoration of the prison which would be open for "dignified and informative" tours and creation of a historically accurate reproduction of "San Francisco —1890."

The millionaire Texan's proposal has not been acted upon officially by the San Francisco Board of Supervisors.

Although Hunt has promised to landscape and protect the basic silhouette of the island, he promised the prison would not glorify the past and there will be "no wax figures" of famous inmates as proposed by some interested parties.

Whoever takes on the task of developing Alcatraz for some public purpose faces a monumental job, and not everyone is for it.

"Let's leave it alone," says Mortimer Fleishhacker Jr., a member of the city planning commission. "I've been looking at it 60 years and it doesn't bother me at all. We don't need a new chamber of horrors or an inaccessible park. I don't want a Texas statue—we've got a lighthouse there already."

Questions On Fairfax's Future Vary

Questions ranging from merging Fairfax with another city to an individual's ability to relate to Fairfax are included in a questionnaire to be mailed to residents next week.

Responses to the questionnaire will be used as a base for the second Fairfax Congress for Community Progress to be held at noon Oct. 11 at Manor School.

The congress committee has asked questionnaires be returned by Aug. 30.

Other questions include: "Is Fairfax getting its money's worth in city government and services? Would you like to see some services combined with those of other cities or the county? Would you be willing to serve on a city committee or commission?

"What would be a good recreation and meeting place in Fairfax? What kind of Fairfax would you like to see?"

There are also questions on business, schools and parks and recreation, tourism and other topics, and plenty of room for comments on the city.

Table Grape Growers Ask $75 Million

FRESNO (UPI)—A group of California grape growers have filed a $75 million amended antitrust suit against the United Farm Workers Organizing Committee (UFWOC) and three other unions.

The action, filed Thursday in federal district court, was first entered July 3, but was dismissed a month later by Judge M. D. Crocker with the understanding an amended suit would be filed later. In dismissing the original suit, Crocker said there were insufficient legal grounds for action.

The amended suit includes 13 additional table grape growers as plaintiffs, bringing the number to 95.

Added as defendants were the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen Local 746 in Chicago, the Retail Clerks International Association Local 1500 in New York, the Meat Cutters Local 342 in New York, and UFWOC representatives in New York, Chicago and Boston.

Judge Crocker signed an authorization permitting the immediate taking of depositions or legal statements from top officers of the three unions.

The suit charges Cesar Chavez' UFWOC, an AFL-CIO affiliate, with conspiring with retail stores to keep grapes off the market.

The union last summer organized an international consumer-oriented boycott of table grapes grown by California farmers who refuse to negotiate with the union.

Growers admit the boycott has hurt their business. The 95 plaintiffs, claiming the boycott activities resulted in $25 million damage, asked a triple payment. The suit contends the alleged conspiracy violates the Sherman Antitrust Act.

According to attorneys for the Central California Farmers Commiteee Inc., of Dinuba, the Chicago and New York unions were listed as defendants because their members have refused to handle table grapes or "do any work" if their employers buy the grapes.

The number of feathers on most song birds ranges from 1,500 to 3,000.

★ ABOUT MARIN ★

MILL VALLEY

Mill Valley has a feeling of the European Alps. . . . Its village is safe for children day or night. . . . And we who live in Mill Valley boast about evening walks in the redwoods or on Mount Tamalpais along streams that are still running with cool refreshing water. And yet we're only minutes from downtown San Francisco. We have a large real estate office in Mill Valley where we keep up-to-the-minute lists of Mill Valley's homes and lots that are for sale. Our office is on the right just beyond the high school (and next to Crocker-Citizens Bank). Come by — we have lists of used homes, and in fact we're building new homes here too! See Mill Valley real estate with

KENT WOODLANDS

Offers spectacular views, prime climate and commute and is one of Marin's four finest addresses. Kent Woodlands was planned for privacy and protection . . . with only one entrance for 450 homes affording maximum security. All building and subdivision restrictions are carefully enforced. It is a beautiful place to live. We have a real estate office opposite the Kent Woodlands gates. There we post every home and lot that is for sale (with their prices) on a wall map. We invite you to come in and see what is now for sale in Kent Woodlands.

SAN RAFAEL

With all of Marin to choose from, the Mission Fathers selected San Rafael for the site of their Mission . . . they had an eye for property. Here is Marin's greatest complex of communities in our warmest climate . . . and in San Rafael we have every choice of price and amenity . . . from budget homes in Santa Venetia to English Tudor mansions in the Dominican. Our office in San Rafael is just off the freeway, and our exclusive San Rafael home listings range all the way from $25,950 to $197,500! FRANK HOWARD ALLEN is known in Marin for their courtesy, so stop by and see us, please. Take San Rafael's first exit and on 4th turn rifht one block to Grand. We've been on this corner for ten years.

"TIBURON"

. . . means shark in Spanish but to the home buyer it means Marin's most spectacular views and commuter convenience. Tiburon has Marin's only ferry service affording a small group of executives a real kick out of morning and evening bay rides. Tiburon offers fine schools and a surprising variety of prices in new and used homes and still a wide choice of building sites. Our office in Tiburon is on the non-business side of town, right on the water, looking at the Golden Gate Bridge. (You go thru town and past the old ferry slip to find us.) We keep a wall map up-to-date there with every property for sale in Tiburon (we also keep a coffee pot going) and while you're looking at our real estate map, your children can walk over to Elephant Rock where Tiburon asks "no adults, please." So plan to stop by this weekend at FRANK HOWARD ALLEN's Tiburon office . . .

If You Could Have Seen

the joy in our eyes, then these words could go unsaid. This is one of the most charming, sturdily built, Bavarian chalet-styled modified "A"-frame homes that we have seen (3 bdrms., 2 baths plus den). The view windows are like picture frames encasing the beauty of natural wooded privacy accented by Yosemite-sized boulders and gay splashes of colorful fruit & flowers. The customized all-electric kitchen is unusual and warm with rdwd. paneling & surprise quality extras. About 12 min. to G.G. toll. Alternate Plans For Novato Pool To Be Presented

An alternate design for the spray pool and small boat lagoon will be presented to the Novato Parks and Recreation Advisory Commission at 8 p.m. Monday in the Novato Community House.

The Novato City Council Tuesday night rejected the one bid of $53,333 for the spray pool, for which it has budgeted $33,000.

Ribera and Sue, landscape architects who designed the park, will have an alternate design for the pool, according to parks and recreation director Edward W. Adams.

The commission will go over the details of an agreement with the North Marin County Water District on the water service to the park.

Adams will give a progress report on the park.

The commission will review park priorities.

Second Strike At Port Of Stockton

STOCKTON (AP) — The Port of Stockton was struck yesterday for the second time in the past month in a jurisdictional dispute between longshoremen and Teamsters.

Some 200 longshoremen picketed warehouses, objecting to a work contract between Teamsters and Max-Pack, Inc., which leased two warehouses from the port.

Longshoremen in all port warehouses walked out but dock operations were unaffected.

Lab Report Delays Charges On Woman

Pending a laboratory report, no complaint was issued yesterday in Marin Municipal Court against Patricia Betty Knox, 34, of Terra Linda, who was arrested Tuesday on suspicion of having a dangerous drug.

A highway patrolman said she tried to palm one and a half white tablets as she was entering the sheriff's office after being arrested on traffic warrants.

Nixon, Lodge Will Discuss Withdrawals

SAN CLEMENTE (UPI)—President Richard M. Nixon, moving towards a decision later this month on another Vietnam troop pullout, was expected to meet here next week with chief Paris peace negotiator Henry Cabot Lodge.

Lodge, with little advance notice, flew to Boston yesterday and was expected to meet with Secretary of State William P. Rogers in Washington on Monday.

No reason was given for Lodge's return after he met with enemy negotiators at the 30th session in Paris and warned that stepped up enemy attacks in Vietnam could upset the American withdrawal timetable.

WEEKEND DISRUPTED

No date was set for Nixon's meeting with Lodge. He had a relaxed weekend planned with more swimming, golfing and strolling on the beach of his magnificent walled-in Spanish style estate facing the Pacific.

Last night,t he President and his close friend, Charles G. (Bebe) Rebozo of Key Biscayne, Fla., took an hour and one-half drive down Pacific Coast Highway to Oceanside, and returned to his villa for a late dinner with his wife Pat and daughters Tricia and Julie Eisenhower, and Julie's husband David.

Earlier in the day Nixon had spent more than four hours on the golf course at Camp Pendleton with a foursome including Rogers, Atty. Gen. John Mitchell, and his son-in-law.

DEMONSTRATION SET

A quiet weekend was planned but the White House made it clear it "was aware" of anti-Vietnam War demonstrations scheduled to take place in front of the Nixon estate tomorrow although a permit has not been granted for the protest march. The Western White House had no comment on the peace action council pickets.

The Chief Executive has a busy week ahead with an unprecedented state visit to San Francisco by South Korean President Park Chung Hee Thursday and Friday. Nixon will be meeting with President Park at the St. Francis Hotel where he will also host a black tie dinner in Park's honor.

Former President Lyndon B. Johnson had state visitors at his LBJ ranch in Texas but there was no known previous known state visit to San Francisco.

On Labor Day, Sept. 1, Nixon plans to fly to Colorado Springs, Colo., on a one day trip to formally address the national governors conference.

And he is sending Gov. Ronald Reagan to Manila Sept. 8 to represent him at the ceremonies opening the new Philippines cultural center.

Fire Blamed On Defective Flue

EUREKA (AP) — A defective stove flue may have caused a fire which killed two children and burned another critically yesterday, fire officials report.

Killed were Brooke Carlson, 2, and Allison Carlson, 11 months. Their 7-year-old sister, Shelleen, was in critical condition at Trinity Hospital.

The blaze, in nearby Blue Lake, may have been started by a problem in a stove flue, said Fire Chief Martin Jackson.

A teen-aged sister, Yvonne, and an uncle, John McCash, 30, escaped from a second story window before the burning house collapsed.

The youngsters' father, Willard, was working in the woods when the fire erupted. His wife was treated for minor burns and shock.

Guard In Fair Condition After Attack

San Quentin guard Leo Naranjo, 31, of Sacramento, was reported in fair condition at Marin General Hospital today where he was under observation for a possible head injury after being slugged by a prisoner yesterday.

Another correctional officer, Walter J. Del Rose, 45, of 1099 Rosalia, Novato, also was struck by the prisoner, Associate Warden James W. L. Park reported, but apparently did not require hospitalization.

The prisoner accused of the assault is Tommie Lee Walker, 24, of Los Angeles, who was committed to the California Youth Authority in 1961 and since then has been sentenced twice to terms of six months to three years for battery on a correctional officer.

Park said Naranjo and Del Rose found Walker on the fifth tier of the prison and when they took him back to the first tier to lock him in his cell, he turned and swung at the officers.

Cause Of Fatal Childhood Disease Found

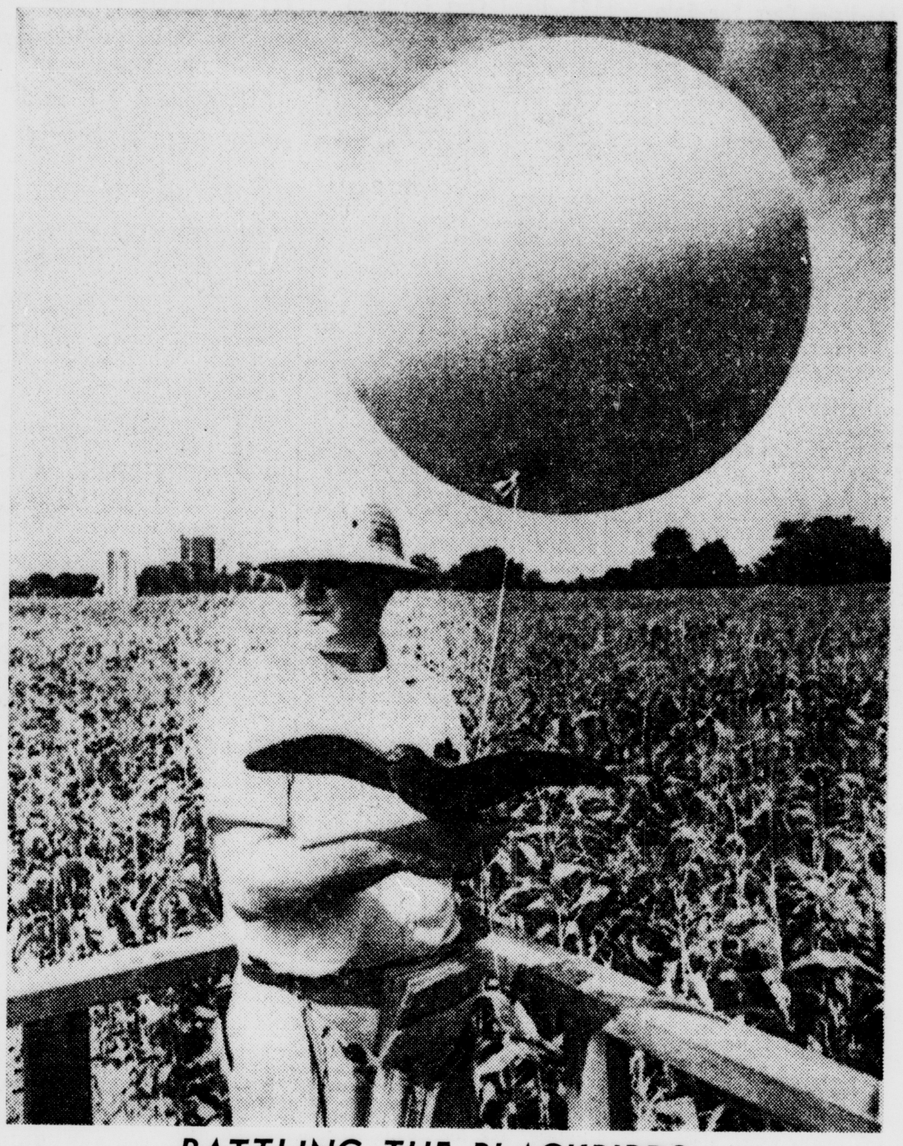
LA JOLLA (upi)—The cause of the rare, fatal childhood disorder known as Tay-Sachs disease has been discovered by two researchers at the University of California at San Diego School of Medicine.

Dr. John S. O'Brien, principal investigator, and Shintaro Okada, both of the Department of Neurosciences, announced their discovery yesterday.

The researchers found the disease is caused by the absence of a specific enzyme, Hexosaminidase A, in the brain. Tay-Sachs (TSD) is a genetic disease transmitted to children whose parents carry the gene for the disease, DMR. O'Brien said.

"If an infant gets the gene from only one of his parents, he will be healthy, but if he receives the gene from both parents, he will be a TSD baby and live only a few years," O'Brien said.

He said TSD babies appear normal until they are about 6 months old. Until that time they look healthy and have pale and pink translucent skin.



BATTLING THE BLACKBIRDS

In an effort to scare away crop-scavenging blackbirds, Dr. Lorne Donovan prepares to release an imitation hawk suspended from a helium-filled balloon. HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Sluggish Thyroid Condition May Be Mistaken As Neurosis

VAN DELLEN

A sluggish thyroid (hypothyroidism) often is overlooked, especially when vague manifestations exist. Some sufferers have been dubbed neurotics and in middle-aged women, the menopause frequently is blamed for all complaints. In addition, many symptoms are not recognized by the individual until brought to his attention by members of the family or friends.

A poorly functioning thyroid must be considered whenever a person is constantly tired and finds it difficult to keep warm during the winter. Dry skin and coarse or falling hair are other clues as well as sluggish mental activity and lack of ambition.

SPEECH MAY BE halting when the tongue is thick. The face and eyelids appear puffy; the pulse is slow, the body temperature low, and perspiration scanty. Daily headaches, menstrual disorders, and infertility may not be associated with thyroid deficiency; yet when the gland is found to be less active than normal, relief often follows the use of thyroid extract.

Various tests determine thyroid activity. The serum protein bound iodine (PBI) test is popular because it is not influenced by nervousness, and can be done at any time of the day. In addition, there is no need to withhold breakfast. A blood sample is removed at the physician's office and sent to the laboratory.

ONE DRAWBACK to PBI testing is that results will be distorted if the person has taken an iodinated substance within four weeks. These include gargles, ointments, swabs, toothpaste, and suppositories as well as the ingestion of kelp, vitamin-mineral combinations, potassium iodide, Lugol's solution, or related medicines. The iodinated substances used in X-ray studies of the gallbladder and kidneys also make the test unreliable for weeks or months. Seafood or iodized salt does not have this effect.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

POISON IVY

P. G. writes: Can poison ivy be spread from one person to another?

REPLY

Poison ivy is caused by contact with the sap in the plant (urushiol). Another person can get the disease if he touches the sticky substance while it is still on the skin, glove, or clothing of the contaminated individual. But once the rash develops or the skin has been cleansed, the disorder cannot be passed to another. Occasionally it develops after petting a dog that has run through the brush. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on poison ivy.

NOSEBLEED

E. R. writes: Is it good for a person with high blood pressure to have frequent nosebleeds?

REPLY

Nosebleeds do no harm, provided they are not massive and anemia does not develop. It is better to have a blood vessel rupture in the nose than in the brain.

Today's Health Hint — Always drive defensively.

Young Caretaker Threatens To Sue Over Arrest In Murder Probe

LOS ANGELES (UPI)--A young caretaker questioned in the mass murder of actress Sharon Tate and four others at her Benedict Canyon estate threatened yesterday to sue for false arrest.

William Garretson, 19, told newsmen he went shopping for groceries, entertained a friend and stayed awake till dawn writing letters and listening to music the night of the massacre.

The victims were the pregnant actress; her former fiance, hairstylist Jay Sebring; Polish film producer Voityck Frokowsky; coffee heiress Abigail Folger, and Steven Parent, Garretson's friend.

Garretson said he was unaware of the murders until police burst into his bedroom early Saturday and led him to the bodies of Frokowski and Miss Folger, lying on the lawn, and Parent, slumped over the wheel of his car.

Garretson said he was unable to recognize Parent because of the damage to his head from the bullets which killed him.

Police released Garretson Monday and have arrested no other suspects. Homicide detectives refused to confirm or deny published reports an informant who believes he knows the killers had given them the names of three possible suspects, including an aspiring young actor.

Garretson said he would sue the city for false arrest, false imprisonment, invasion of privacy and violaton of his Constitutional rights. He said he was not advised of his right to remain silent until several hours after his arrest.

The informant reportedly told police he was invited to the party at the home of Miss Tate and her film producer husband, Roman Polanski, the night of the murders. Polanski was in London att he time.

The informant, a Polish emigre who knew Frokowski, said he worked late that night and never went to the Polanski home. He reportedly believes Frokowski was the prime target in the mass murder because of his involvement with narcotics distributors.

The Los Angeles Times reported today that detectives had been guarding the informant since Sunday, when he first spoke with investigators.

Police hace declined to comment on reports that drugs were found in Sebring's car and that a "commercial" quantity of drugs was found in Miss Folger's bedroom.

Police have been checking every rumor in the bizarre case, which involved four members of a social set described as "rich hippies." It is believed that Parent, 18, was unacquainted with the other victims and may have been killed when he saw something as he left the estate after visiting Garretson.

Garretson, the only person found alive on the premises early Saturday, was held for questioning over the weekend and released after he voluntarily underwent a lie detector test. Police said there was no evidence against him.

Council Reviews Officer Ejection

The Petaluma City Council will consider a resolution at its meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday to remove City Mgr. Robert H. Meyer from the council rostrum.

Councilmen Phillip L. Joerger and Robert H. Brunner, who introduced the resolution, seek to reduce Meyer's influence on policy making decisions by placing him at the city staff table during council sessions.

The council will hear an appeal from Arthur J. Hanson, owner of Scrappy Jim's Auto Wreckers, of a planning commission decision to revoke his use permit because of failure to comply with conditions of the permit.

Rohnert Park Council To Review Homes Map

The Rohnert Park City Council will meet at 7 p.m. Mondav to review the tentative map for the new Young America Homes subdivision in the El Colegio area and plans for a mobile home park on Country Club Drive.

The council will also review revenue expected for the 1969-70 year and set the tax rate.

Today is Saturday, Aug. 16, the 228th day of 1969 with 137 to follow.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter. The morning stars are Venus and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1896 gold was discovered in the Klondike region of Canada's Yukon territory.

In 1923 steelworkers hailed the decision by Carnegie Steel for setting up an 8-hour work day.

In 1948 Babe Ruth died in New York City of cancer.

In 1965 all 30 persons aboard were killed when a plane crashed and sank in Lake Michigan.

A thought for the day: Socrates said, "False words are not only evil in themselves, but they infect the soul as well."

Tornadoes Hit Family Twice

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — Walter Gneiser and his family decided to find a safer place to live after a 1965 tornado leveled their Fridley, Minn., home. Now they're not sure they made the right move. A second twister demolished their split-level home recently. Gneiser, an engineer, says his co-workers have calculated the possibility of such a coincidence as one in 20 billion. His insurance company hopes they're right.

The firm State Farm Fire and Casualty paid $27,633 for the damage caused by the first tornado and estimates the latest loss at about $19,000.

THREE TRICKS

West opened the queen of spades, and the defenders began by taking three tricks in that suit. A shift to diamonds then put dummy in with the ace of diamonds.

Declarer naturally led the low trump from dummy, and East played the king of trumps. South won with the ace of trumps and thought things over.

While South thinks, let's see what would happen if East played the ten on the first round of trumps. South would win with the queen and would then lead the ace of trumps, dropping the king.

LAST TRUMP

Dummy's jack would draw the last trump, and South would claim the rest of the tricks, scoring the game and rubber.

East's play of the king of trumps gave South a problem. If this were a singleton king, West had started with four trumps to the ten. In that case South could avoid the loss of a trump trick only by taking a finesse with dummy's nine.

CREDIBILITY QUESTION

South wondered whether to believe or disbelieve the play of the king of trumps. South would have faced no problem if East had made the normal play of the ten of trumps, but he did have a sizable problem after the play of the king of trumps.

After deep thought, South tried a finesse with dummy's nine of hearts, losing his contract. I must confess that I also would have gone wrong. If an opponent is clever enough to make plays of this kind without hesitation he can talk me out of a trick. (It will not be a total loss, after all; I'll still be able to write an article about it.)

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes.

You hold:

♠ A 8 5 2
♥ K 10
♦ J 9 7 6 2
♣ 10 8.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one spade.

Show your four-card major suit rather than bid 1-no-trump. If partner had opened with one club, you would gladly bid one diamond, showing your five-card suit.

Ecumenical Church School Begins Monday

Six Marin churches will join in an eight-day ecumenical summer vacation church school, beginning Monday at the First Presbyterian Church in San Rafael.

Participating will be the First Methodist Church, St. Paul's Episcopal Church, St. Luke Presbyterian Church, Church of the Redeemer (Episcopal), First Presbyterian Church, all of San Rafael, and the Fairfax Community Church (United Church of Christ).

A highlight of the two-week, Monday through Thursday sessions, which will run from 9:30 a.m. to noon, will be 15-minute morning worship services conducted by the churches' participating ministers. They will be held in the host church's main sanctuary. Guitarists Melinda Leoncini and Bryan Park will provide special music.

Ministers of the churches are Revs. Phillip Whitmer, First Methodist; Hugh Hardin Jr., St. Paul's; Richard Willimington, Community; Angus Dun, Redeemer; Henry Kent, St. Luke, and Dr. Charles Griffin, First Presbyterian.

Other special features:

Each class will be equipped with two team teachers — each from a different faith.

Recreation under direction of Roger Page, which will be conducted by junior and senior high school students on the football field of the San Rafael Military Academy, near the church which is located at Fifth and E streets.

Daily swimming at the military academy pool, supervised by senior life saving certificate holders.

Members of the Guide Dogs for the Blind will show a film on how dogs are raised and prepared for their work.

The school is limited for children from kindergarten age through the sixth grade.

ENGLAND'S LOURDES

Linking Of Medicine, Religion

By GODFREY ANDERSON

GROOMBRIDGE, England (AP) — It isn't a bit like Lourdes but the same sort of people are there. They come on their aluminium crutches, bent over wooden canes, huddled in wheelchairs, with faces stamped by suffering and eyes still lit by hope.

This is Burrswood, Church of England center of divine healing—the place where they tell you miracles do sometimes happen.

It's little more than 40 miles from bustling London, in 230 acres of idyllic peace in rural Kent County. People come here from all over Britain, Europe and even America to seek a cure which some will say they find.

Here medicine and religion work side by side. Burrswood itself, a gray stone mansion, once an English stately home, is a 42-bed clinic where the doctors and nurses rule. The little Church of Christ the Healer, built beside it, is where the sick undergo a priest's laying-on of hands.

Husbands and wives, whole families, join hands as they kneel together before the priest. Others come to seek by proxy aid for some patient too sick to make the journey. Before the gilded crucifix on the altar is a book of names—those to be prayed for.

In the spring and summer, people come by the coach-load for thrice-weekly healing services. Nine thousand came last year alone. At one recent service the congregation included a Negro couple, an Indian, two Swedes, a group of Asiatics. They represented Christian denominations from Roman Catholics to Pentecostals, those from other faiths and those with no faith at all.

"They all take something away with them—if only peace," says Rev. Garth Bawtree-Williams, Burrswood's resident chaplain.

"Sometimes, of course, no physical cure follows the laying-on of hands. But the person is made whole in his personality, so he can better accept his situation. I've never known anyone resentful because they were not healed."

Father Garth, now 68 and with two decades in the Church's healing ministry, says he was cured of blindness due to diabetes when another priest laid healing hands on him.

"That was what really brought me into the healing ministry," he said. "Of course, some priests are hostile; some doctors are against it. They say: 'Miracles don't happen.' But when one has happened to you and when you see them happening, there's no argument about it."

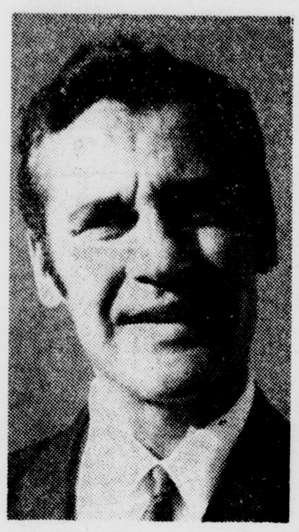
The Church of England has no elaborate means of checking claimed cures such as the Roman Catholic Church has in connection with Lourdes. But most of the bishops are sympathetic to the work done here and, even those with reservations preserve a carefully neutral attitude.

Dr. Edward Aubert is in charge of the medical end of Burrswood's partnership of religion and medicine. He gave up a flourishing practice on the offshore island of Guernsey to become warden and resident physician.

"I came to recognize," he says, "as most honest physicians quickly do, that there are limitations to orthodox medicine and what one can do for a patient. Even in this age of rapid technological advancement, there's a great deal to be done that it can't do."

Convinced that emotional problems lie at the root of most medical conditions, Dr. Aubert says, "You can't just cast aside the spiritual values which so often underlie illnesses."

Patients needing nursing and treatment are expected to pay about $75-$86 a week plus the cost of drugs prescribed for them. But there is a fund to help those who cannot pay such fees and a National Health Service doctor to write them free prescriptions.



TO ASSUME LEADERSHIP

Covenant Church Sets Summer Bible School

"Good News for Boys and Girls," will be the subject of the Marin Covenant Church's summer Bible school, which will be held for one week, beginning Aug. 25.

Highlight of the week will be the learning of a play which will be presented at the worship hour on Sunday, Sept. 7, as part of Rev. Gary R. Copeland's sermon, "Good News."

In order to aid transportation and instruction, the church will hold the school in five different neighborhood locations — Marinwood, Terra Linda, Ignacio and San Marin.

Parents who wish to enroll their children for classes, which will be conducted daily, 9:30 to 11:30 a.m., may do so by calling the church which is located in the Marinwood Community Center.

Major Topic Of Session: Social Issues

I-J Special Report

MINNEAPOLIS — The nature and extent of church involvement in social issues will be a primary topic of discussion at the U.S. Congress on Evangelism, according to Dr. Victor B. Nelson, a United Presbyterian minister who is executive secretary of the congress.

Nelson pointed out this week that one of the goals of the congress is to initiate "a vigorous attack upon the forces producing misery, inequity, emptiness, discrimination, and other evils in our society."

The congress will be held here Sept. 8-13. It promises to be the largest interdenominational evangelical conference in the nation's history.

"The program includes a special focus upon today's social problems," Nelson said, "And we are putting a major emphasis on youth and ethnic-group representation."

He predicted that delegates from some 100 American denominations would debate vigorously the relationship of biblical evangelism to contemporary problems.

"Churches have been tossing around the idea of renewal and relevance for a number of years now," he said. "We think it's time to seek to apply them."

Six major study papers have been commissioned. They are: "The Church and Conversion in a Day of Revolution," by Dr. Leighton Ford, an evangelist; "The Church and the Journey Inward" (having to do with personal conduct and the individual's devotional life), by Dr. Paul S. Rees, vice president of World Vison; "Evangelism and the Renewal in the Church," by Dr. Richard Halverson, a United Presbyterian minister; "Evangelism and Coming World Peace," by Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Oregon, and "Evangelism and the Journey Outward" (having to do with the church's missionary task), by Dr. Harold John Ockenga, president of Gordon College, Wenham, Mass.

Missionary To Alaska Will Speak

Experiences as a missionary from Natnek, Alaska, will be related at the 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. service Sunday at the Bethel Baptist Church in Novato, by Rev. Curtis Nestergard.

A native of Canada, Reverend Nestergard has served with the Arctic Missions, based in Anchorage, Alaska. Natnek is 285 miles from Anchorage and can be reached only by air.

He preaches in Natnek on Sunday morning and then flies across the Natnek river to hold service at South Natnek in the evening. Both to the Aleut Indians.

He will tell of building a church by volunteer help and the primitive living conditions there. Only recently did his family get running water in their house.

Awareness Gap

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — A survey taken by the Roman Catholic diocese here found that 43 per cent of Catholics in the area had never heard of the Second Vatican Council, the 1962-'65 meeting in Rome whose actions have revolutionized Catholic methods and thought.

Theologian Wins

BOSTON (AP) — Boston College, a Jesuit institution, has reversed its decision to drop Dr. Mary Daly, a theologian, from the faculty, after student demonstrations and other professors rallied to her support. Dr. Daly, author of "The Church and the Second Sex," claiming discrimination against women in the church, was promoted and granted full tenure at the college.

Jargon Of Churchmen Hurts Gospel's Cause

By LOUIS CASSELS
By U.P. International

People who share a common interest frequently fall into the habit of talking to each other in jargon—a sort of insiders' language which is meaningless to the uninitiated.

Sports fans do it; astronauts do it; theatrical people do it; soldiers do it—the list could go on and on.

Among the worst addicts of jargon, unfortunately, are ministers, theologians and laymen who attempt to speak to the world in the name of the church.

Since their avowed purpose is to spread the good news of the Gospel to all mankind, one might reasonably expect Christian leaders to take great pains to phrase their message in a way that everybody can understand.

Instead, they persist in using recondite terminology which is very meaningful to them but virtually unintelligible to people without a religious background.

Take, for example, the word "salvation." It is greatly cherished by evangelical Protestants. But as British Baptist leader George Beasley-Murray observed recently, "it raises a blank in the minds of most people outside the church."

The same is true, he said, of words such as "redemption" and "reconciliation," which Christians are wont to use in trying to describe the gift which God makes available to men through the life, death and resurrection of Jesus Christ.

Dr. Beasley-Murray pointed out that Jesus himself almost never used such words.

"He had a far simpler and more appealing word for what he was offering to men. He called it life."

There are many other churchy words which loom large in traditional Christian usage but which rarely if ever appear in the biblical record of Christ's own teaching. Among them are "grace," "sacrament," "conversion," "evangelism" and "penitence."

This is not to say that the ideas signified by such words are absent from Christ's teaching. On the contrary. But he was too good a communicator to rely on abstract nouns.

It is a remarkable thing that the simple little anecdotes Jesus used to convey profound truths about man and God to the people of Palestine 2,000 years ago have proved to be equally meaningful to people of every nation, every language, every culture and every subsequent age of history.

The contemporary church has an urgent need to emulate Jesus' example of plain speaking. The young people on whom the future depends are particularly repelled—turned off, as they would put it—by churchy jargon that says nothing to them.

The Gospel has not lost its power to move the hearts of men—when it is communicated to them in the same kind of vivid, everyday language that Jesus used. This is demonstrated by the phenomenal success of the American Bible Society's translation of the New Testament into idiomatic modern English.

Since its appearance 2½ years ago, the "Today's English Version" has become by far the best-selling book in the history of the world, with sales totaling about 16 million copies to date.

Abolish Sundays?

CHICAGO (AP) — With Sundays widely used for recreation rather than rest and worship, Dr. Leroy C. Hodapp, a Bloomton, Ind., Methodist leader, suggests in the weekly Christian Advocate that the church abandon its weekly worship custom, and substitute 10 or 15 "Christ-Days" per year in large centers of workship.

Graham Film

"The Restless Ones," a film highlighting the 1963 Bill Graham crusade in Los Angeles, will be shown at 7 p.m. tomorrow at the Marin Evangelical Free Church, which meets in the San Rafael Improvement Club, Fifth and H streets.

Ventriloquist To Be Crusade Leader

Harry Leacock of Turlock and his puppet pal Red will conduct a "kids crusade" at the Southern Marin Assembly of God Church, East Blithedale and Sycamore Avenues, beginning tomorrow for eight days.

The crusade will be kicked off tomorrow at both the 9:30 and 11 a.m. services. Nightly sessions will be held Tuesday through Friday, at 7 p.m. with Sunday, Aug. 24, billed as "Kids Sunday School Rally Day."

New Curriculum For Church School

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — After a 10-year, multi million-dollar project of writing, editing and publishing, the American Lutheran Church has completed an entirely new curriculum of parish education for its 4,906 congregations.

The newly readied courses, to go into use this fall, cover age levels from pre-school children to adults.

Jim Wilhelm scored first run for Toby's Truckers as S.F. catcher Bob Crosat dropped ball in this fourth inning play. Truckers later were eliminated with two losses.

DOWN AND OUT — Tad Tassone of San Francisco was quite out at third base in this first inning action against Toby's Truckers in Joe DiMaggio Tournment game yesterday. After the forceout, Toby's third baseman Tom Olson (3) threw to second sacker Mike Parnow in vain attempt at double play. Kicking up all that dust is S.F. outfielder Lloyd Robinson.

Novato Team Still Alive In DiMaggio Tournament

Annex Tops Eureka, But Toby's Falls

By GARY TISCHLER

The regional Joe DiMaggio League Tournament moved into its third round today after producing a couple of second-round casualties yesterday.

The early victims in yesterday's action at San Rafael's Albert Field were Toby's Truckers, the Southern Marin champion, and Eureka Active 20-30 Club, which turned out to be very inactive, bordering on paralysis.

Meanwhile, El Molino of Forestville and Myers Safety Switch of San Francisco remained unbeaten, while Annex Motors, the Northern Marin champion, and Best Products of S.F. stayed alive in the double elimination competition.

Toby's Truckers left their hearts and their games with San Francisco, losing to the two S.F. champions, Myers Safety Switch and Best Products.

El Molino opened things up yesterday by deactivating Eureka, 2-0. Myers Safety Switch then followed with a harrowing 7-5 win over stubborn Toby's Truckers. Annex Motors, shaking off a 10-3 opening loss, whipped and eliminated Eureka, 6-4, and Best Products performed the same service for Toby's Truckers, eliminating the Marin entry, 6-3.

TODAY'S SCHEDULE

Today, Myers Safety Switch and El Molino, the only two undefeated teams left in the tournament, were to play at 3:45 p.m. Annex Motors meets Best Products in a loser-go-home game at 6 p.m., while the loser of the Myers-El Molino game meets the winner of the 6 p.m. game at 8:15 p.m.

Tomorrow's championship game will be played at 1 p.m. A second game will follow if necessary.

A scattered crowd of 425 fans showed up for yesterday's quartet of games.

For Toby's, it was an uneven and finally fatal night. The Truckers died hard in their opener, coming from a 5-0 deficit to tie in the fifth inning, only to lose going away.

HOT STRUGGLE

Starting Toby's pitcher Bob Johnson struggled manfully in the stifling heat, getting shelled for five runs in the first two innings, then going three shutout innings before giving up a two-run, game-deciding double to Jim Schach.

Myers pitcher Rich Escalambre had a perfect game going for three innings before the whole thing turned into shambles, with the help of usually sure-fielding shortstop Larry Haren, the former all-around athlete at Wilson High in San Francisco.

Movies Help Juan Regain That Old, Effective Style

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Giants right-hander Juan Marichal watched a movie, didn't like what he saw and resumed his role as one of the National League's most effective pitchers.

The "movie" was taken early this week by pitching coach Larry Jensen. It started Marichal, who had lost four straight games—the most in his illustrious professional career.

Marichal detected a flaw in his pitching rhythm, made a correction and muffled the booming bats of the Chicago Cubs 3-0 last night.

"I looked at the film and discovered I wasn't following through like I used to," Marichal pointed out. "I wasn't kicking — I wasn't doing anything right.

"This time I was kicking on every pitch," added Marichal, who boosted his record to 14-8 with a four-hit, nine-strikeout performance.

TWO HOMERS

Southpaw Ken Holtzman, 13-7, suffered the loss, yielding a two-run homer to Dick Dietz in the sixth. Willie Mays capped the scoring with a solo homer off reliever Phil Regan in the eighth.

The four-game series resumed today with San Francisco's Gaylord Perry, 15-8, facing Ferguson Jenkins, 16-10. They'll wind up the series tomorrow with a doubleheader.

The victory was Marichal's first since July 19. His fifth shutout of the season lifted his career total to 42, tops among active pitchers.

Mays' homer was his 10th of the season and 597th of his career—and his first since June 21, a dry spell of almost two months for the National League's all-time leader.

And the Giants' lineup featured a "regular" batting order for the first time since the same eight players faced the Atlanta Braves in the first two games of the season, April 7-8.

"It was good to have all those

Dodgers Acquire Bunning

By STU CAMEN
UPI Sports Writer

The Dodgers, in the thick of the National League's Western Division race, got veteran hurler Jim Bunning from the Pittsburgh Pirates yesterday in exchange for two minor league players. The Dodgers traded for Bunning, who has won 206 games during his 15-year major league career, including a perfect contest against the New York Mets, in an attempt to fill the void left by the retirement last week of Don Drysdale.

Don Sutton joined teammates Claude Osteen and Bill Singer as a 15-game winner last night when he hurled the Dodgers to a 9-2 victory over the Montreal Expos that lifted Los Angeles to within two games of first place Cincinnati, and Sutton was overjoyed when he learned of the acquisition of Bunning.

WELCOMING COMMITTEE

"I'm ecstatic about Bunning joining the team," Sutton said. "I'll be the first one to welcome him here. We now have another pitcher to take up the slack left by the loss of Big Don."

Early Bogey Spurs Floyd Into PGA Birdie Barrage

By HAL PARIS

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — An early bogey set off the spark that launched Ray Floyd into the halfway lead in the 51st PGA Championship.

"I think the key to my round was a bogey," the handsome 26-year-old bachelor said yesterday after he added a five-under-par 66 to an opening 69 for a 36-hole total of 135.

Floyd, who owns two tour victories, was seven-under-par for two trips and carried a shaky one-stroke advantage over charging Gary Player into today's third round test.

Still in hot pursuit only two strokes back was Bunky Henry, the former Georgia Tech placekicker who carded a 68 for a 137.

Big Jack Nicklaus, always menacing, posted a 68 and was in a three-way knot at 138 along with U.S. Open champ Orville Moody, who also shot 68, and 31-year-old Don Bies, who electrified the gallery of 18,135 with a sizzling seven-unde-par 64, a course record.

Bies, 60th on the money list with winnings of $20,000, started with a double bogey six when he three-putted from 15 feet, but then completely mastered the tricky 6,915-yard layout with a barrage of nine birdies that sliced 10 strokes off his opening round.

The Seattle golfer, playing his first full year on the tour, registered his birds on Nos. 2, 3, 5, 6, 7, 10, 11, 13 and 16.

"After shooting a 74 Thursday I began wondering whether I was going to be around Saturday after that double bogey," Bies said.

Bert Greene and Jimmy Wright, both with 68s, were in at 139 while five back of Floyd at 140 were Larry Ziegler, 71; Ron Cerrudo, 66; Lar-

Girls (All Sizes, Shapes) Flock To Cage Tryouts

By JIM CHURCH

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Franklin Mieuli has begun his great girls' basketball experiment.

The flamboyant San Francisco Warriors' owner, who rings a cable car bell at Warriors' home games, thinks girls may be a boost to attendance.

More than 50 young women of all sizes and shapes dribbled, shot baskets and posed for pictures last night at the University of San Francisco gym in the first of four tryouts. Another was scheduled this morning for 50 different players, and two more sessions will bel held next weekend.

Mieuli envisions a girls' league—with cute girls in chic costumes—that will play before Warriors' games and at halftime.

Four teams of 11 players each —plus an alternate—will be selected for a 36-game schedule. At first Mieuli talked of a pro girls' league but now says it may be a mixture of pro, semi-pro and amateur.

"When the AAU teams were playing our preliminaries," says Mieuli, "they were compared unfavorably to the pros. It was like comparing apples with apples.

"Now it will be apples with peaches."

He created an uproar by drafting 18-year-old Iowa high school sensation Denise Long in the 13th round of the National Basketball Association player draft.

But he was serious. The 5-foot-11 Miss Long, who will attend USF at the Warriors' expense, already has appeared at Warrior clinics.

The publicity surrounding Miss Long attracted 150 applicants, including a local topless dancer who stands 6-6.

"We discouraged her right away," says league commissioner Bill Helbush. "We want girls who can play basketball, no publicity seekers or roller derby types."

Among the candidates are several housewives and girls who played on touring pro teams such as the Arkansas Travelers and All-American Redheads.

"Our tallest players are only 6-1," says Helbush. "We tried to get a 6-6 girl from Denver but she wanted to play for the AAU there."

The shortest is Lois Webb, a 5-0 San Francisco nurse who says: "I bounce around like (Bob) Cousy. Don't let my height fool you."

One applicant wrote, "I'm the best player on my team and we haven't lost a game yet in the fourth grade."

"We sent her a thank you note and told her to write again when she is 18, the minimum age for our league," said Helbush.

A's Now Have Two HR Sluggers

OAKLAND (UPI)—It's seldom that a cluster of newsmen query a pitcher about his hitting.

But that was the scene in the dressing room of the Oakland Athletics last night after Lew Krausse drilled a three-run homer off 1968 World Series hero Mickey Lolich and shut out the defending world champion Detroit Tigers 4-0 on four hits.

It was Krausse's fourth homer of the season to lead all major league pitchers in the long-ball department. In 4 1-2 previous big league seasons, the $25,000 bonus player had hit only two home runs.

"Gee, now me and Reggie (Jackson) between us have 46 homers. Isn't that something?" grinned the blond pitcher after his masterpiece.

"I hit a hanging curve ball off Mickey and it just jumped out of here. I really don't know why I'm hitting all these homers. I thought about that and I really don't have an answer."

Broadening his smile, Krausse, now 7-5, replied to a question: "No, I have set no personal home run goal this year."

Tigers manager Mayo Smith ordered Lolich to walk catcher Dave Duncan, hitting .096, after Tommy Reynolds singled with two out in the seventh. Then Krausse strode to the plate hitting .158 and banged the ball out of the park.

"I walked Duncan because I wasn't aware Krausse was going to hit a homer despite the difference in their batting averages," snapped a somewhat nettled Smith.

Krausse hurled hitless ball for 5 1-3 innings until Tom Tresh singled for the first Detroit hit. Don Wert also had a harmless single off Krausse in the eighth for the Tigers' second safety.

No Detroit runner got past first base until the ninth when Al Kaline and Norm Cash hit consecutive singles with two out.

By winning, Oakland kept pace with Minnesota in their hot battle in the American League West. Two games still separate runnerup Oakland from the frontrunning Twins.

PRO FOOTBALL ROUNDUP

Simpson Nervous As Bills Lose; Colts Shade Oilers

By STEVE SMILANICH
UPI Sports Writer

O.J. Simpson, the Buffalo Bills' high-priced rookie, is generally pleased with his professional football debut even though last year's king of college heroes admitted to being "just a little bit nervous."

Simpson, the All-America halfback from University of Southern California, played his first pro game last night and saw limited action as the Detroit Lions of the National Football League downed Buffalo, 24-12, in a contest in which another rookie, Utah State's Altie Taylor, was the standout.

In the only other pro action last night the Baltimore Colts pulled out a 32-29 triumph over the Houston Oilers on a 58-yard touchdown pass from Earl Morrall to Willie Richardson with three seconds left in the game after the Colts blew a 21-0 lead.

"I was a little bit nervous because I went in earlier than expected." Simpson said of his initial action in a Buffalo uniform. "It's great to have it over with," he added, referring to his long-awaited pro appearance.

Last year's Heisman Trophy winner, who joined the Bills training camp only four days ago, carried four times for 19 yards and had one pass reception.

The victories by the Lions and Colts gave the NFL an 8-3 lead in 11 exhibition games played against American Football League teams this season.

The Lions never trailed in the contest with the Bills, jumping to a 7-0 first period lead on a four-yard scoring run by Mel Farr. The Bills narrowed it to 7-6 on a 20-yard pass from Tom Flores to Haven Moses but the Lions made it 14-6 at halftime on a 10-yard pass from Bill Munson to Carley Sanders.

Toby's Team Drops Pair In DiMaggio Tournament

the fourth inning for Toby's, getting hit by a pitch to become the first baserunner, then scoring on an error. Jerry White, the rightfielder obtained from the Presidio, drove in the second run with a slashing single.

COSTLY ERROR

In the fifth, Haren opened up a Pandora's Box, with a two-out throwing error that eventually let in three runs, one of them coming home on another error by Haren. In between, Wilhelm, who won a golf tournament at Lake Merced earlier in the day, had banged a two-run single.

Haren was the early big stick for Myers, driving in three runs with a pair of doubles in the first two innings.

Toby's got nowhere nearly as close in their second encounter with a San Francisco team, as the Truckers accounted for just four hits and eight errors while Best Products stole six bases.

The only big bright spot of the day was White, who wound up with four hits over the two games, making only one out, and that on a long fly ball.

Annex roared back from its opening-night disaster behind pitcher Dennis Bueler and a flock of hits as the Novato-based team rolled to a 6-0 lead in the first two innings.

BATTING STARS

Kim Kerwin had a two-run single in the second inning, and Rich Harmon contributed a two-run single in the first inning while Ken Gnoss and Dewey Forrey drove in one run each.

Bueler went the distance, striking out nine batters and allowing Eureka only three hits.

That was one more hit than Eureka managed off El Molino's Randy Pugh, who turned in the tournament's outstanding pitching performance to date in yesterday's opener.

Pugh, a righthander, struck out 13 batters enroute to his shutout. Wes Tusimato's two-run triple was the key blow.

Coach Vows Improved 49er Lineup

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Coach Dick Nolan says the San Francisco 49ers will show improved play in tomorrow's home exhibition opener with the Dallas Cowboys.

"We'll still be looking but we'll be better," he said on the eve of his team's second preseason game. Last Sunday the Cleveland Browns beat San Francisco 24-19 after turning two fumble recoveries into touchdowns.

Doug Cunningham, the player who fumbled the two kicks deep in 49er territory, won't be starting against the Cowboys. His place will be taken by Johnny Fuller.

Rookie Gene Washington from Stanford, who did an outstanding job against Cleveland, will open at wide receiver for the 49ers at Kezar Stadium. Leo Johnson, Bill Wondolowski, Bob Windsor and rookie Ted Kwalick bolster the pass-catching corps.

Nolan said he would follow the same procedure in regard to alternating his quarterbacks. John Brodie will start and be spelled by George Mira and Steve Spurrier.

ALL THE WAY

Dallas coach Tom Landry says his quarterback, Craig Morton, might go the entire distance against the 49ers as he did last week in losing 24-17 to the Los Angeles Rams. Morton inherited the starting quarterback role after Don Meredith retired.

"Craig will play whatever is necessary for him to become the fluid quarterback we'll need by the time the league season rolls around," said Landry. "It may take all six exhibitions."

Morton will be throwing to such fine receivers as Bob Hayes, Lance Rentzel and Pettis Norman.

Nolan said he will give Tommy Davis a rest from his double-barreled kicking chores and try Spurrier on punts and Dennis Patera on extra points, field goals and kickoffs.

Four 49er veterans — center Bruce Bosley, guard Howard Mudd, defensive lineman Kevin Hardy and running back Gary Lewis — are expected to see their first action of the exhibition season against Dallas.

MARIN NETTER WINS S.F. JUNIOR CROWN

After dropping the first set, Redwood High School student Steve McDonald of Tiburon rallied to upset top seeded Andy Webb yesterday for the boys' 18 and under age division championship in the San Francisco Junior Hard Court Tennis Tournament at Golden Gate Park. The score was 5-7, 7-5, 6-4.

Two other Marin County players also brought home titles in doubles competition. Bee Kilgore of Tiburon teamed with Marna Louie of San Francisco to capture the girls' 14 age division while Dan Tierney of Tiburon along with Eric Lee of San Francisco won the boys' 14.

Player, the little South African health faddist bidding for his second PGA conquest, had set the course record before Bies even teed off with a hot 65. He had an opening 71.

PUTTED WELL

"I putted very, very well. These are the finest two rounds I've played this year," he said.

Player, who discarded his traditional black attire "because I like to wear pastel shades when it gets very hot," bogeyed two of his first three holes. He two-putted from six feet on No. 1 and missed a two-footer on No. 3.

Floyd, who has won at Jacksonville and Akron, said he was very irritable at the start of his round, possibily because he didn't sleep well the night before.

He missed a bird by two-putting from three feet on the second hole and missed another three-footer for a bogey on No. 3.

"That made the difference," he said. "The fire got started. I told myself I was going to get moving when I left that green."

AN EAGLE

He rolled in a 15-footer for a birdie on the next hole and dropped in a two-foot putt for another bird on No. 5. Then the husky pro from North Carolina boomed a long drive and a four-wood three feet from the pin, holing out for an eagle on the 548-yard No. 6, longest hole on the course.

Ex-49er Stickles Placed On Waivers By New Orleans

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN DIEGO — The New Orleans Saints put veteran tight end Monty Stickles on waivers yesterday just before the team boarded its chartered flight to Denver, Colo., for tonight's exhibition game with the Broncos.

A Saint's source said Stickles would not be reclaimed if another team attempted to pick him up but there was a chance the 6-foot-4, 235-pound former Notre Dame star could wind up on New Orleans' taxi unit as an instant reserve.

New Orleans acquired Stickles 13 months ago in a trade with the 49ers that sent George Rose to San Francisco.

But Marichal remained the biggest topic of conversation. "Juan pitched a great game," said King. "He had real good stuff and his fastball was as good as I've seen in five or six starts."

Los Angeles with a 10-9 record and an earned run average of 3.87 and he could prove the difference needed by the usually light hitting Dodgers who are unaccustomed to the batting support they received last night.

The Willies, Crawford and Davis, led the Dodgers' attack. Crawford knocked in three runs with two singles while Davis, who has had 23 hits in his last 47 official times at bat, chipped in with three safeties, including his ninth homer. Andy Kosco and Bill Sudakis also homered for Los jangeles in support of Sutton who struck out eight and allowed seven hits, including Rusty Staub's 22nd homer. Kosco and Sudakis homers came off Elroy Face, who was released by Montreal after the game.

In other National League games, Pittsburgh beat Cincinnati, 5-1; San Francisco blanked Chicago, 30; Philadelphia shut out Houston, 1-0; Atlanta walloped St. Louis, 8-2 and the New York Mets-San Diego Padres game at New York was rained out.

Gene Alley belted two homers and Al Oliver and Rich Hebner added one apiece to back the six-hit pitching of Bob Veale in the Pirates' win over the Reds. The loss cut Cincinnati's Western Division lead to 1 1-2 games over Atlanta. Veale upped his record to 8-11 while Young Gary Nolan, who was tagged for three of the Pirates' four homers, took his fourth setback in seven decisions.

THE ONLY WAY TO FLY

Australian Bill Bennett, the well-known water-ski kite flier, explains the mechanics of his delta-wing kite to Inger Young of Mill Valley as news cameramen record the scene. Bennett, who did a fly-by of Alcatraz Island Thursday, was brought to the Bay Area by the Pepsi-Cola Co. to publicize next weekend's National Water Ski Championships in Berkeley. Towed by a speedboat, Bennett attains heights in excess of 2,000 feet, then free flies his kite to pin-point landings.

THE GENERATION GAP

Boy, 12, Vet 55, Share Top Honors In Marin Bowling

By RALPH CHATOIAN

Call it generation gap or age space, but there are 43 years of age between the two Marin County bowling stars of the week.

Don Roque, 12, of Mill Valley won the Bantam Boys division all-events title in the California State Junior Bowling Tournament, and Walt Silva, 55, Sausalito bar owner, blasted a 926 four-game series during play at Country Club Bowl in San Rafael.

Roque, an eighth grader at Edna Maguire School in Mill Valley, scored 1,973 pins, including handicap, in nine games of action at Mel's Bowl in Redwood City and Kings Bowl in Millbrae to run off with the title. He carries a 145 average.

Silva cracked out a 752 series on games of 255, 240 and 257 before falling off to a 174. It was in the 555 Trios. That 752 is one of the highest three-game series scores in Marin County in many moons.

Other high scores out of the 555 Trios came from Orlando Conti, 225-845 and Elmer Tynes, 233-833. In the Peterson Point Trios at Country Club, Mike Curry had game of 234 and series of 825 and Lee Stetson a 231 and 819.

Gayle Chu had high score among the women at Country Club, one pin shy from a 600. Her games were 211, 202 and 186 (Oh, for a 187) in the Keglerettes League.

THIS AND THAT — Don Young led the scores at Greenbrae Lanes with a 252 line in the Thursday Men's Scratch ... Faith Hicklin rolled her first 200, a 206 in the Hi-Lo's League at Country Club, while Sharon Peicich led scores with a 223 line. ... In the Sleepers League at Country Club, Shirl Burger rolled a 546 and Ethel Stocking a 541. ... Peggy Quezada had high game among the women at Country Club Bowl, 255. ... Jerry Tatum rolled an all-spare 183 game in the TGIF League at Country Club. ... Fran Spear converted the difficult 4-7-8-10 in the Bowlerettes.

THIS AND THAT — Grace Webster rolled a 214-572 and Bea Hoffmann a 202-563 in the Blue Chip League at Country Club. ... In junior bowling, 104 average Jackqui Dorsey, 13, rolled a 199 game and 495 series, her highest ever, to lead the scores in the Saturday Juniors and Rich McPherson led the adult-juniors with 214-586.

BOWLING TIPS

By MARION LADEWIG

Some of today's best bowlers are southpaws, especially among the men. The lefthand side of the alley will have a higher polish, since it isn't used as much. For this reason, lefties can expect less of a hook and might be wise to start farther to the left than usual.

Raiders Seek First Win

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Two rivals in both the State of California and the American Football League clash tonight in San Diego Stadium.

The Oakland Raiders and San Diego Chargers will field lineups relatively free of pre-season injuries.

In the battle of quarterbacks, Oakland's Daryle Lamonica, who has engineered victories over the Chargers the past three seasons, and John Hadl, the veteran Charger, will start.

But both will be backed up by solid relievers — Eldridge Dickey and George Blanda for the Raiders and Marty Domres for the Chargers.

Raider Coach John Madden, who at 33 is the youngest mentor in pro ranks, has lost his two pre-season starts, but his team has scored 44 points while the Chargers were scoring 16 in compiling a 1-1 record.

It will be Madden's first football appearance in San Diego since he was defensive coordinator at San Diego State from 1964 through 1966.

Oakland has the same starting lineups that have played the previous games. With only one significant exception the same is true of San Diego. Russ Smith, who suffered a back sprain in last week's Charger-Saints encounter, will be out for another week.

Also absent from the Charger lineup is all-pro offensive tackle Ron Mix, whose pulled thigh muscle, suffered last month, will keep him out until the Aug. 23 encounter with the NFL Cleveland Browns.

Among the younger players, the Raider pass receiving of Rod Sherman and Drew Buie have alerted the Charger defense, while linebacker Bob Babich of the Chargers has made his imprint as one of the finest prospects in the pro lineups.

'Moe' Hill To Head Terra Linda Club

R. J. "Jim" Young was elected vice president. Persons interested in Terra Linda prep sports and who would like to assist should call one of the two officers, they said.

Hunter Safety

Registration for a hunter safety course for youngsters 12 to 18 years of age will be held Monday, 7 p.m. at the San Rafael Police Pistol Range and not at 2 p.m. as was erroneously reported in yesterday's Independent-Journal.

Campus Unrest Reflected In Auto Insurance Rates

AUTO INSURANCE RATES are on the way up — again.

The number of claims, which means the number of bills which auto insurance companies have been called upon to pay, has risen sharply again this year. In other words, there have been more accidents.

The cost of repairs also has risen at least as much as the cost of parts and cost of labor.

One company which in its 40-year history has never had to institute two rate increases in one year may wind up 1969 doing just that.

PEOPLE KNOWLEDGEABLE in the field have a variety of explanations:

Each year traffic is heavier and the number of accidents increases accordingly.

The rising cost of repairs lifts many bills out of the standard $100 deductible range and up to the level where the insurance company must pay at least part.

Beyond these obvious reasons is a surprising one that some insurance executives believe has been a heavy contributor to highway accidents.

It is campus unrest.

Their reasoning is simple.

In California during 1969, traffic policemen from city police forces and the California Highway Patrol necessarily invested a tremendous number of man-hours in campus police duties.

This tremendous number of man-hours spent on campus took traffic patrolmen off our streets and highways, by droves.

Traffic safety observers know that if you want to reduce the number of accidents in any given area, you can do it simply by increasing the number of traffic patrolmen working the area.

The reverse is true. If for any reason you have to reduce the number of patrolmen working an area, the accident rate is sure to rise.

This is, many insurance executives are certain, exactly what happened on California streets and highways during 1969, thus far.

When you read about new campus unrest this fall and when you get your higher-than-ever auto insurance bill, you can be pretty sure there is a connection between the two.

A YOUNG MAN WORKING on his doctor of philosophy degree at Stanford several years ago became seriously interested in highway safety, specifically as it applied to him — driving along the Bayshore Freeway.

He quickly became aware that at least 50 per cent of accidents are so-called rear-enders.

He decided to put his quite considerable talents to seeking some kind of solution.

He studied the physics of stopping an automobile. He determined the average time and distance required to stop an average car at various driving speeds.

He researched the human neurological system to determine average reaction times.

The highway patrol recommends that you keep at least one car length space between you and the car ahead, for every 10 miles per hour of speed.

The young Ph.D. candidate verified that this distance would in fact allow for both human reaction time plus the time and distance necessary to avoid a rear-ender with the car ahead.

Trouble is, almost nobody keeps that much distance, especially on crowded freeways.

THE YOUNG MAN SET OUT to use modern electronic technology to provide an "early warning" system when the car ahead begins to slow down. He has attempted to cut human reaction time by eliminating hesitation.

His solution he calls the "Cyberlite."

It is a kind of auxiliary tail light which flashes brightly as you start to slow down.

It is so conceived that the degree of braking is reflected in the frequency of the flash.

A "panic" stop produces extremely rapid flashing which just naturally motivates you to put on your own brakes much more quickly than you would otherwise.

THE YOUNG MAN'S NAME is John Voevodsky. He has received his Ph.D.

For three years he has been trying to get the California Highway Patrol to test his device with a view to giving it necessary approval for use in our state.

So far, he has seemed to get nowhere.

Can it be that the highway patrol is so busy preparing for its next campus calls that it doesn't have manpower to test a promising safety device?

The Food Finders

Different animals have different talents. The raccoons have many. These charming little creatures are common in Marin, and Marinites are familiar with at least one raccoon habit: Raccoons are expert food finders.

The ability of these animals to search out goodies borders on the uncanny. They can nose out the caviar from the run-of-the-mill garbage. They keep better track of state of ripeness of figs and grapes than the Department of Agriculture, so they can pick them first. And they are experts in picking out the families that will be the softest touches when they don their beggar's habit.

Some naturalists believe that other, less shrewd, animals follow, or at least, observe these cunning creatures in their own search for food.

Bouquets And Brickbats

BOUQUETS to Sharon Walsh of San Rafael for winning the national girls' lawn tennis championship, and to Mike Suyderhoud of San Anselmo for winning the world water skiing title at Copenhagen, Denmark.

BRICKBATS to boys who shoot at birds with B-B guns and sling shots. There can't be much "sport" in bagging a robin or waxwing this way, and there's not much sportsmanship in boys who do it.

TRY AND STOP ME

"DAUGHTER," commanded a father sternly, "I want you home tonight by 11 o'clock." "But father," she protested, "I'm no longer a child." "Precisely," nodded father. "That's why I want you home by eleven."

Amy Lowell, bluest of Boston bluebloods and poetess of the first order, was addicted to smoking big, black cigars, a habit that horrified her associates. She was, however, a law unto herself. One day a mere New Yorker asked if she came from Boston. "I am not FROM Boston," she corrected him haughtily. "I AM Boston."

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Editor Made To Eat Some Of His Words

My letter to the I-J (Aug. 12) criticized your editorials of June 25 and July 26 for belittling Nixon's proposed initial troop withdrawal from Vietnam because they inaccurately stated that only medics, supply troops, and postal clerks were being withdrawn. Your reply to my letter was that "the editorial of June 25 did not say the initial 25,000-troop withdrawal 'consisted entirely of medics, etc. . . ." Allow me to quote from that editorial: "However, the caution that makes removal of 25,000 medical and supply troops 'the start of a pullout from Vietnam' could bear another, less respectable, name. That name is tokenism." Similarly, the July 26 editorial refers to "the recall with much hoopla of 25,000 medics, supply troops and postal clerks." Since the Department of Defense news release listing the units you referred to definitely stated that these constituted only 2,000 of the 25,000 and earlier news articles identified some substantial combat elements being withdrawn, the editorials can only be regarded as inaccurate and misleading.

Your policy of usually printing in full letters of moderate length disagreeing with or correcting points in your editorials is highly commendable. Why not gain even more respect among your readers by admitting it when you are obviously wrong?

N. A. HYAMS
San Rafael

(The editor admits to looseness in referring to "25,000 medics, supply troops and postal clerks," although even if all 25,000 had been combat troops the withdrawal might still be termed tokenism. Latest reports indicate President Nixon is considering recalling an additional 113,000 by Christmas. This would be a more significant withdrawal, but still leave 400,000 American troops in Vietnam. — Editor.)

Bit Of Moon Dirt Or Free Universities?

We have conquered space and are overwhelmed by the tremendous achievement of American astronauts. Unstinted honor and credit is due all the participants and to the unprecedented capacity for cooperative effort demonstrated in our country.

Now let's get down to earth! At the staggering cost of 23 billions of dollars, which taxed the average American family $575, we have snatched from the moon a bucket of soil such as can be found near any volcano here on earth! We have also learned many new facts of which few, if any, have practical application to the urgent problems of mankind.

Of each billion dollars spent, 200 million could have built a great university for 10,000 students. The remaining 800 million, invested at 6 per cent could have provided an endowment of $48 million a year to provide faculty and maintenance forever! Twenty-three great universities in all, giving a free education to 230,000 students, graduating 46,000 of them each year for the next hundred years and at no additional cost to the taxpayers. All this we have traded for a bucket of dirt!

If, without strenuous protest, our citizens permit this reckless waste of their taxes to continue — then history will surely regard them as "lunatics."

Value Of Fishing Permit Questioned

We've been wondering what the use is of paying $5 each for a permit to fish in Nicasio Lake this year.

All other years we've gotten nice big blue gills in the months of August and September, but this year all these "blue stone" they put in the water, no fish at all.

The water department men say they have to use the "blue stone" to purify the water, but why so often? Every time they use it, the fish are gone for about three to four days — then they use it again.

After all, it did cost us $5 each for the fishing permits, plus $5 for the state license, for what? Nicasio Lake is never stocked with fish, so it's plenty hard to catch any without the added "stopper" of "blue stone."

LINES ON LIVING

Life Of Imitation Like Muddied Pool

By Rabbi HAIM KEMELMAN

A stream that isn't in motion becomes at best only a muddled puddle, mirroring nothing else but outside reflections and sights.

Men and women who live for themselves end up enjoying little in themselves. They lose originality and languish in a fixed inertia of thinking and living that reflects nothing but outside impressions.

The joyful and creative life must possess a living simplicity — original as far as possible, unadulterated as far as obtainable — as its end.

WHEN DIOGENES Laertius threw away his only utensil, a simple shell from which he drank, as he saw a boy drinking from his own hands, he didn't merely show defiance of civilized convenience. His purpose was to demonstrate an exercise in the worthiness of simple living as a virtue in itself. And when he lustily quenched his thirst by drinking from that cupful, formed by his own 10 fingers, he declared with childish innocence, "A child has beaten me in simplicity of living."

Here the ancient sage rejected a crude form of sophistication to remind himself of the simple joys of plain living and the thrills of self-celebration with all its attendant delights that are within reach at all times. Joyful living requires not the wealth of a millionaire nor the luxury of a yacht, but the richness of soul and the elegance of awareness. Drink, Diogenes exhorts his contemporaries, from the cup of life, with your own hands.

MANY LIVES are muddled because they are fixed and trapped within their own confines. They show nothing of original motion, no sign of creative living. They only reflect that which is projected upon their surface. They show shallow imitations of other lives. They either live in the yesterdays of wine and roses, or in the foggy dreams of tomorrow, of some kind of a "somewhere over the rainbow."

If life is really so weak that it fails to move some people from their boring existence, it's only because it had become trapped in the muddy and slimy lagoon of self-containment. "It takes life to love Life," suggests Edgar Lee Masters. But when the stream has stagnated, the only life within it are the filthy, creeping, spineless little creatures which breed nothing but disease and muck. And what's true of liquid fluid, is true of the human mind.

A MOVING simplicity, and as far as possible an innate originality, is the crowning grace of a joyous and creative life: an awareness in things that happen, not an obsession in things that are bought; in clocks that strike time for holidays, not in relentless wrist-watches that push the blood pressure up to boiling; in enjoying a nice life, not in wrestling for rich living. To put it simply and aptly, in the words of William Henry Channing:

"To live content with small means; to seek elegance rather than luxury, and refinement rather than fashion; to be worthy . . . to study hard, think quietly, talk gently, act frankly; to listen to the stars and birds, to babes and sages, with open heart; to bear all cheerfully, do all bravely, await occasions, hurry never; in a word to let the spiritual, unbidden and unconscious, grow up through the common."

COUNTRY PARSON

"We don't need much of a police force in a community small enough for everybody to know everybody else."

Shabby Trains In Last Runs As Airports Become Clogged

Aboard the California Zephyr enroute to San Francisco — As Rip van Winkle waking up on one of the last cross-country trains, we wind across the Rockies, across the moon-like deserts of Utah, down through the Feather River Canyon.

Enlarging the time span gives a curious sense of reliving the past of an age all but vanished. By jet from Denver to the west coast is two and one-half to three hours. We take 32 more or less, allowing for being an hour late while we wait for long freights to pass us. In our leisurely progress we know that America is not just a gray blur between cities but a continent of many splendors. Beyond the urban sprawl, the junk heaps and used-car graveyards, you can believe in America the Beautiful of spacious skies and vast open spaces.

As companion an eight-year-old granddaughter supplies the note of wonder. One reason for the journey was so Catherine could say in later years that, yes, she had once ridden on a train, just as a great-grandfather of ancient memory talked of how he had been a passenger on a stagecoach. For Catherine the train is as novel as a space rocket would be for her grandparent.

THE EQUIPMENT is on the tired and shabby side and the personnel suffers from a fatigue factor. The talk is about seniority. The road bed leaves something to be desired, the jumping-bean effect in a berth at night being hardly conducive to sleep.

But the melancholy aspect of the journey as the old nostalgia flows is the imminent threat of the end of the service just around the next curve. Posted in each of the 10 passenger cars are notices that the railroads — the Burlington between Chicago and Denver and the Denver and Rio Grande and Western Pacific between Denver and San Francisco — have petitioned the Interstate Commerce Commission to discontinue the Zephyr. A series of hearings along the 2,000-mile route will precede the ICC's decision.

If they had their way, undeterred by government authority or public opinion, the railroads would probably stop all intercity passenger service. In the past decade more than half the passenger trains have been taken off and the passenger miles traveled have fallen proportionately.

THAT IS ONE measure of the nation's transportation crisis, with more people on the move at the peak of the vacation period than ever before. The quarrel between the air traffic controllers and the Federal Aviation Administration threatens to shut down the airlines. Airports are a bedlam of overcrowding and the air corridors between major cities are dangerously congested. This is at the point that rail service, with few exceptions, is grinding to a stop.

The controversy over why this should be so has been long and fierce. The airlines and the truckers, the railroads contend, have had all the breaks from government. But the railroads, their numerous critics say, never tried to modernize passenger service to compete with planes and motorcars.

Robert R. Young made a valiant effort after World War II with full-page ads assailing the antiquated methods of the entrenched rail executives, the most famous ad being the one headlined: "A Hog Can Cross the Country Without Changing Trains But You Can't." But he never had a chance in his fight for innovative changes in passenger service. The stalwarts in the Association of American Railroads insisted that passenger service in the age of the motorcar could never be made to pay and they were determined to prove it.

ON THE NEAR horizon is the first sign of a compromise. The railroad association is saying that if the government forces the roads to run trains that are unprofitable, then the government will have to provide a subsidy. Hitherto subsidies — or, at any rate, direct subsidies — have been looked on as an instrument of a socialist takeover.

Obviously, it is going to take a far greater degree of cooperation between government and the rail lines if passenger traffic is restored to anything like the place it should have in a balanced transportation system.

We are speeding down the flat, sun-lit California terrain past the factory farms with stoop labor in the fields, the fabulous hills of San Francisco just beyond. For the impatient traveler, it must be confessed, this is just in time.

Speaking Of Disarmament— Well, That Goes On Forever

(Art Buchwald has gone into quarantine for a few weeks so that he doesn't give the astronauts any germs. We are repringing some of his all-time favorites.)

The disarmament talks may start again in Geneva. I happen to be an expert on disarmament, and after a while the talks all seem to have a pattern.

Let me take you to the 12,654th plenary session of the 17-Nation Disarmament Conference in Geneva, in the year 1994.

American Ambassador Stone is about to make a statement, but he sneezes instead.

STONE: But I didn't make a proposal. I just sneezed.

GROANYKO: I ask for a 5-minute recess to confer with my staff.

GROANYKO: What should our response be?

SOVIET ADVISER: We could say gesundheit.

GROANYKO: Yes, but how do we know the sneeze wasn't a trap to make us say gesundheit?

SECOND SOVIET ADVISER: But if we don't say gesundheit, and he really sneezed, it could be a big propaganda victor for the West.

GROANYKO: Should we ask time to get instructions from Moscow?

SOVIET ADVISER: No. It would look like we don't have authority to make decisions on our own.

GROANYKO: I think the best thing is to say gesundheit with reservations. If it's a trap, we can always renounce it.

(The session is called back to order.)

GROANYKO: Mr. Chairman, I wish to address a word to the ambassador from the United States.

CHAIRMAN: Does the American ambassador yield?

STONE: I do.

GROANYKO: Gesundheit.

STONE: I object to the Soviet proposal. They are not dealing in good faith, and my government cannot accept their proposal.

GROANYKO: But all I said was gesundheit in answer to your sneeze.

STONE: I request a five-minute recess to discuss this with my British colleagues.

(The recess is granted, and Stone huddles with the British ambassador.)

STONE: What do you make of it?

BRITISH AMBASSADOR: I don't like it.

STONE: Neither do I. I've sneezed before, and they've never said gesundheit.

BRITISH AMBASSADOR: If we accept it, and then a Soviet sneezes, we'll have to say gusendheit to him.

STONE: If we give in on this, we may have to give in on other things. Why do you think they spoke in German?

BRITISH AMBASSADOR: That's what I've been wondering. They've got something up their sleeves.

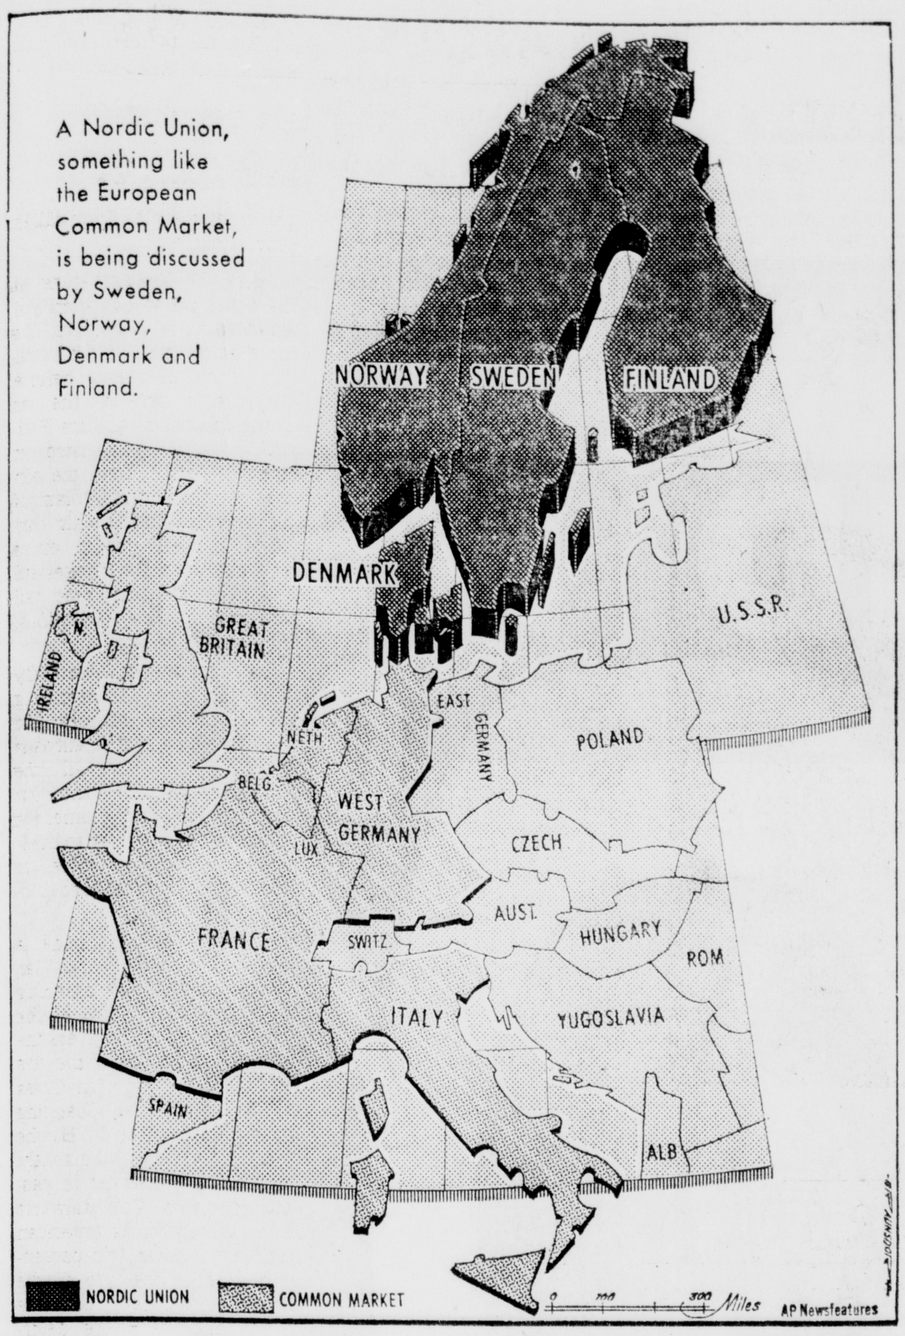
STONE: Suppose I say thank you on the provision that if they accept the rest of our proposals, we will accept their gesundheit.

(The session is called back to order.)

STONE: I wish to thank the Soviet ambassador for saying gesundheit.

GROANYKO: I wish to object to the American ambassador's statement and cannot see any significant change in the American warlike attitude toward these talks.

Nordic Common Market Rising



A Nordic Union, something like the European Common Market, is being discussed by Sweden, Norway, Denmark and Finland.

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Sweden, Norway, Denmark and Finland move one uncertain step closer this summer to realizing an old vision, a kind of Nordic dream, when a joint group of high officials submits the draft of a treaty designed to inject new dynamics into the economies of four small countries, make them more of a power among the world's economic greats, smooth their way into a larger, European community — or help them survive, if Europe remains divided in trade blocs.

Closeted in a suburban Copenhagen hotel for a marathon session, the officials and negotiators have worked hard to finalize the framework for an economic union that would bring 21 million Nordic people together in a cooperation so comprehensive, and so closely coordinated, as to match the European Common Market (EEC).

If the Nordic Union — NORDEK for short — is set up along the lines already suggested by the expert group's first preliminary report last January, the four Nordic countries will be tied together by:

A general treaty of wide-ranging, economic cooperation.

A customs union.

A nuclear energy pool.

Four EEC-type investment funds — for joint development projects, for education, for research, for structural adjustments in agriculture, and for fisheries.

A ministerial council and other joint institutions governing cooperation ranging from automation and antipollution measures to regional development, health, space and maritime research.

There would also be joint discussions of budgetary and trade policies, joint action in some trade negotiations with third parties, joint combat of dumping in the Nordic market. Capital movements and business-establishing rights would be liberalized, fiscal policy instruments harmonized, and credit, interest and monetary policies coordinated, at least to a degree.

However ambitious the project, the officials concluded in their first recommendations that it would be possible "to solve all problems in a way that will, on the whole, benefit all four countries."

They went a long way towards proving it, agreeing right away on 75 per cent of the outer tariffs of the customs union. And even if they had to leave such delicate questions as agriculture, fisheries, capital movements and establishing rights open, it was all promising enough for the prime ministers to tell them to go ahead, tackle remaining tariffs and major outstanding issues, and come up with a draft treaty by mid-July.

But as the deadline draws closer, there are signs that the big, political drive for Nordic unity, begun with much energy and enthusiasm early last year after France's Charles de Gaulle had once more slammed the door of the EEC, was losing some of its original momentum.

With the pace slackening no prime ministers meeting is scheduled to receive the expert group's drafts — and little, in fact, appeared likely to happen this side of Norway's general elections in the fall and the change of prime minister in Sweden in September.

Much clearly depends on European developments in the months to come. They could overtake Nordic developments and give support to calls from some quarters for abandonment of the whole project. But if the EEC remains an uncertain bet, or worse, the Nordic drive would probably pick up new speed.

The overriding theme of the Nordic debate is that NORDEK must be seen in a European context, not as a move towards Nordic isolationism. Also, there is general agreement NORDEK should strengthen the negotiating position vis-a-vis the EEC and in no way impair any country's chances to join a broader European market should the opportunity arise.

Norway's Foreign Minister John Lyng has made it plain that "NORDEK can never be a satisfactory alternative to a European solution." Denmark's Minister of Economy Per Nyboe Andersen traveled to all EEC capitals just to make certain there is no misunderstanding that NORDEK has a European perspective and does not affect the "fundamental" goal: EEC membership.

Danish Prime Minister Hilmar Baunsgaard, one of the prime movers behind NORDEK, insists that Nordic efforts can go ahead at full speed and Europe still remain a priority.

Predicting that a Nordic economic union can be fully established by 1972, Baunsgaard makes this point: "If obstacles to EEC membership still prevail by then, we will have the advantage that we used the time well preparing a close, economic cooperation of our own, ready to go into effect at once."

But skeptics voice considerable doubt that collective bargaining with the EEC would strengthen anyone since attitudes differ widely — Denmark and Norway all out for full EEC membership, Sweden most likely for some kind of association, and Finland not applying at all.

Despite much uncertainty, the general feeling is that the Nordic dream, crushed so often in earlier, abortive attempts, may now be closer to realization than ever. Even if defense, security and foreign policy will be kept out, NORDEK appears to appeal strongly to age-old, popular aspirations for Nordic unity.

And if a Nordic union does not come this time it probably never will. "This, no doubt, is the last chance," says former Danish Minister of Economy Ivar Noergaard.

'REFINED TECHNIQUES'

B52s Assume Greater Role In Air War Over Vietnam

By ROBERT TAYLOR

U-TAPAO, Thailand (UPI)— Refined bombing techniques in South Vietnam and the expansion of the secret air war over Laos have given the B52 bombers based here a more important role in the Southeast Asian war than ever before.

Operations at this bomber base on the shores of the gulf of Siam have mounted steadily despite the seven-month restrictions against bombing over North Vietnam and de-escalation of American ground operations in South Vietnam.

In just the last two months, U-Tapao has acquired facilities for major maintenance of the big bombers, lengthening the time before they must return to their main Pacific base at Guam from about three weeks to 45 days.

This in turn has reduced turnaround time between missions for a larger number of planes and along with other operational innovations made it possible for Strategic Air Command (SAC) commanders to put the B52's over a target within an hour and a half after a call to action.

According to the Sac men, Gen. Creighton Abrams, the American commander in Vietnam, has utilized the B52s and their increased availability as no other military commander has ever used bombers, turning them into a sort of airborne "heavy artillery" to support his ground units.

"General Abrams will move his ground units around to mass as many enemy troops as possible in a given area," one officer said. "Then he calls in B52 strikes."

The result, according to the people here, is that Abrams has been able to follow a strategy of cutting down on casualty-producing offensive operations while at the same time keeping up his mission of destroying Communist fighting capability.

The B52s also have played a great part in the shadowy war in Laos, pounding areas of the Ho Chi Minh Trail supply complex with their loads of 750- and 500-pound "iron bombs."

Air Force men are not allowed to discuss the Laos war because for political reasons the United States will not admit that it flies bombing missions in Laos.

Nevertheless, information is available that out of the average of 60 or so B52 sorties flown every day, anywhere from six to 15 of the camouflage painted bombers will be headed for Laos.

When operational conditions permit it, the number of strikes against Laotian sanctuaries of the Communists goes up.

During the 24-hour American truce in South Vietnam for Buddha's birthday anniversary May 30, a UPI correspondent who visited U-Tapao saw operations going on as usual although no strikes were heading toward South Vietnam. All of the missions were going toward Laos.

Of the 60 or so sorties on any given day, about two-thirds will originate at U-Tapao because of its short elapsed mission time of from two and a half to four hours.

Other missions come from the main base at Guam, about 12 hours roundtrip flying time from Southeast Asia. Still others take off from the American base at Kadena, Okinawa, but Air Force men are forbidden to discuss them because of Japanese objections to use of the base for Vietnam war missions.

The appearance of the eight-jet monsters on the ground has led the B52 men to dub them "buffs," which stands for "big, ugly, fat——." Many of the planes were built in 1955 and 1956 and were destined for the scrapheap when the first B52 strikes of the Vietnam war in July, 1965, gave them a new lease on life.

"Strikes have been flown since April, 1967, out of U-Tapao, which was originally announced as a base for aerial refuelling tankers.

Everything is strictly business at this base. The planes do not have individual names like bombers in past wars and crews rotate among planes and have no particular preference for one plane or another.

The most popular method of bombing is by direction from the ground. Kwons as "Skyspot," it is controlled from surface radar sites with which one SAC officer says, "we've literally ringed Vietnam." Some sites are at friendly outposts in Communist-held areas of Laos.

The ground controller puts the bomber on a course and keeps him there by voice similar to a ground-controlled landing approach. He tells the navigator when to drop his bombs with a countdown similar to that for a rocket launch. Military sources say accuracy is within a few yards.

Although the B52's often fly out of sight and hearing of the ground, they are constantly tracked by Communist ground radars in some areas where they fly. It is the job of the electronics warfare officer to detect these radars and jam them.

Military sources say the Communists in some parts of Laos now have antiaircraft guns capable of reaching the altitudes of around 30,000 feet where the B52's operate, but so far no B52's have been hit. Missile launches against B52's have also been far wide of the mark.

Behind The News

PLIGHT DESPERATE

Safety Of Mercy Missions To Biafra Remains Real Puzzler

LONDON (Toronto News Service) — Even the wisdom of King Solomon would be sorely tried seeking a solution to the agonizing dispute over how relief deliveries can be resumed to the starving civilian population of Biafra.

Caught up in the frustration of wanting to continue with its mercy flights to the famine-stricken breakaway state but hamstrung by the disagreement of the opposing sides in the Nigerian civil war, the president of the International Red Cross, Mr. Marcel Naville, is due to fly to Africa everyday.

Red Cross supplies were called off recently following the shooting down of one of the mercy planes. As a result, during the last few weeks virtually no supplies have reached Biafra and the plight of the Biafran people is becoming desperate.

It is estimated that the lives of over a million may well be forfeited unless agreement can be reached.

An Irish priest who runs a refugee camp in Biafra's north said he has only 15 tons of food a week to distribute among 60,000 people.

And food stock of the Red Cross now are almost totally exhausted.

"We are tortured at the thought of present deadlock and of the immediate tragedy ahead if no solution is found," says the Red Cross in Geneva.

In simple terms — if anything can be simple when a bitter civil war is entering its third year and emotions are running high among supporters on both sides — the Nigerian government insists it is not trying to use starvation of Biafra to bring the rebellion to an end.

Nigeria says it is quite prepared for the Red Cross and other relief agencies to fly in their supplies provided it is done in daylight. Nigeria also wants these supplies examined by its own officials, together with neutral observers, to ensure that no arms or other war materials are smuggled in.

The Red Cross denies it is doing any gun-running, but although it is against it previous tactics it is quite prepared for such inspections. "Prestige does not concern us," says the Red Cross. "We only want to save lives."

Biafra wants night flight to continue and it is clear why.

With the relief flight planes as a shield, war supplies can also be flown in — not in Red Cross planes but by supporters of the Biafran cause in their own aircraft.

Up to now Nigeria has flights imply because it did not have the equipment to deal with them. Now Russian pilots flying sophisticated aircraft are available to shoot down planes during darkness. So Nigeria is now insisting that all night flights cease.

Nigeria's claim that these flights have been the shields for gun-running seems justified, for since the Red Cross night ferries ceased, no arms have reached Biafra.

Only General Ojukwu stands in the way of Red Cross relief supplies reaching his starving people by his refusal to allow these day-only flights to come in via Nigerian territory, according to Britain. It adds that agreement has been reached on this both with the Nigerians and the Red Cross.

Denying British claims of agreement Red Cross officials say that any proposals must have the blessing of the Biafrans — otherwise no aid can flow to the starving population of this area.

The British want to show tie issue in clear-cut terms with sainthood on the Nigerian side by praising the federal government's policy of "allowing" daylight flights as a "humane breakthrough." But the Red Cross knows very well that Ojukwu fears that if he agrees to day-only flights, he is risking exposing his last known surviving air-strip to bombing by federal pilots.

With trigger-happy Egyptians and Russians flying Nigerian planes he legitimately fears that they will destroy this last link with the outside world no matter what guarantees are made about this airfield by the British or anyone else. After all the U-K has invested interests — it supplies Nigeria with 15 per cent of its arms.

Ojukwu does not agree to mercy flights being channelled through Lagos because the relief supplies will then appear to be "charity" from his enemies. He wants them to come from a neutral source.

The Red Cross is hoping to reach some compromise with both sides in the war. By sending its president, this international mercy organization is playing its last card.

The pawn of starvation is being used ruthlessly by the warring parties with the Red Cross and its humanitarian motives caught in the crossfires of this struggle.

The only losers appear to be the civilians of Biafra. It is now believed that unless supplies are resumed to them within weeks they will start dying from starvation.

Vatican Scoffs At Being Called Top Diplomatic Listening Post

VATICAN CITY (UPI)— Among hardy legends that need knocking down is the one that the Vatican is a major diplomatic listening post in the world.

In fact, it's a pretty poor one.

The late Cardinal Domenico Tardini, who served Pope John XXIII as secretary of state, once commented wryly: "They say we have the best diplomatic service in the world. Well, if we are first, I pity the second."

This view is shared by experienced Western diplomats in Rome who have a close working knowledge of the Vatican, and it may have influenced President Richard M. Nixon's recent decision not to name a fulltime United States representative to the Vatican.

Nixon sent an emissary to Pope Paul VI on July 3 to inform him the United States wanted to maintain close contact with the Vatican, but would do it through visits by special emissaries rather than a permanent envoy.

"The notion that the Vatican is a great listening post is poppycock," one American diplomat says. "If you want a balanced appraisal of the situation in Czechoslovakia, for example, you certainly aren't going to get it from a report that a bishop sends to the Holy See.

"In other countries where the Vatican has diplomatic representatives, they sometimes obtain useful information but in such cases it's usually easier to get it from them on the spot than from the secretariat of state. Over-all, however, we can get better information through our various embassies than I think is available to the Holy See."

Other diplomats say that most countries which do have diplomatic relations with the Vatican have not assigned their most distinguished diplomats there, and all embassies to the Holy See are quite small— which undoubtedly would not be true if the Vatican were the great source of information that legend has portrayed it.

Sixty-seven countries have relations with the Vatican, but six of them currently maintain an embassy in name only and 15 others are represented by embassies actually based in other European countries ranging from England to Luxembourg.

The quality of the Vatican's own diplomats seems to vary widely.

One of the most outstanding is the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Emanuele Clarizio, 58, now apostolic delegate to Canada. Clarizio distinguished himself as papal nuncio to the Dominican Republic in 1965 by helping mediate a solution to the armed conflict between rival political forces in that country.

But one Vatican official who is familiar with most of the Holy See's representatives frankly estimates no more than 10 per cent of them are men of Clarizio's stature.

The Vatican has two main categories of representatives: papal nuncios, who are diplomats of ambassadorial rank; and apostolic delegates, who do not have diplomatic status and serve in countries like the United States that do not recognize the Vatican.

The nuncio represents the Vatican toward the government of the country in which he serves and also is the Vatican's link with the church of that country. He is responsible for reporting to the Vatican on the political situation in a country primarily from the standpoint of how this affects the church's freedom to operate.

The apostolic delegate is responsible for overseeing the local church, but he may also represent the Vatican at a state occasion, such as the inauguration of a president.

The Vatican requires that its nuncios be accorded the rank of dean of the diplomatic corps, no matter how long they have served in a country. But some countries object to this, so the Vatican has gotten around its own rule by creating a rank known as pro-nuncio in those countries.

Most Vatican diplomats are Italian priests. One reason is that the diplomatic service never seems to have had much appeal for priests outside Italy, and some who do train for it drop out later because of discouragement with what they consider an outdated training system.

"It's all too juridical, and the human relations aspect that should form part of the training is simply ignored," said one North European priest who dropped out of the training school in Rome.

Cardinal Leo J. Suenens of Belgium suggested recently that diplomacy was not a proper function of a priest and that the Vatican draw its diplomats from the ranks of qualified Roman Catholic laymen.

However, Pope Paul rejected the various requests for a reform of the diplomatic service in a decree in May. He affirmed the traditional role of his envoys, and ignored Suenens' suggestion for the appointment of laymen.

This Week In The World

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Moonday came on Wednesday this week when the nation turned out to cheer the Apollo 11 astronauts.

Neil A. Armstrong and Air Force Cols. Edwin E. (Buzz) Aldrin Jr. and Michael Collins were hailed from coast to coast — with parades in New York and Chicago and at a celebrity-loaded state dinner given by President Richard M. Nixon in Los Angeles.

The turnout in New York was estimated at four million persons lining curbs along the route that took the astronauts from Kennedy Airport to City Hall, the United Nations and then back to the airport. It was a reception equaled only by those accorded Charles A. Lindbergh in 1927 and Col. John Glenn, America's first man in orbit, in 1962.

More than a million Midwesteners turned out to cheer the moon men in Chicago.

The New York parade accelerated because of the astronauts' heavy schedule, ran somewhat ahead of its planned fast pace, but in Chicago crowds swarmed into the streets and slowed things down to a crawl.

The Nixon dinner had a guest list of 1,440 including 44 state governors, the Supreme Court, all of the cabinet except Atty. Gen. John H. Mitchell, 50 astronauts and diplomats from more than 90 countries.

Around The World, Around The Clock:

BELFAST — Northern Ireland — British troops moved into Londonderry, at least temporarily calming the situation there, but spreading violence in other North Irish centers resulted in a number of deaths. One of the dead was a child.

HOLLYWOOD — Film beauty Sharon Tate, pregnant wife of director Roman Polanski and four others were killed in Polanski's rented Bel Air home under mysterious circumstances suggesting ritual murder. Polanski flew home from London for the funeral.

PRAGUE — The Czech government alerted its army and "people's militia" for possible trouble on Aug. 21, first anniversary of the Russian-led Communits invasion of Czechoslovakia.

SAIGON — New Communist attacks ended a seven-week lull in the Vietnamese fighting. Allied forces mounted a strong counteroffensive in retaliation.

WASHINGTON — Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy warned that the tax reductions voted by Congress last week might "force retrenchment in important domestic programs" and make inflation worse.

JERUSALEM — Artillery dueled across the Suez Canal and Israeli jets pounded Egyptian and Jordanian gun positions in another flareup of the Mideastern border war. Early in the week, Israeli jets shattered sections of Jordan's Ghor irrigation canal.

MOSCOW — Russian and Red China reported another clash in their simmering border conflict, each side charging the other started shooting. Both sides said the clash in Central Asia caused casualties.

Probe Prompts More Napa State Staffers

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Reagan administration has said that staffing has been increased in the Napa State Hospital children's ward where violence and homosexuality had been reported.

But "a serious shortage of ward level personnel" still exists at Sonoma State Hospital, acting director George A. Butler told the California State Employees Association (CSEA) in a letter released yesterday.

State Mental Hygiene Director James V. Lowry ordered Napa director Robert J. Spratt to reduce the patient load and increase the number of staff members after an investigation into the reports of violence.

The investigation and the order came after three Democratic legislators July 28 released a letter written by a parent of a 14-year-old patient at the hospital. The parent said the boy had been raped homosexually by other boys and was beaten unconscious.

The Mental Hygiene Department today said that the nursing staff on the ward had been increased by 19 to a total of 127.

The number of patients had been ordered reduced by today from 180 to 167, "the rated bed capacity," but has so far been cut only to 172. The rest of the cuts were expected by Aug. 25.

Children with behavior problems referred by juvenile courts are now being screened by local authorities rather than being sent directly to the hospital, a department spokesman said.

Butler replied to grievances filed last month by hospital employees.

"I concur that there exists a serious shortage of ward level personnel which at times results in inadequate personal attention to patients which in turn is frustrating to employees attempting to provide optimum patient care," he told the CSEA.

He said that while the staff-patient ratio was at "an all-time high" the patient population had changed as less seriously ill persons departed and those entering were "generally more handicapped requiring a much higher level of care and attention."

Butler said, "There is less flexibility and mobility of ward level staff to care for emergency staff shortages because of increasing demands in all areas of the hospital."

But he also said the hospital population will probably drop by 250-300 in the next year while the nursing staff remains the same, and other employees increase.

He also cited a "severe shortage of support personnel at Sonoma," listing shortages in "maintenance, janitorial services, food services and laundry services."

"Unfavorable publicity directed toward the hospital has had an adverse effect on employee morale," Butler told the CSEA.

Whole publicity generally stems from persons who want to improve the hospital, he said, it can also affect "the morale of those who read into such attacks personal criticism of their efforts to care for patients."

Hearing On Probation Is Postponed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A hearing into possible probation violation by Mrs. Gail Woodford Lavery of Strawberry, convicted three years ago for involuntary manslaughter of her husband, was postponed yesterday for a week.

Superior Court Judge Francis McCarty said he planned to have Mrs. Lavery examined by a court-appointed psychiatrist. She was sent to jail Tuesday on a bench warrant after her psychiatrist reported to probation authorities she may have "homicidal tendencies."

McCarty said after examination she may be sent to the women's prison at Corona for three months of intensive observation.

Gregory Stout, her attorney, told the court he intended to have her examined by two San Francisco psychiatrists.

Finns Binge On Medi-Beer

HELSINKI (UPI) — The Finns' consumption of alcohol jumped 50 per cent during the first three months of 1969 because of legalization of the sale of medium strength beer by cafes and grocery stores. The Bureau of Statistics estimated that Finns now spend about 7 per cent of their income on alcoholic beverages.

Model Firm Profits From Space Boom

VENICE (UPI) — If you've ever yearned for a close-up look at an Apollo space ship, all it takes is a trip to the hobby store.

Model kits have been commonplace for years but the current interest in space exploration is giving the interplanetary replicas a surge, according to one of the manufacturers, Revell.

When the National Space and Aeronautics Administration comes out with a new space design, the company is only a few steps behind.

"We're very proud of our models," president Lewis H. Glaser said as he showed off some of the company products. He's especially fond of a model of the Apollo space craft that has many moving parts and stands nearly four feet high.

Glaser explained that his company works "as closely as possible" with the government to reproduce the space vehicles.

"We work from photographs and any plans available for public inspection," he said. "NASA is very cooperative within the framework of security regulations."

The firm stands between $50,000 and $100,000 on the master mold for each model.

Although he anticipates a total sales volume of more than $15,000,000 this year from a wide variety of kits, Glaser noted that his first space sets several years ago were not successful.

"It wasn't until we put a Mercury capsule like the one used by John Glenn into production that our company really began to take off in the space field. People identified with Glenn very strongly."

When the Russians proved uncooperative, Glaser sent a team to Expo 67 to photograph the ship on display at Montreal.

The first canal joining the Mediterranean with the Red Sea was dug nearly 4,000 years ago. The 53-mile-long passage connected the Great Bitter Lake, then head of the Gulf of Suez, with the Nile River Delta of Zagazig. From Zagazig, the Nile linked the channel to the Mediterranean.

The Voice Is Familiar

It's Made Paul Frees Rich Man

By GIL PEARSON

Paul Frees, who commutes between his home in Marin and his work in Hollywood, believes he is the highest salaried person in the United States.

There is general agreement in the business that he is the world's top voice mimic.

And if he were writing this story, he might well begin it by promising you "a tale ... well-calculated ... to keep you in S-U-S-P-E-N-S-E!"

THAT FAMILIAR line, heard week after week years ago in the deep, measured and resonant Frees tones, will jog the memory of many a radio-fan grandparent.

Early-day television-enthusiast parents will recall with equal pleasure the Frees voicing of the somber and shaky speech of the wealthy and aged John Beresford Tipton once a week as he directed his secretary "Mike" to present a fat and juicy check to some deserving person as depicted on "The Millionaire."

And these days, the youngsters and other generations alike hear Paul Frees daily doing a diversity of voices in hundreds of movies, commercials and animated cartoons for television and the screen.

"I HAVE BECOME a Marinite for keeps," Frees said the other day, using his own natural voice during an interview in his brand new cliff-hanging home in Tiburon. "I look forward to a happy life in this happiest area I have ever known."

Frees says he "fell in love with this place" five years ago while visiting his life-long friend, Marin County Sheriff Louis Mountanos.

As our probing into the life of this Hollywood master of voice projection progressed, there emerged an impression that here at hand we had a man whose overwhelming interest in life rests on what he can contribute artistically.

He has enjoyed staggering successes award-wise and money-wise in acting, directing, producing, writing, painting, announcing, cartooning, and of course voicing for all sound media. He does not spend time discussing other matters such as hunting, fishing, sailing, current events, women or travel.

In a word he is a show-business practitioner from A to Z.

AT AGE 49 Paul Frees finds that the demand for his voice is so great that he can afford to reverse the usual business week of five days work and two days off to two days at the studios and five days rest in Marin.

He averages voicing 1,500 TV commercials a year. How does this work out in salary?

Let's look at it:

AN AVERAGE national TV program commercial will pay in residuals (repeats) from $3,000 to $5,000 per year. Frees has done as many as 30 different Pillsbury commercials in a two-hour recording session with each commercial averaging $4,000. Multiplied by 30 this works out to $120,000 for this session, or $60,000 an hour.

His annual income is over a million dollars, which, however, he spreads into the future for tax purposes.

At the present time Frees' voice is heard on more than 20 different animated TV shows which are beamed towards young children. He dubbed in the voices of the Beatles for the Beatles animation series.

"I AM BACHING today," he advised us while pouring some very dark coffee, "so this stuff probably has plenty of hair on it."

If it astonishes you that so moneyed a personage is not surrounded by cooks and valets, you should be told that Paul Frees went through that routine long ago in his $250,000 Hollywood digs —Rolls Royce and all. He sold out to move north.

He now keeps only an apartment in Los Angeles, but does have the use of a Rolls while hopping from one studio to another.

"IT HAS A couch in the back, a bar and icebox, and there are telephones in front and rear," says Paul.

His commercials include such products and brands as Kleenex, Del Monte, Nestles (he's the little chocolate man), Pillsbury (he's the little dough boy who gets his tummy poked), Opel Kadet, and Johnson's Raid (he's voice for the bugs "It's Raidddd!").

"What about your movie acting?" we pressed.

"THESE DAYS I can't afford to be an actor. I make more in an hour than a movie or TV star makes in a week. I recently turned down a quarter of a million to do animal animations for the Doctor Dolittle movie in the South Seas with Rex Harrison."

"If I should just drop all my commercial jobs for 13 weeks or so, they would be snapped by other voice men," he said.

"However," he continued, "I am able to do voice dubbing for the movies. For instance, Humphrey Bogart preferred to sail on his boat rather than hang around after picture-taking to correct any lines he flubbed. So I would imitate his voice over those spots."

PAUL FREES is a heavy-set man and he is calm and collected, but his neck turned red when we asked him if the name of one of his children's TV shows is spelled as one or two words.

He roared, "Bullwinkle is one word! You're the only one in the country who doesn't know that show!" But he cooled off at once and told me that he is the voice for Boris Badenov (the bad guy).

"Good casting, there," we ventured. And both of us laughed.

HIS LIVING room is lined with 20 of his own paintings, mostly heads. His oils have hung in the National Gallery in Washington, D.C. He studied at the Chouinard Art Institute.

He says, "I work in all media and get from $3,000 to $5,000 a painting. Sid Caesar and Frank Sinatra have bought some pieces."

It all began for Paul in Chicago when he left school at age 14 to go into vaudeville as a song and dance man.

HIS BOYHOOD practice of mimicking the various dialects of Polish, Italian, German and other ethnic groups living in the Windy City turned out to be the greatest of assets for a person with inborn showman talents.

He suffered through all the stresses and strains common to those who seek stardom in Hollywood and over the airwaves. As an actor he played in some 200 films with practically all the well-knowns. He composed music. He wrote scripts. He played as many as a half dozen characters in a single play, all with different voices.

He has dubbed in the English translations for over 800 foreign films.

HIS 6-YEAR-old daughter is named Sabrina Sara and his 16-year-old son Fred William has quit school and entered show business.

As Paul Frees posed for our camera to catch him on his sundeck overlooking his personal view of his beloved Marin we felt admiration for one man who has made his dreams come true.

FROM VAUDEVILLE, in which he was a song and dance man, Paul Frees graduated up the show business ladder to radio. Here he is seen as an announcer for a Chicago station a good many years ago. From there Frees went on to great success in acting and still greater as a voice in radio and television commercials and cartoons.

Tuesday Is Chess Night At The Pub

20-Member Marin Club Enjoys Favorite Game In Perfect Setting

By DON KEOWN

The dartboard, ales and beers, fish and chips, and Cornish pasties are the attractions that draw most of the regular patrons to Don Johnson's London Arms pub on San Anselmo's Redhill Avenue.

All stimulate a lively kind of conviviality.

But for one group of 20 "regulars" who show up every Tuesday night, there is a quieter attraction and kind of comraderie.

THEY MAKE UP the membership of the Marin Chess Club, formerly the Mill Valley Chess Club.

From 8 p.m. to midnight every Tuesday, they assemble in the quiet of the tavern's banquet room, segregated from the noisier drinkers, diners and dart throwers in the pub's bar room, and indulge in the very serious business of their favorite competitive game.

The club dates back to 1962 when it was founded by L. A. Post of Mill Valley, an electrician with some 35 years of chess-playing experience and with a current rating as a "High A" player.

UNDER POST'S leadership the club met and flourished in Mill Valley for a number of years. Then came the move to San Anselmo and the change in name.

The membership at present is predominantly male. In fact the roster at this time lists but one woman, Ruth Fitzgerald, one of the club's better players with an expert rating.

"Sometimes women visit and play for an evening," says Ralph Fifer, the club president. "But unfortunately, chess seems to be a game women don't take to very much. We'd like to see more women in our club."

VISITORS ARE permitted to attend and play as guests three times. After that, they have to join if they want to continue to enjoy the chess evenings.

The annual dues are $13, of which $8 goes to the United States Chess Federation with which the Marin club is affiliated.

Persons already belonging to the national federation can join the local affiliate for $5.

AT PRESENT the club boasts two masters — Roy Hoppe and Ken Fitzgerald — and three experts, attesting to the high caliber of play at those Tuesday night gatherings.

Using Stanton-design standard tournament pieces fashioned from painted wood and made in France, the Marin Chess Club members take their games most seriously. A "tournament game" may last from three to four hours. A "skittles" or "for fun" game might run for anywhere from a half hour to two hours.

The so-called "rapid transit game" terminates after five minutes.

CHESS, SAYS Fifer, is a very ancient game that has proven its worth by surviving through the centuries. In the hospitable atmosphere of the London Arms with its Old World paneling and leaded windows the Marin exponents of the game find themselves very much at home, he adds.

"It's a perfect setting for chess," he says.

If the chess players indulge in spirits at all, their drinks are likely to be beer or ale. But more often the beverages before them are coffee and soft drinks.

DURING ITS more than eight years of existence, the club has sponsored three major United States Chess Federation tournaments, the last having been held in January of 1966 in Mill Valley with seven masters in attendance.

The club has also had as its guest a number of chess notables, the most recent being David Glohm, current California state champion.

President Fifer extends an open invitation to Marin chess enthusiasts to appear at the London Arms on a Tuesday and enjoy the competition and conviviality.

"WE HAVE enough club-owned equipment to handle 20 players," he says. "After that, the players have to bring their own."

And what is it that the score of members of the Marin Chess Club ranging in ages from the teens to the 70s find so appealing about the game?

"Chess," answers Fifer, "is an imitation of life."

Marin families enjoy the highest average incomes of any county in all 13 Western States.

MARIN CLEANERS Phone 454-4792 — Member N.I.D. of San Rafael, Bel Aire & Fairfax

"Why Didn't Somebody Tell Me?"

You are not expected to be a technical expert on fabrics and colors. Someone should have told you as it is. Should a garment be drycleaned or wetcleaned? Will the colors run? Will the fabric shrink or stretch? Is it a synthetic or natural fiber? At what heat should it be finished?

Most housewives know how natural fibers act, but new synthetics and blends are difficult to distinguish. The manufacturer often takes special care to make a natural fiber. He can fool experts. For that reason manufacturers should label any special servicing requirements. If the fabric requires special handling the label should read "DRYCLEAN ONLY" or "DO NOT DRYCLEAN" or "USE A COOL IRON." The retailer, too, should point out to you any special servicing needs.

It is unfair for complaints on non-serviceable fabrics to be heaped on the cleaner or retailer. Investigate before you make a purchase of a garment that does not have cleaning instructions. Trade only with stores selling reputable products. They will tell you "as it is."

The Competitive Swim In Marin

More Than 500 Youngsters Represent The Six Teams

Just before World War II, Marin County's Beth Kaufman and her teen-age daughter, Rose, were commuting by ferryboat and bus to San Francisco to go swimming at the famed old Crystal Plunge.

Rose, barely in her teens, was competing against girls of college age, and this didn't make sense to Mrs. Kaufman. How much better it would be if girls could swim against girls of their own age.

With the encouragement of coach Charley Sava, sportscaster-swim enthusiast Ernie Smith, and such swimmers as then Olympic champion-to-be Ann Curtis Cuneo (now owner of a pool and swim club in Marin), Mrs. Kaufman took her idea to the national Amateur Athletic Union.

SHE WENT TO 18 different AAU conventions to plead her case. They said repeatedly, "it won't work."

Finally, after a number of disappointments and rebuffs over the years, Mrs. Kaufman was told by the women's AAU committee: "You work out all the rules, and maybe we'll try it."

She did, and they tried it.

Mrs. Kaufman, now a spry 74-year-old who still swims an hour a day near the Greenbrae apartment she shares with her husband, Jack, is proud to say that "not a single one of my rules has been changed since then."

THUS, AGE-GROUP swimming was born in the United States, and this program is largely credited with the tremendous number of medals U.S. swimmers have won in the recent Olympic Games. Because of her work in this field, Mrs. Kaufman has been elected a member of the Swimming Hall of Fame in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

From that inauspicious beginning more than 20 years ago, age-group swimming has grown to the point where hundreds of thousands of youngsters from 6 to 17 now compete locally and nationally in AAU-sanctioned meets. In the Pacific Association there are nearly 9,000 registered in swimming, and more than 500 of them are in Marin County.

Marin County now has six major organized AAU swimming teams. In alphabetical order, they are:

DOLPHINS OF Marin, Hamilton Field Voodoos, Marin Swim Club, Novato Aquanauts, San Rafael Swim Club and the Tamalpais Swim Club. In addition, there are a number of smaller swimming teams that compete in summer leagues not sanctioned by the AAU.

No one swim club dominates the Marin County overall swimming picture. Most of the clubs have a number of outstanding swimmers in most age groups and classes; and each is actively seeking new members in all age groups.

Here's a rundown on the Marin County swim teams:

DOLPHINS OF MARIN — Coached by Art Octavia, who works with the San Francisco Park and Recreation Dept. No actual president now in office; practice sessions are held at Sir Francis Drake High School; practice ranges from one to three hours daily. Organized last year, and has a membership of 30. Mailing address is 1473 11th Avenue, San Francisco.

HAMILTON FIELD VOODOOS — Coached by Beth Musser, a former member of the famous Crystal Plunge team in San Francisco and owner of a private swim school in Novato. President is John Ferris, an Air Force officer; membership open only to dependents of active duty, retired, or deceased military personnel, or dependents of civilian personnel affiliated with Hamilton Air Force Base. Organized in 1964, and membership is now 80. Mailing address is Capt. John Ferris, Post Office Drawer 9, Hamilton Air Force Base, 94934.

MARIN SWIM CLUB — Coached by Galen Hopkins of Sacramento (he commutes six days a week from Sacramento to Larkspur); he is also chief psychologist for three high schools in Sacramento and formerly with the Del Norte Swim Club of Sacramento; assistant coach is Dick Wader of Corte Madera. President is Carney Campion, general manager of the Redwood Empire Association; practice sessions are held at Redwood High School pool, Ann Curtis Swim Club, and the 50-meter pool at Petaluma. Practice each week ranges from one hour for the young novices to three or four hours each day for seniors and advanced A swimmers. Organized in 1966 when the Marin Pirates and Ann Curtis Swim Club merged. Membership is now 150. Mailing address is care of Mrs. D. L. Hughes, Box 271, Corte Madera, 94925.

NOVATO AQUANAUTS — Coached by Rock Morgan, a former top Midwestern swimmer. President is Dr. Robert Patocchi; practice sessions are held at the city-owned pool at Novato High School, and practices are from one hour per day up. Organized in 1965, and membership is now approximately 200. Mailing address is care of Edward Adams, Novato Park and Recreation Department, City Hall, Novato.

SAN RAFAEL SWIM CLUB — Coached by Don Swartz, on a full-time basis; formerly with the Ladera Oaks Aquatic Club of Menlo Park, and the Davis Aquadarts; assistant coaches are Herm Kamai and Tom Zunino. President is Dan Kamler, a San Francisco businessman; practice sessions are held at the San Rafael High School pool, Terra Linda High School pool, and at the aforementioned Petaluma 50-meter pool; practice also ranges from one hour per week to three or four hours per day. Organized in 1960, and membership is now 75, plus 40 novices. Mailing address is care of Don Swartz, Post Office Box 865, San Rafael, 94901.

TAMALPAIS SWIM CLUB — Coached by Bob Casci, a teacher by profession (head of science department at Sacred Heart in San Francisco, but moves to Marin Catholic shortly). President is Carl Massey, an industrial relations officer; practice sessions are scheduled at the Tamalpais High School pool, and are similar in hours to the other clubs. Organized in 1960 by Casci, and membership is approximately 80 to 90 swimmers. Mailing address is care of Bob Casci, 213 Belvedere Drive, Mill Valley.

clubs organized so that the youngsters could swim in their residential areas. It would put more responsibility on the children to get to the pool, minimize transportation problems and just be handier in general.

THE MARIN County AAU swimming program has developed a number of swimmers who have qualified for several national championship competitions. Among the outstanding ones are Vicki Bitgood, Tamalpais Swim Club, in the top 10 nationally in the 100 and 200-yard breaststroke; Robin Bachrach, Dolphins of Marin, in the 100-yard butterfly; Cookie Arrighi, Marin Swim Club, 200-yard backstroke; Leslie Bryans, San Rafael Swim Club (she just moved this summer to the Peninsula), 200-yard breaststroke; and others.

Marin County has a number of swimmers in the national outdoors championships now under way at Louisville, Ky. and will be represented as well next week in the National Junior Olympics at San Diego.

"Marin County AAU swimming is really just beginning to get started," says San Rafael Swim Club coach, 23-year-old Don Swartz. "Each year more and more youngsters are becoming aware of the AAU swim program in the county — more parents are finding out about our clubs and what we have to offer the child from 6 to 17 in the way of athletic achievement, discipline and fun.

"AND ANOTHER important factor voiced by some parents — narcotics and competitive swimming don't mix. You can't take drugs and expect to do well in swimming."

"Our big problem in the county," added Swartz, "is the lack of facilities, the lack of sufficient time for the swimmers in the water. A hard-working Marin County committee is now laying the ground work for an all-around sports complex, which would include a 50-meter swimming pool.

"Now, to get ready for national events in a 50-meter pool, our best swimmers have to travel all the way to Petaluma to practice. Marin County should have a 50-meter pool of its own."

"OUR OWN San Rafael swim practices this summer are from 7 to 8:30 a.m. and from 5 to 7 p.m.," said Swartz. "The pools we and other clubs use are public pools, and not available in normal daytime hours. Thus, our youngsters have to be in the pool at the crack of dawn, or during the dinner hours. But it does your heart good to see the devotion of the swimmers, to see the enthusiasm they have at those early hours (how many adults will jump into an outdoor pool at 7 a.m., and then proceed to swim several miles and do this day-in-and-day-out the year round?)"

Practice sessions are held 10 or more months out of the year, rain or shine, the coach adds. "And even in a driving rain, the kids are in the pool working hard."

Swartz' day is a long one — from the time he gets up at 6:15 a.m. to the morning practice to the time he gets through after the evening practice. Then a quick dinner, and he's off to a Petaluma swim session, or to a meeting, or to do some paper work.

THEN, ON almost every weekend, it's off to a swim meet.

coach is usually a seven-days-a-week, day-and-night project," says Swartz. "It's hectic and not particularly well-paid, but it is highly rewarding. It's the exact opposite of a 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. job.

"As for a future as a swimming coach, it's pretty well tied up with other teaching. Usually the coach is also a school teacher who finishes his school routine at 3 p.m. and is right there at the scene of the practice sessions. Commuting is too time-consuming.

"I believe there are only about 18 to 20 full-time swim coaches in the nation, and most of these own their own swim clubs and pools."

"AS FOR THE level of Marin County AAU swimming," Swartz continues, "it's getting better all the time, and this is due to three principal things — the sincere dedication of all the coaches and assistant coaches, the tremendous enthusiasm the youngsters show in their efforts to improve, and the sacrifices and time of the parents.

"This year, the county had five entrants in the indoor nationals, more than we ever had before. And the times of many other swimmers are getting very, very close to the national qualifying standards. Many of the clubs also have swimmers who are ranked in the top five age-group clockings in the nation."

Swartz adds: "We always have to be on the lookout for new swimmers, particularly the younger ones — 6, 7, 8 years old; we have to let the general public know that we have this AAU swimming program available; we have to make our clubs well-known; we have to work hard on developing novice programs for those without any great experience but with potential, we have to constructively work with the high schools."

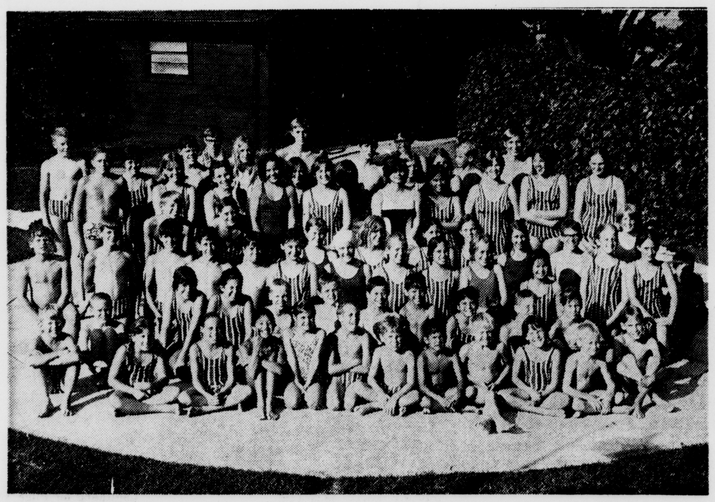
He says it takes three years at least to develop a good swimmer, and the youngsters should start early.

"If anyone is interested in finding out more about any of the swim programs," he recommends they contact the coach or president of the swim club nearest their home.

In the 1928 Olympic Games at Amsterdam, and the 1932 Games at Los Angeles, Marin County had an outstanding swimmer competing — young Eleanor Garatti of San Rafael, now a resident of San Francisco.

After a group of San Rafael citizens had raised enough money to send Miss Garatti to the national trials, she went on to win two gold medals as a member of the 400-meter relay team both years, plus a silver medal in the 1928 100-meter freestyle, and a bronze medal in the same event in 1932. She was given a parade down Fourth Street in San Rafael upon her return.

Now, 40 years later, more than 500 Marin County youngsters practice virtually the year around, many with the hope that someday they might represent the county and the nation in future Olympic competition.



ABOVE, spectators in the background and a Tamalpais Swim Club member in the foreground with back to camera watch the spirited action of a recent swimming meet in the Tamalpais High School pool in Mill Valley in which boys and girls competed against other youngsters in their own age group. The system has proved to be a tremendous boon to competitive swimming on a local level, both in Marin County and throughout the country.

COACH DON SWARTZ reviews with some of his young San Rafael Swim Club swimmers, while they are still in the pool, some of the accomplishments and the mistakes of a practice session. The swimmers' practice time may range from an hour a week to three or four hours a day, and is divided among three pools.

New Yorkers Have A New Crossroads

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

New Yorkers used to brag that 42nd Street and Broadway "is the crossroads of the world."

If you stood there long enough, they claimed, eventually you would see someone you know pass by.

But the scene has shifted in recent years.

The real crossroads now lie crosstown near the East River in the six-block area where the United Nations has its world headquarters.

Stand on any of its streets and it is like watching a parade of all the peoples of the world. There are Africans in dashikis, Asians in robes, Arabs in turbans and Europeans and others in business suits and miniskirts.

SOME ARE diplomats, officials or employees of the United Nations complex that covers some 18 acres between First Avenue and the East River from 42nd to 48th streets.

But many are visitors from every continent come to see where diplomats of more than 120 countries meet to discuss and seek solutions to the problems of the world.

The Travel Pages

Since its Visitors Service began in 1952, more than 16 million people have taken guided tours through the buildings and gardens.

THERE ARE four buildings — the Secretariat Building, the Conference Building, the General Assembly and Auditorium Building and the library. The library and the 39-story, glass-sided Secretariat, housing U. N. Secretary General U Thant's offices and the organization's working staff, are closed to the general public.

DIRECTLY IN front of the entrance is a glass-topped case containing a facsimile of the U. N. charter opened at the pages bearing the signatures of the representatives of the United States, Britain and Soviet Union.

Tours are conducted by girl guides recruited from 45 countries for their personality, beauty and linguistic ability. All must have a college degree or equivalent.

About 90 per cent of the tours are conducted in the English language. But tours in other languages can be arranged in advance — the guides speak a total of 33 tongues. Special tours also can be booked for groups of more than 15 persons and for the blind, the deaf and other physically handicapped.

WRITE THE U.N. Group Program Unit.

Most of the girl guides wear neat uniforms, but are encouraged to wear the exotic clothing of their homelands.

Typical of the guides are Maya Mansukahani, 24, of Bombay, India, and Jacqueline Hanley, also 24, born in Kenya and raised in Ireland.

The black-haired, brown-eyed Miss Mansukahani wears a flowing sari and sandals and has a black caste mark on her forehead. Miss Hanley, a brownette with hazel eyes, wears a miniskirted official uniform.

BOTH SPEAK excellent English, plus other languages.

The tour, which takes about one hour, includes visits to the General Assembly, the Security Council and the economic and social committee halls. The guides provide an expert explanation of the workings of the United Nations and its committees as well as descriptions of the buildings, furnishings and works of art donated by member countries.

Miss Hanley and Miss Mansukahani says visitors, particularly Americans, often ask them to point out the desk in the General Assembly where former Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev pounded with his shoe. But the desk is no longer there—most of the old furnishings have been replaced since then.

TOURS OPERATE daily from 9 a.m. to 4:45 p.m., except on such holidays as Christmas and New Year's Day. Adults pay $1.25 while children, students and servicemen pay 50 cents.

Facilities open to the general public include a cafeteria and souvenir, book and gift shops on the lower level of the General Assembly Building. There also is a U.N. postoffice.

U.N. headquarters is easily accessible by public bus and subway service (fare 20 cents) from most parts of the city. Sightseeing companies also include a stop there on their tours.

AN AERIAL VIEW of New York City's skyscrapers finds the impressive buildings of the United Nations in the foreground. The 39-story, glass-sided Secretariat Building in the center houses the staff of the U.N.'s general secretary and other personnel of the world organization and is closed to the public. But the other buildings are popular attractions for tourists visiting New York. (American Airlines photo)

THE LUSH GREEN promise of the fertile land of Costa Rica caused many of the Spanish conquistadores to forget their lust for gold and to settle down to farming. The scene here is the quiet inlet of Mato de Limon in Puntarenas on the Pacific Coast, almost unchanged since this part of the New World was discovered nearly 500 years ago.

Democratic Little Costa Rica Is The Paris Of The New World

By MAXINE ATWATER

Costa Rica's modern capital city, San Jose, is just like home — if home is Paris.

Picture a mountain city, ringed by blue volcanoes, with shady parks, open-air cafes, pretty girls, and a National Theater that is a copy in miniature of the ornate Paris Opera House.

At 5 o'clock, when offices close for the day, international girl-watchers order an aperitif at a sidewalk cafe and settle down to the pleasant business of selecting their individual choices for Miss Costa Rica.

COSTA RICANS, considered by many to be Central America's most beautiful people, are mostly of pure Spanish blood, descendants of the conquistadores.

When the Spaniards came to this little country — nestled between Panama and Nicaragua — just after Columbus' fourth voyage, they were on their favorite quest: for gold. They found little or no gold, but they did discover a land fabulously rich in agricultural promise. For many, it was more than sufficient and they dug in to stay.

The richness that attracted and held the Spaniards is still to be seen when you approach this narrow land caught between the Pacific and Atlantic oceans: dark-colored earth, bright green farmlands, rushing rivers.

THE COUNTRY, only twice the size of Massachusetts, is 70 per cent plateau, that is devoted to cultivating coffee, vegetables, bananas, cocoa and sugar. A more recent addition to the economy is a growing cattle industry.

Seeing these rich crop lands is only part of the reason for visiting Costa Rica, though.

San Jose, the mountain-wrapped capital, is one of the liveliest and loveliest of Latin American cities. Here, you share the pleasures of the sparkling downtown area and get to know the people, who are hard-working, yet always seem to have time to be friendly to visitors, especially North Americans.

WHILE PEOPLE-watching and simply catching the mood of this unique country — long a model democracy — are a big part of any visit, there are numerous other worthwhile sights and activities.

Generally, visitors have tours worked out that are tailored to their personal interests. In San Jose, you have your choice of a number of excellent hotels, and the restaurants offer a variety of international cuisines. In some ways, the capital is more continental than some of the cities in Europe.

A drive around San Jose provides a contrast of old and new, with views of several fine examples of Costa Rican architecture. The new Department of Justice epitomizes the modern style and artfully blends dozens of varieties of marble, including a smokey blue-gray stone that most people have never seen.

THE NATIONAL Theater is a beautiful structure in the style of the French Renaissance period. It was built in 1898 by a group of coffee plantation owners who wanted to bring theater to San Jose, in an elegant style.

The jewel-box building contains ornate galleries, a regal mirrored salon, stately stairways, and polished parquet floors of some 200 varieties of wood. It could stand equally as well in Paris as in San Jose except for one charming detail: in France the ceiling paintings would be of nymphs and flowers, while here they are gaily-colored scenes of girls picking coffee beans and men carrying the beans to market.

ANOTHER EXAMPLE of Costa Rica's past is the small, but excellent National Museum once a colonial fortress but now a showcase for pre-Columbian gold jewelry, rare pottery and other Indian artifacts.

Driving outside San Jose, you take one of the hemisphere's most scenic drives, first to 11,000-foot Irazu Volcano, then to the fertile valley below where the Spaniards first landed in the 1500s.

The road to the volcano passes through the old capital, Cartago, then winds through fields of vegetables, fences of cypress trees, and rows of wild lilies.

THE CLIMB to Irazu is breath-taking as first you approach, then pass through, and finally rise above puffs of white clouds that curl out of the blue valleys. At each turn you rise higher above the clouds until you have the illusion of flying on top of the world.

Just before reaching Irazu's peak, the terrain changes abruptly from lush green to grey volcanic rock and ash. A quarter-mile walk from the end of the highway takes you to the crest of the volcano where you look down into two craters, one filled with water and the other usually emitting blasts of steam.

After the descent, the tour continues on to Orosi Valley for a look at the early Spanish mission there and its museum of Colonial artifacts. It is also a good time to stop for lunch, usually at the riverside Motel Rio, for a delicious meal of fresh-caught river fish.

Seated on the terrace, not more than 20 feet from the river used by the Spanish explorers 500 years earlier, you gain an even better understanding of why many of the conquistadores decided to stay on in Costa Rica rather than continue their search for the very elusive gold of the new world.

The Decline Of Manliness— Are The Schools To Blame?

By DON KEOWN

THE FEMINIZED MALE by Patricia Sexton; Random House, 240 pages, $6.95.

It's a man's world, they say. And certainly the males do dominate society's power structure, pretty much excluding the females.

But women, says Patricia Sexton in her "The Feminized Male," reap a terrible revenge through the two institutions to which they have been relegated — the home and the school.

The New York University professor of sociology and education devotes most of her provocative book to schools that she labels "dehumanizing and unmanly places" where "boys who succeed . . . often do so by grossly violating many codes of honor and the norms of boy culture."

"Though run at the top by men, schools are essentially feminine institutions," she says, run with curricula, teaching methods and rules of conduct developed and enforced by women and the feminized men who work with them.

"I have harbored for many years the strong suspicion that boys who are real boys — masculine types — have a tougher time in school than those who look and act more like girls," she writes. "I have felt that the school makes sissies out of many boys and feminizes many more by insisting that they act like girls.

"The more a boy gives in to what the school wants, the more feminized he will become."

Schools and child-rearing have not mattered enough or paid sufficiently, she says, to attract our strongest males. And, she continues, "we need tough, courageous men — who are also men of reason, tolerance, learning and goodwill. . . ."

Mrs. Sexton is not one of those educators who look down their noses at sports. The coach, she says, is often the only really masculine influence available to boys in a school. "If sports are replaced by greater stress on sedentary and passive academic work, the masculine qualities of our males, already weakened, may collapse," she warns. Instead, she would make the team sports available to all boys rather than only to natural athletes.

The schools and society, Mrs. Sexton insists, would do better if they attempted to direct, rather than suppress, the natural male aggression in boys.

"It is far better, for both men and women, to be strong rather than weak and physically assertive rather than inert," she declares. "A society without a lot of physical strength and daring may risk serious trouble."

And: "If we block natural outlets of aggression, we may turn it inward. . . . We have much to overcome and destroy — injustice, inequality, poverty, disease, death, hatred, unhappiness, boredom and apathy, floods and famine, illiteracy, anomie, unrewarding work, abuses of power, obsolete social institutions, the imminence of nuclear war. With so many enemies, we need a great deal of fighting spirit. It would seem wisest, both inside and outside our schools, to permit as much aggression as possible, but to direct it away from street fights and into combat with the real enemies of man."

The professor has a number of concrete suggestions for making our schools more harmonious to the "natural drive of boys to be boys." She urges, too, that as we masculinize the schools, we also feminize the power structure of society — "balancing out the sexes so they don't corrode any one spot where they concentrate."

Mrs. Sexton sometimes seems to overstate and oversimplify. She ignores the probability that youthful resentment of the feminization she decries is but one phase of a broader rebellion on the part of our young men. Gender isn't the only quality of their individualism that youths feel to be threatened by the pressures of the establishment. She never convincingly differentiates between boys who fail in school and society as misfits and troublemakers because of their masculinity, and those who flaunt their defiance with long hair and exotic clothing, practices she attributes to their acceptance of feminization.

Largely disregarded is a considerable body of evidence that aggression, once released, is not so easily channeled or directed. And whereas she urges the substitution for the feminized male-feminized female situation of today a masculine male-more masculinized female arrangement, there is always the danger the pendulum there might swing too far. The natural order of masculinized males and feminized females might be a wiser answer to the problem.

Nevertheless, Professor Sexton has expounded an interesting and serious thesis deserving thoughtful consideration. She makes a very strong case for her contention that we have experienced a decline in manliness because boys in their homes and in their schools have been placed under feminine or feminized thumbs that suppress their natural instincts and their proper growth.

The greatest value from our costly space explorations may yet prove to be the rise of the astronauts as a new breed of masculine heroes with whom small boys may identify.

DIET BOOKS are very big these days with at least two having appeared high on the 1968-69 best-seller lists.

A new one that probably will not achieve that lofty status is "The Lazy Lady's Easy Diet" (Parker, $6.95), written by Sidney Petrie, a specialist in the weight-loss field, in collaboration with professional writer Robert B. Stone.

As the title implies, it is aimed principally at the distaff side. And its program revolves around the high protein-low carbohydrate diet that has also been expounded in other recent books.

To that company, it is a sound, helpful addition for those fighting the war against calories. One of its big assets is a much more complete caloric table, listing more foods, and breaking them down by types of calories — protein, carbohydrate, fat.

Some weaknesses include its opening assurance that willpower is not a requisite to successful dieting. Nonsense! As anyone who has ever pared off excess poundage and kept it off knows, it takes a tremendous amount of determination. Indeed, Petrie later devoted chapters to "The Psychology of Overeating" and "How to Strengthen Your Determination and Drive to Lose Weight."

Also in his effort to pin the guilt on carbohydrates as the fatteners, Petrie lets the fats off too easily, for they are culprits, too, and fatty meats, etc., can undo the good of giving up the bread and potatoes. Exercise is accorded some attention, but not much.

In the final analysis, the formula for weight loss remains unchanged — the ingestion of fewer calories than you burn up. And the formula for then maintaining the lower weight — a balance between caloric consumption and expenditure.

DOVER HAS reprinted the extended version of Alexander Pope's "The Rape of the Lock," the mock heroic poem that first appeared in 1712 and grew out of an incident in which two prominent families were estranged after Lord Petrie became overly merry and snipped a lock of hair from the head of Mrs. Arabella Fermor. With the five canto version Dover has included the drawings and cover design of Aubrey Beardsley as they appeared in an 1896 edition. The paperbound classic sells for $1.50.

"THE PROMISE," Chaim Potok's second novel, has been selected as its September book by the Literary Guild.

Sleuths & Suspense

THE MAN WHO WENT UP IN SMOKE by Maj Sjowall and Per Wahloo; Pantheon, 183 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.

The third book in their Martin Beck series by this Swedish husband-and-wife team to be published in English is their best yet. In fact, it is altogether splendid.

Beck, the Stockholm detective, is torn away from his vacation and assigned to a case with possible international repercussions and requiring a trip to Budapest where a journalist of questionable repute has suddenly vanished.

As always, the Wahloos tell their story in a quiet, understated tone that is most effective. The foreign background is superb. And once again there is as much pleasure in experiencing the actions and reactions of Beck and his colleagues as there is in following the unraveling of the mystery. Undoubtedly, this will prove one of 1969's finest.

The 'Roaring Boy' Of Poetry

VOYAGER: A LIFE OF HART CRANE by John Unterecker; Farrar, Straus and Giroux, 773 pages, $15. Reviewed by Laurel Shapiro.

The man beneath the legend comes vividly to life in this epic biography that was 10 years in the writing and must surely rank as the definitive word on one of America's major poets.

Mindful that " . . . the biographer by his very presence may distort rather than clarify the life he uncovers," Mr. Unterecker (a poet himself) has approached his subject with commendable diffidence and sensitivity.

The sheer mass of material he has sifted through is staggering to think about. Crane, a suicide in 1932 at the age of 32, knew dozens of people who are alive today, and evidently few of the thousands of letters he wrote and received were destroyed. A more comprehensive biography cannot be imagined; the author has evidence to reconstruct what Crane was doing, and thinking (thanks to the frankness and frequency of his letters) for almost every day of his life.

That such exhaustive detailing does not deaden the book testifies to Unterecker's skillful organization and his unusually fresh and readable prose.

The author has overcome the temptation to fit the events of Crane's external life into his poetry, although like most poets, Crane certainly wrote from personal sources that, especially in his work, are incidental to the poems themselves. Unterecker has also refrained from dissecting and judging the poetry, presenting instead Crane's correspondence with the friends to whom he was in the habit of sending the many drafts of his work. The letters back and forth show in detail what he and his contemporaries thought of what he was attempting to do.

The matter of the Greenberg manuscripts which has discredited Crane is clarified.

In a friend's cottage Crane found the poems written by Greenberg, already dead of tuberculosis at 23, and, much struck by their primitive artistry, put together a poem from them, which he was foolishly persuaded (Unterecker does not say by whom) to include in his own volume of collected poems. Crane made no previous attempt to publish the Greenberg collage, and evidently viewed his work on it as a homage to the unknown poet.

At any rate, Unterecker contends the so-called "Greenberg influence" is less important to Crane's body of work than the influences of Eliot, Donne or Herbert, who had the greatest meaning for Crane.

Interest in another artist's work was characteristic of

Reviews Of New Reading

Crane; he would tirelessly promote an artist he believed in, an instance of his instinctive generosity that helps explain why literally dozens of people regarded him as their best friend, in spite of inconveniences, outrages and often in the end, ugliness, the "roaring boy" was almost certain to subject them to.

Crane had an insatiable need of his friends; he never recovered from his position as the only child of an outrageously destructive marriage.

"It's time you realized that for the last eight years my life has been a rather bloody battleground for your's and father's sex life and troubles," he wrote his mother before he was 20. But it was no use, he could never escape; his mother's monstrous need of him haunted him to his death, along with his deep love for her, regardless of his final break with her. He was frequently estranged from his candymaking father, who was incapable of understanding his homosexual poet son, and it was not until a few months before the father's death that they were able to discover the genuine affection they shared.

It is not surprising that Crane suffered from agonizing writing blocks. Tormented by his mother's neuroses and his father's coldness, he was also constantly harassed by lack of money, living perpetually on small loans and handouts, losing and getting jobs.

Yet when a rare windfall — a monthly allowance from his father, Otto Kahn's patronage, his modest inheritance — did make possible the calm he needed to write, he would plunge into an exhaustive social round that often ended in brawls and arrests, and always in the familiar frustration of the poems not yet written. For months at a time he could not write a line; it took five years of this haphazard existence to produce his masterpiece, "The Bridge."

As his biographer shows, it was only when the easing of the Crane family emotional drain on him happened to coincide with a period of relative financial security that he was free to write. The time between these creative intervals lengthened, leading to every-increasing amounts of alcohol and sailors, the "roaring boy" escapades that became legendary before his death.

The Guggenheim fellowship to Mexico served to hurl him on to his suicide. Before the year was out, friends bundled him hurriedly out of the country one step ahead of official expulsion, and he completed his destruction by slipping overboard from the boat that was bringing him home.

But the fascination that Hart Crane exerted on almost everybody shines through all the melodrama. Unterecker has written one of the most hypnotic biographies since Boswell's work on Johnson.

A Journalism Giant Shares His Diary

A LONG ROW OF CANDLES by C. L. Sulzberger; Macmillan, 1,061 pages, $12.50. Reviewed by James E. Williams.

The New York Times' C. L. Sulzberger, a member of the family clan who control one of the giants of the American press, has penned one of the most significant personal accounts of the days preceding World War II and the years following through 1954.

It is an heroic effort; never boring in detail. He was there when it happened, received by kings, premiers, field commanders and, often as not, personal envoys carrying highly secret papers to and from heads of states.

This volume, the first of an intended two, was put together from the author's personal diaries. He makes much use of the analytical approach.

Scoops he's had, but in this stimulating account, his retelling of history is a nostalgic look back to years that moulded some of history's greatest leaders, uncorked the devastation of Europe and reshaped the thinking of the entire population.

Thanks to Sulzberger's custom of jotting down in diaries frank and colorful summaries of impressions and private conversations, the reader gets to share in 20 years of historical journalism from 1934 to 1954.

There are so many significant tidbits of information it is hard to pinpoint the most rewarding or surprising.

For example, the author's account during his United Press schooling in the mid-1930s of the climb to power of labor giant John L. Lewis is a treasured gem, all the more important since the recent death of the man who tamed a president and humbled big business.

His is a warm look at Dwight D. Eisenhower, the general and president. He relates Ike's days in France following World War II, the general's entry into politics and finally to Eisenhower's nomination in 1952 at the Republican National Convention in Chicago. And Sulzberger was with Ike in a previous year when the general said rather regretfully, "Anybody is a damn fool if he actually seeks to be president."

There are also personal observations of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, John Foster Dulles, Charles de Gaulle, Konrad Adenauer, Gen. George Marshall and Sir Winston Churchill.

What is a sheer joy in a volume of this size — 1,061 pages — is Sulzberger's record of conversations with such characters as Gertrude Stein whom he visited in Paris in 1945, noting "a fat, most amiable old woman who lives in a strange combination of sloppy comfort and a modern art museum with her friend, the cozy, hideous Alice Toklas."

This is a volume which has to be savored at a leisurely pace.

PAPERS FROM THE SPANIARDS

THE CALIFORNIA COAST: Documents from the Sutro Collection, re-edited by Donald C. Cutter; University of Oklahoma, 278 pages, $7.50. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

Adolph Sutro contributed to the history of Spanish California by commissioning the discovery and translation of 13 documents written by Spanish explorers in the 16th and 18th centuries. They were published, with English translations by George Butler Griffin, in 1891 by the Historical Society of Southern California.

The documents were burned in the San Francisco fire of 1906. The volume has long been out of print.

University of Oklahoma Press has now preserved them in a new edition, re-edited by Donald C. Cutter, professor of history at University of New Mexico.

The accounts are fascinating in their reflection of the combination of devout religion and superstition of the period; two of them have been written by Father Junipero Serra and others by Fathers Tomas de la Pena and Juan Crespi, all familiar names to students of California history. Their greater importance lies, however, in the accounts of the voyages of Sebastian Vizcaino in 1597 and 1602. These expeditions, here described by Vizcaino himself, made the discoveries that were allowed to lie without follow-up for over 150 years yet resulted in the Spanish dominance of what is now California.

The Inventor

THE UNREASONABLE AMERICAN by Houston Branch and Wendell Smith; Acropolis Books, 216 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Jeff Greer.

This is the story of Francis W. Davis, who invented a workable power steering unit in 1926, then spent more than two decades battling with the Detroit giants to get them to adopt his device while they labored to wrap him up in legal tape or "invent around" him. Davis kept the whole thing in perspective by comparing his corporate battles to a gigantic poker game. He maintained his status as the "unreasonable man" on whom all progress depends, according to George Bernard Shaw.

Be forewarned that this book seems to be a new twist on the old "vanity press" in which authors paid for publication; this book's sponsor is the Academy of Applied Sciences, launching a series of "individual case studies in depth of the creative process in action."

Despite overtones of the old adulative biographies of the self-made heroes of yesteryear, this is interesting reading, particularly for youth.

A Firm Course

THE POWER OF DECISION by Raymond Charles Barker; Dodd, Mead, 181 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

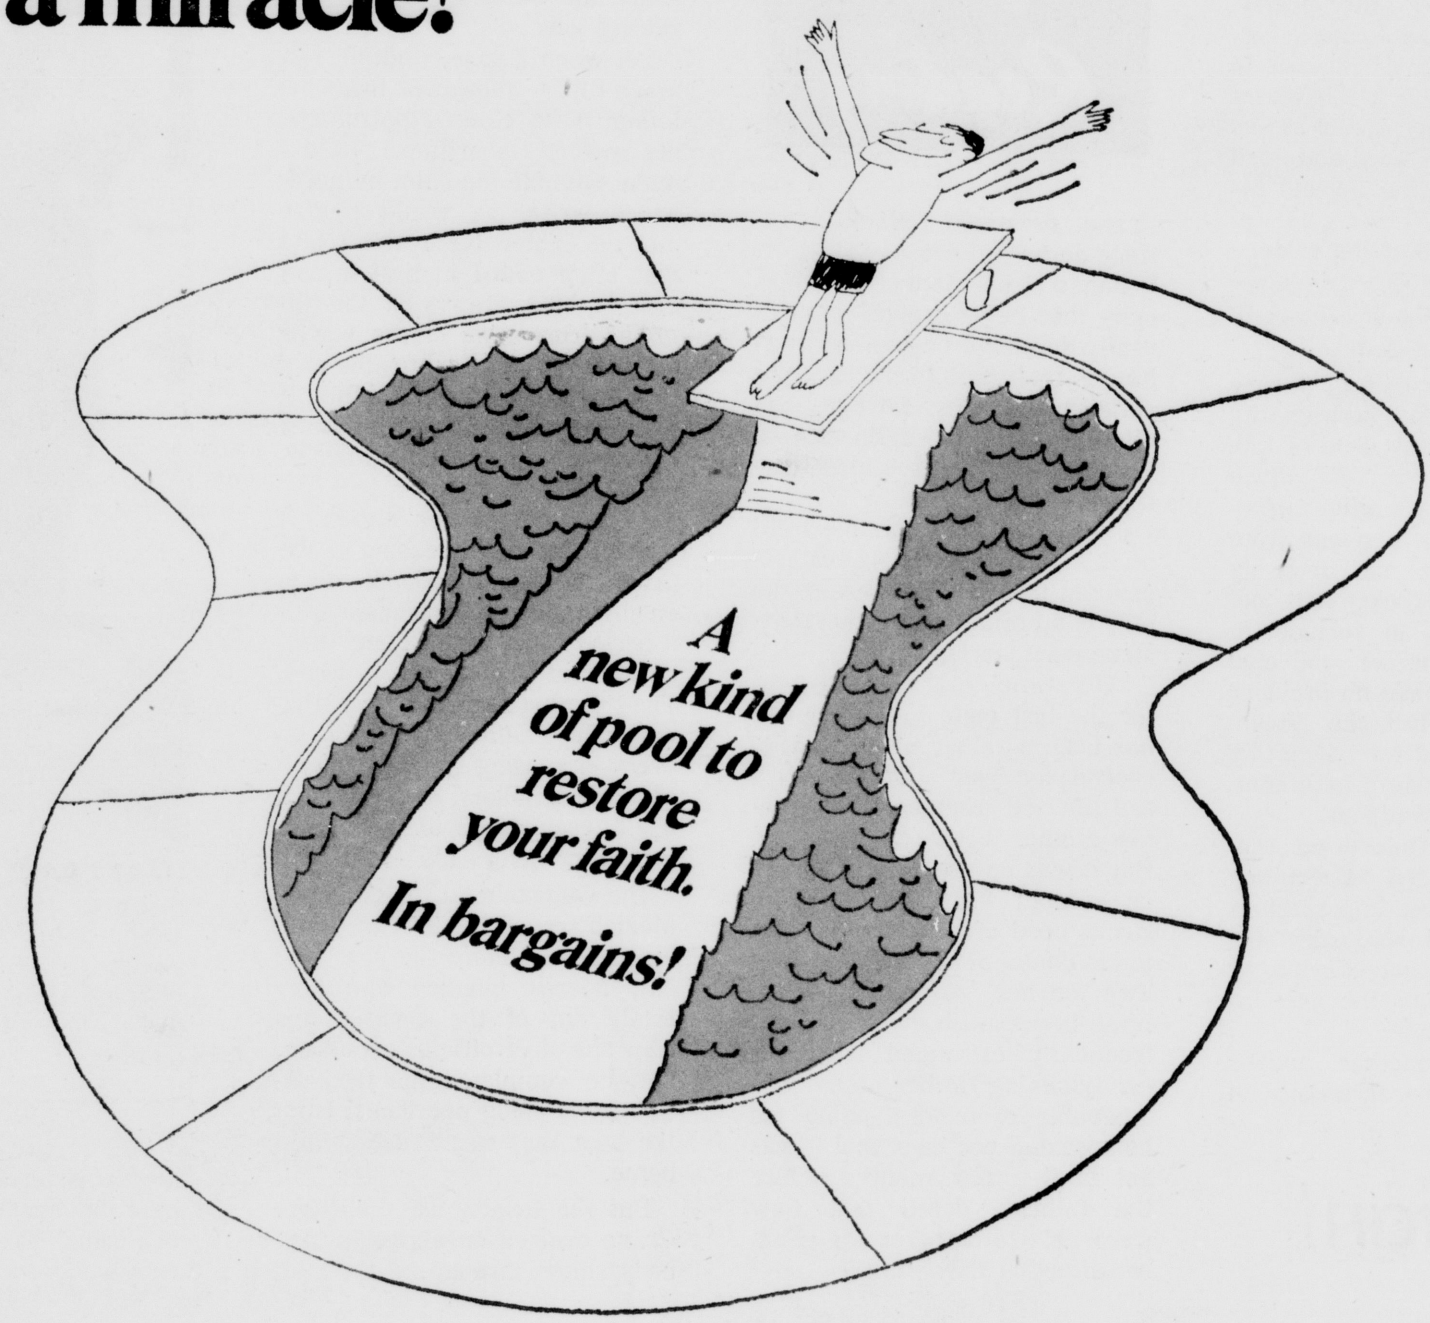
Indecision, writes Raymond Charles Barker, a veteran author in the self-improvement field, is a major contributor to man's failures and distress.

Furthermore, he claims, difficulty in reaching a decision contributes to the possibility of adopting ultimately an incorrect decision.

In this book, he analyzes the decision-making processes, including the role of the subconscious mind.

His conclusion is that it is the decisive person who lives creatively, happily and successfully. The idea is to gain command of your mind and your emotions — to use them affirmatively, even aggressively. You do this, he counsels, by making up your mind firmly and promptly upon a course of action, and then proceeding without besitation, faltering or doubt.

Anthony announces a miracle!



We gave it Anthony's nickname, Tony. It's a new concept in pool construction that actually comes with its own built-in cantilevered deck.

Even the price is constructed differently. Each Tony will have a different price tag to give you the greatest advantage. If your soil conditions and accessibility are good (and chances are they are), you get an extra low, low price. Why should you pay for someone elses construction problems?

The Tony is the world's first mass-produced pool. An exceptionally low unit price is predicated on the sale of more than 500 pools. Who else but Anthony—the world's largest pool builder—could mass produce and wholesale a quality pool?

You save on a Tony because a new concept in tile design eliminates the need for a costly installation of coping, substituting instead, a bonus of 350 square feet of beautiful cantilevered decking.

The Tony is truly the definitive value in pools today. You'll save much money—but perhaps even more important—you'll save headaches and aggravation for years to come. Anthony—the only pool company on the American and Pacific Coast Stock Exchanges—gives you written guarantees that also hold water.

If you want a big, elaborate, reliable, glamorous swimming pool with a lot of extras and you haven't got much money... what you want is a miracle. What you want is a Tony swimming pool. Fill in the coupon. Or phone.

Showrooms open daily 9 to 6; Saturday and Sunday 10 to 6.

NEW BOOKS FOR THE JUNIORS—

-Children's literature was enriched in 1903 by the appearance of a bunch of imps called "goops" by their creator, Gelett Burgess.

Dover Publications has now reprinted unchanged Burgess' "Goops and How to Be Them" and "More Goops and How Not to be Them," both complete with all the lively illustrations and both prices at $1.25 in quality paperback format.

The goops endeared themselves to small readers with their antics, pranks and misventures, yet at the same time made some very sound points on behalf of the cause of good behavior in the process. Much of their charm lies in the ease with which youngsters can identify with the goops and their propensity for t r o u b l e, and there is no reason why today's child should not continue to feel those close ties. Burgess' catchy rhymes and fun-filled sketches still seem quite contemporary.

Jacqueline J a c k s o n brings back her adventure-prone Russell children and friend Kenny, who were so delightful in "The Paleface Redskins," for new action and antics in "The Ghost Boat" (Little, Brown, $4.50). There's an eerie touch to this one — is it really the spirit of a drowned fisherman who rows that boat along the moonpath on the lake? Or is there a more earthly explanation? Mrs. Jackson is particularly adept at depicting relationships among children. And in this one she shows a nice touch for maintaining a shivery Halloween-like atmosphere.

"Black Pride" (McGraw-Hill, $4.95) is the title of a book by Janet Harris and Julius Hobson and it might also be a more important phrase than the oft-heard "black power" to a race that has clung to its sense of dignity despite shameful treatment. Two long-time workers in the civil rights field have joined to present the story of the struggle of black people for their rightful place in American life. Special recognition is accorded such men as Prosser Gabriel, Nat Turner, Frederick Douglass, W.E.B. DeBois, Marcus Garvey, Malcolm X and Martin Luther King for their differing contributions to that struggle. It is a story in which the black race can, indeed, take pride, and inspiration. And an answer to those who ask why the Negro doesn't do something for himself. He has — a great deal.

If You Pine For The Pines

Favorites Of The Forests Thrive Here

The pine is a stately and fragrant tree most often associated with the wide open expanses of our mountain and coastal forests.

But there are also pines that are perfectly at home in a Marin urban or suburban backyard or frontyard.

And there is an increasing number of Marinites who derive from pine trees the special satisfaction that other hobbyists gain from growing roses or from fuchsias.

MARIN NURSERIES are well stocked with pines that meet our special climatic conditions.

Certainly the most widely grown in our gardens is a California native, the Monterey Pine.

It is a dignified specimen with radial branches that bear long needles. And where space permits, a grouping of Monterey pines makes a most appealing landscape sight.

For instance, it has long been a favorite subject for the fine art of bonsai. The long-needled tree can also be trained or pruned to attain other interesting effects.

As a landscape specimen it is a picturesque focal point. But you would be wise to start with a fairly large-size plant because of its growth rate and habits.

Other pines for urban and suburban gardens include the Canary Island Pine, which grows in a conical form with blue-green foliage; the Italian Stone Pine, a bush specimen in its youth that matures into an open umbrella head of rich green, and the Austrian and Scotch Pines with a shrubbiness that can be a definite landscaping asset.

THE TORREY PINE is one that does not develop well in our climate, and its sparse foliage can be disappointing.

Right now one of the major pleasures of many Marinites is a drive to the forests of pine and other conifer trees for a soul-refreshing experience of sight, scent and sound.

But between such trips, there is no good reason why they should not be enjoying pines in smaller number and size right on their own home grounds.

Border Possibility

If your are searching for a fine-leaved foliage plant to edge a border, why not consider Irish Lace? This is a variety of marigold grown for its leaves.

CHECKLIST FOR MARIN GARDENERS

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- Cut back hydrangeas by snipping off the spent heads after they have finished blooming, but delay more serious pruning until next January or February. Do feed the shrubs now with an acid-type fertilizer.
- Feed your lawn lightly if it has been a month since you last fertilized it. Continue to water regularly and deeply.
- Plant citrus, avocado and other evergreen fruit trees now while the selection of varieties is good.
- Continue to put out bait for snails. Persistence is the only real protection against these pests.
- You can transfer hibiscus in full bloom from nursery containers into the garden. But also try them in redwood containers to add color to your outdoor living area.
- Plan — but not plant — for the winter annuals and fall bulbs you will be putting into the ground in cooler weather. Where should they go? How many? And what varieties?
- Consider the transformation a bit of water — a fountain, a pond, a waterfall — can make in your garden. In summer, it can make a yard seem degrees cooler.
- Now is a good time to spike the ground in your yard. Summer use and sunshine has almost certainly caused it to bake and compact.
- Looking for some summer reading? Why not a gardening book to help you with your landscaping?

Play It Safe With Power Tools

Handyman's Page

Power tools have enabled millions of home owners to tackle projects they wouldn't have even considered years ago.

Unfortunately, the phenomenal rise of power tool users since World War II has brought with it a marked increase in the number and severity of home workshop accidents. Since this is a fact deplored by all, the manufacturers are continually adding safety features to their products.

In the final analysis, though, only the user can take the steps necessary to prevent accidents.

Statistics reveal that many accidents occur because small hazards are overlooked. A do-it-yourselfer using a power tool slips on a spot of oil in his workshop or a wet leaf on his patio. Or he loses control of a tool because there isn't enough light to reveal that the blade is about to run into a piece of metal.

Nearly every power tool comes with an instruction pamphlet or manual telling not only how to use it properly, but how to use it safely. But the instructions get a quick glance or none at all.

EVEN WORSE, the user deliberately disregards the guard or other gadget designed to reduce the possibility of an accident, simply because he doesn't want to be bothered with it, just as most automobile drivers and passengers neglect to fasten their safety belts.

A good accident-preventing habit is to turn off a power tool when engaging in conversation. Many a nasty injury is suffered when someone using a power tool turns around to answer a question, usually from a member of the household.

If you're using an electric machine and someone walks into your workshop, shut it off and do your talking before resuming work.

WHEN A machine is not in use, disconnect it from the electrical outlet. And when you have to make an adjustment or change of accessories — such as putting in a new blade — unplug the cord. You can never be sure you or someone else won't accidentally turn on the tool while you're working on it.

As for the cord itself, the same rules apply to the handling of it as those on all electric lamps and appliances. Take it from the outlet by pulling the plug and not the cord itself.

There are a few double-insulated power tools on the market. Aside from those, be sure the machine is grounded.

IF IT COMES with a two-pronged plug, ground it according to the manufacturer's instructions. If it comes with a three-pronged plug, use a three-hole receptacle.

If an adapter is used to accommodate a two-hole receptacle, the adapter wire should be attached to a known ground, usually the center screw of the receptacle plate.

A PORTFOLIO OF TIPS ON FLOOR CARE

Armstrong Cork Co., Lancaster, Pa., 17604, has published an updated portfolio entitled "What Every Homemaker Should Know About Floor Care."

The envelope contains articles dealing with:

Maintenance of vinyl flooring.

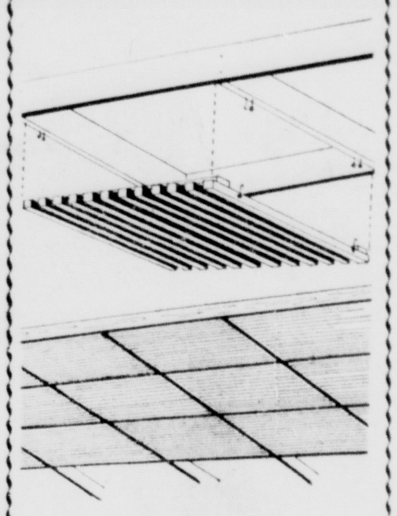
Facts about wood floor care.

Tips on selecting a wax for resilient floors.

Hints for removing spots and stains from floors.

Advice on removal of built-up layers of wax from resilient flooring.

Hanging Shade



FOR SUMMER shade without eliminating winter sun, try a patio roof with removable sun shades. Built of spaced cedar one-by-ones nailed to a one-by-two at either end, the shade pads hook into eyes screwed in the bottom edge of the roof joists and hang slightly below the roof frame. The plan works for both eggcrate and trellis roof designs.

How Well Lighted Is Kitchen In Your Home?

It is sad to say, but the average warehouse is better lighted than the average kitchen.

What is important to remember is that different kinds of work or activity require different levels of light. You need general lighting for the kitchen so that you can see into drawers and cupboards. This is achieved by a ceiling fixture utilizing either fluorescent or incandescent bulbs.

The minimum recommendation is two four-foot 40-watt fluorescne bulbs behind a translucent diffuser. Or you may use a minimum of 150 watts of incandescent, also shielded.

YOU NEED light on your counters. This is higher intensity light so that you can read recipes easily, measure quantities and do delicate tasks like balling cantaloupes, preparing hors d'oeuvres or decorating a cake.

Higher intensity lighting is also desirable over the range. It permits you to see into the pots. An effective light within a ventilating hood is generally adequate here.

And you need higher intensity light over the sink. Most authorities recommend a tube or bulb directly over the sink, but lighting on either side of the sink directly over the adjoining countertops also has its advocates.

SURPRISINGLY, colors popular in other areas of the house, even the darker ones, may be used in the kitchen without impairing the quality of illumination.

The light colors have been used for years, with gloss surface, because of their reflectance qualities. But it is now known that the use of warm and cool colors in shades or tints makes little difference in the general lighting effect so long as minimum reflectance is obtained from the ceiling and walls.

This sounds technical, but it is not so bad as it seems — reflectance is simply a measure of how much light is reflected from a surface.

MINIMUM reflectance from the ceiling should be 60 per cent and from the walls 35 per cent.

If you use very dark colors on the walls, you will fall below the minimum, but there is no reason why dark colors cannot be used in moderation as accent points or panels.

Darker colors for kitchen cupboards are now very popular. But you can use them safely because their position and arrangement in the kitchen are compensated for by light appliances and fixtures. The total reflectance is proper for general lighting.

HERE'S A KITCHEN design that is different. By setting the sink at an angle, additional counter space is available for food preparation. And you can set up an "assembly line" to polish off the evening dishes. Marlite mural panel has been used behind the sink to take the place of a window on the inside wall. The plastic-finished mural is resistant to heat and moisture and can be damp-wiped clean. It can be installed over any solid backing with wallboard adhesive.

Good Guys' Gal Lives Quiet Life

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Joyce Van Patten, who plays Claudia Gramus in 'The Good Guys," lives a much less hectic life away from the madcap series.

Joyce has the following: Blonde hair, blue eyes, a husband named Hal Lynch, two children and two cats.

Her offspring are Casey, 16, and Talia, 10.

THE CATS just moved in on the family without invitation and for no apparent reason were named Pearl and Rastus.

Joyce and her family live in one of those big old Spanish houses built in the smogless days of Southern California when residents chose to think of themselves as living in the splendor of the conquistadors.

However it takes more than stucco walls and red tile roofs to live the life of a Spanish grandee.

A cleaning woman comes once a week to tidy up the four bedrooms, four baths, spacious oak-paneled dining room, office and living room.

Husband Hal, a singer and actor, is also a master carpenter. He has filled their home with beautifully crafted pieces of furniture, including a desk, dressers, and beds. At one time he made superb guitars.

JOYCE WORKS from 6:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. Her schedule makes it difficult for her to keep regular hours in the kitchen.

'When I'm not working I do all the cooking for the family," she said. "But when the series is in full swing for good old CBS, the family runs out for pizza or fried chicken."

Because her mother is of Italian descent, Joyce has mastered Italian cookery which suits all members of the family.

HAL AND JOYCE entertain as much as possible, usually limiting their dinner parties to three other couples from their social circle of some 20 or so friends, most of them performers.

On off-days and weekends Joyce plays tennis on public courts or at the home of a friend.

She also likes the garden in the sunshine, pruning plants, trimming hedges or sunbathing.

HER IDEA of boredom is shopping. Unlike most women, Joyce would rather work than prowl the boutiques. She wears casual California clothes and favors pants and pert hats.

Joyce moved to Hollywood from New York in 1961 when Broadway shows began diminishing in number. Now she is a confirmed Californian and determined to do something about the smog.

"I'm going to become an activist," she says. "But it's not just California, the whole world is polluting the air and the water. I don't know how effective I'll be. But if all I can do is carry a placard, that's for me."

Joyce agrees that her fellow regulars on the show, Herb Edelman and Bob Denver, are "Good Guys," but Hal Lynch is best of all.

A Triumph For The Trumpets, And A Superb Satie By A Top Pianist

By JOHN SUNIER

"THE BAROQUE AND CLASSICAL TRUMPET" — Works by Scheidt, Bach, Handel, Telemann, Purcell, Manfredini, Vivaldi, Torelli, Albinoni, Hertee, Fasch, Stoelzel and Biber — Various soloists/German orchestras and Eastman Brass Ensemble — Turnabout TV 34295-99 (5 records):

This is a block-buster of a bargain box!

Collecting a tremendous variety of recordings featuring one or more trumpets with orchestra, taken from a variety of earlier issues and some unissued sources, Vox has assembled a rich treasure-store of stirring music. They are arranged in somewhat of a chronological order and demonstrate the development of composing for the classical trumpet over a couple centuries.

The trumpet playing is all of the very highest level of performance, and the sound and surfaces excellent in all respects. While there are sure to be duplicates with one or two selections in most classical collections — such as "The Second Brandenburg Concerto" or Haydn's "E Flat Trumpet Concerto" — the vast majority of the collection is unusual material that will be new to the ear. The modulations in Manfredini's concerto are weird and wonderful, and Stoelzel's "Concerto for Six Trumpets and Orchestra" is a sensational thing. The notes are brief and enlightening reading.

The standard on LP of his tongue-in-cheek piano music to date has been Angel's three-record release with Aldo Ciccolini.

Glazer is a superb pianist. Vox's offering includes several short pieces not present in the series on Angel, and the engineering is notable for its silent background (due to the Dolby noise reduction system being employed).

This adds up to a real toss-up as to which series to purchase.

By the way, some pieces in the Angel series are also not in the Vox, and the Vox is lower-priced. I'm keeping both.

"BUS STOP" is the title of this impressionistic painting by Virginia Kraemer that is included among her oils that are on exhibition at the Torrance Galleries, San Anselmo, through August. Mrs. Kraemer began her art career while a feature writer on the California Girl Magazine staff in Los Angeles by doing her own illustrations for her stories. She has since studied with such well-known artists as Sergei Bengart, Lenard Kester, Robert Ueeker and James Cooper Wright. Prior to moving to Mill Valley last year, she had won 10 awards for her work in Southern California. Torrance Galleries is also showing oils by Jean Victor through August.

Official Word On Hall Delay

By DAVID DIETZ

Marin County officially acknowledged yesterday that the new Hall of Justice at the Civic Center will not open next month.

Although another delay in completion of the $11.7 million building had long been rumored, county officials had not previously confirmed it, officially holding to the announcement in April that the building would be ready next month.

Yesterday, however, Asst. County Administrator John F. Barrows wrote the board of supervisors that the opening is now "generally scheduled" for October — one month short of being a year late.

Reports persisted, meanwhile, that even the October timetable was unrealistic because of the slow pace of the work.

In his letter to the board, Barrows quotes project architect Aaron Green as expressing doubt that the building will be finished in six weeks, or by Oct. 1.

"This doubt is based upon the frustrating experience of the past months during which very little progress has been made relative to the overall magnitude of work necessary to complete," Barrows quoted Green as saying.

Green told the Independent-Journal recently that housecleaning chores remained.

Barrows' letter went on, "The judiciary, the sheriff and other affected department heads are becoming increasingly frustrated in their efforts to plan properly the operations of their departments (now located in the courthouse in San Rafael) through the continuing delays in occupancy of the Hall of Justice."

He recommended that the county "demand of the contractor (Robert E. McKee of Dallas, Tex.) an early and substantial increase in the current pace of efforts with specific and satisfactory action toward completing or correcting all work items as required by the architect."

Barrows said that the contractor has complained that Green is interpreting too strictly some provisions of the contract and this puts an "excessive and . . . undue burden" on the contractor.

"In the opinion of the county counsel, the public works director and the county administrator, these contentions provide absolutely no justification for delays in the project," Barrows wrote.

He said if the contractor wishes to raise these issues, he should do it by completing the building under protest. "The protest can then be resolved after completion of the job."

Barrows recommended that McKee be given until Aug. 27 — at which time a meeting is scheduled with McKee's repre-

B52 Raids Try To Abort New Red Offensive

SAIGON (AP)—Despite a heavy mauling, about 5,000 enemy troops in the jungles near the Cambodian border north of Saigon are believed preparing for new attacks, U.S. officers said today.

To try to keep the enemy off balance, 10 missions totaling up to 50 U.S. B52 Stratofortresses dropped 750 tons of bombs on suspected enemy positions in that region in the past 24 hours, the U.S. Command reported.

It brought to 45 the number of B52 missions in the border area since the enemy opened a fall campaign early Tuesday with a score of ground assaults and the shelling of 150 allied bases and towns across South Vietnam.

"We expect another strike any time in the near future," said a U.S. officer, "more action of a rather heavy nature. They made a heavy strike Tuesday and followed it up with nothing really significant."

The heaviest fighting has been in the border provinces forming an arc ranging from 55 miles northwest to 80 miles northeast of Saigon.

Fifty-eight more enemy soldiers were reported killed along the border today, bringing to more than 1,100 the number killed in the region by allied in-

More Blood Spills In Belfast As Religious Rioting Goes Unabated

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Hit-and-run snipers, machinegunners and firebombers spread more bloodshed through Belfast's flaming streets today in new fighting between Catholics and Protestants outsidt barbed wire zones manned by 400 British troops.

Military sources said up to 600 more soldiers might be moved into Belfast by sundown to reinforce the peacekeeping troops.

At least eight persons have been shot to death since the religious rioting erupted in this capital city of Northern Ireland Thursday night. Two died early today. Another 336 persons have been injured, including 66 by gunfire.

A ninth person was killed in the city of Armagh.

Across the border, the overwhelmingly Roman Catholic Irish Republic mobilized 2,000 reserve troops to support 1,600 men already massing along Northern Ireland frontiers.

The illegal Irish Republican Army (IRA) said it was ready to send help to Northern Ireland's Roman Catholics.

The 10 months of intermittent strife in Northern Ireland erupted into near civil war this week and is the result of the Roman Catholic minority's contention that the predominantly Protestant government of Northern Ireland systematically discriminates against Catholics, particularly in jobs, housing and voting.

The Irish Republic which includes all but the six northern counties which make up Northern Ireland has never recognized the 1920 partition which established the predominantly Protestant area which is still loyal to the British Crown.

British troops rolled into the adjacent Protestant and Catholic neighborhoods along the Shankhill and Falls Roads Friday night. Police were helpless to separate mobs fighting with guns, firebombs, stones, bricks and fists.

The British troops surrounded a mile square area with barbed concertina wire and violence scaled down to sporadic sniper fire and rock throwing.

But the fighting erupted anew in areas outside those where the troops stood guard.

Roman Catholic gunmen roared past the home of militant Protestant leader Rev. Ian Paisley, firing into his house. Others blazed away with submachineguns at the Tenant Street police station.

Police in armored cars rolled up and down Crumlin Road between entire blocks of burning buildings firing bursts of machinegun fire at gangs racing along in the glow of fires. Gangs hijacked buses and overturned them for barricades from which they fired guns.

Florida Bracing For Fury Of Hurricane

Worst Blow In 54 Years Predicted

MIAMI (AP)—Hurricane warning flags flew along the Florida Panhandle today as Camille, the worst storm to threaten that coastal area in more than half a century, roared in from the Gulf of Mexico with winds of 115 miles per hour raging around the eye.

Pushing ahead tides of five to 10 feet, Camille was described by forecasters as the most dangerous storm to head for that white sandy coast since a devastating blow in 1915, in an era when hurricanes had no names.

WIDE AREA

Hurricane force winds howled over an 8-mile-wide area around the center, gales lashed a 300-mile-wide expanse, and conditions favored further increase in intensity, forecasters said.

Gale warnings were raised at noon EDT from Pensacola, Fla., to Cedar Key well down on the Florida peninsula.

The north-northwest track Camille had followed since she hit western Cuba with a fierce one-two punch of wind and rain earlier had aimed her toward a point where the coasts of Florida, Alabama and Mississippi converge on the Gulf shore.

TO MISSISSIPPI

"Camille still is not showing the northerly turn, but we are predicting that she will," said Dr. Robert H. Simpson, chief of the National Hurricane Center at Miami.

Red and black hurricane warning flags were expected to fly by noon EDT for a smaller, more pinpointed area.

Slowly rebuilding fury lost in the overnight crossing of Cuba, Camille chased small craft into port the length of the Florida West Coast and all the way around the Gulf to Grand Isle,

'MINOR EXPLOSION'

Hamilton Nuclear Danger Is Doubted

By LARRY D. HATFIELD

A saboteur could not trigger a nuclear explosion in Marin County by attacking Hamilton Air Force Base's quasi-secret nuclear arsenal, an Air Force investigator was told yesterday.

The testimony was offered by a nuclear weapons specialist at a pre-trial hearing for Sgt. Robert V. Ballou, 22, a security guard who was kept on duty — including the guarding of the nuclear weapons storage area — after he was declared psychiatrically unstable by an Army psychiatrist.

Ballou, who had said he would do anything, including using a gun, to get out of the Air Force, is accused of threatening S/Sgt. Arthur J. Moore with a loaded and cocked carbine, then a .38-caliber pistol on Aug. 2. The hearing which concluded yesterday was to determine whether he should face a court-martial.

Chief M/Sgt. William M. Leopold, a nuclear weapons maintenance superintendent at Hamilton, was called by investigating officer Capt. John D. McQuaid Jr. to counter earlier testimony that suggested a nuclear explosion could be detonated by an unstable guard with a gun.

Asked, in a "hypothetical situation," whether a nuclear warhead could be exploded by shooting at it, Leopold replied: "(He) could sabotage the weapon, that's all . . . there would be no possibility of a nuclear explosion."

He said, however, that a "minor conventional explosion" could be touched off.

When McQuaid asked him what the "maximum damage" by such an explosion would be, Leopold said, "The most he could possibly do is to destroy the weapon. At the most, it (the conventional explosion) might scatter a little bit of radioactivity. . . ."

Leopold emphasized that the radioactivity would be limited to "several hundred yards," if that, and would be caused by nuclear devices in the warhead being scattered by the explosion, similar to that caused when the Air Force accidentally dropped H-bombs in Greenland and at Palamores, Spain.

There would be no danger to the civilian population, he said, adding that built-in safeguards made nuclear explosions impossible except when highly-skilled teams triggered them.

McQuaid asked Leopold if he saw "any possibility of a mushroom cloud rising from an attempts to sabotage" a warhead. The sergeant replied, "None whatsoever."

Pressing a point, McQuaid asked him "if you heard the statement that Marin County could be destroyed by the (sabotage of a nuclear weapon) by one individual, would you say that statement was totally erroneous?"

Leopold answered, "Yes, sir."

In the closing summary, Ballou's attorneys, Air Force Capt. Frederick Graham and Novato attorney Robert V. Carrow conceded that Ballou had attacked Sgt. Moore but blamed the incident on Maj. Donald H. Tidwell, the commander of the security police, for keeping Ballou on duty after the psychiatric evaluation.

Carrow told the inquiry, "It is difficult in this case to keep sight of the fact that the issue is not Major Tidwell's competency . . . I think his imcompetence has been well established."

Charging that Tidwell "did not heed his responsibility either to the individual, Sgt. Robert Ballou, or to the Air Force," Carrow said Tidwell ignored the psychiatrist's report. Ballou's

Nine Injured In Three Auto Crashes; One Reported Critical

Nine persons were injured, one critically, in three separate accidents last night in Marin County, the California Highway Patrol reported.

Jerrold Frederick Lehman, 30, of 1720 Center Road, Novato, was reported in critical condition today in the intensive care unit of Novato General Hospital after his motorcycle hit a car at 11:55 p.m. yesterday on the Highway 101 offramp at the intersection of Nave and South Ignacio boulevards.

Hospital officials said Lehman was unconscious following surgery for a fractured skull, multiple bone fractures and back burn caused by gasoline.

Highway patrol officers said Lehman failed to stop at the yield sign on the connector road between Ignacio and Nave boulevards and hit a car driven by John Irwin Ahlers, 42, of 12 Capilano Drive, Novato.

Five persons were injured at 1:25 a.m. today when a car driven by Michael Alan Axton, 25, of the Presidio of San Francisco crossed over the center line on the Golden Gate Bridge 300 feet north of the toll gates and hit a car driven by John Aura Estes, 43, of 299 Flamingo Road, Mill Valley.

Estes was reported in good condition at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Francisco with undisclosed injuries. His wife, Marguerite Estes, 37, and daughter Katherine, 17, were treated for minor injuries, according to hospital spokesmen.

Axton and Larry Baker, 20, whose address is not known, were taken to Letterman General Hospital, where neither the nature of their injuries nor their condition was available today.

Three persons were injured in a four-car accident at 11:25 p.m. yesterday midspan on the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge, highway patrol officers said.

Treated yesterday at Marin General Hospital were Jurgen Knemeyer, 26, of Gualala, Mendocino County, for minor burns; Charles E. Whitmire, 19, of Bremerton, Wash., for a cut forehead; and Richard W. Jacobs, 22, of Bremerton for a cut hand.

Officers had no details of the accident which involved cars driven by Knemeyer, Sheldon Lawrence Spangler Jr., 20, of Fremont; Coralie Jeanne Paris, 21, of Fairfax; and Sauborn Grant Jr., 41, of San Rafael.

Whitmire and Jacobs were passengers in Kentmeyer's car, officers said.

HOUSTON HONORS HEROES

Apollo 11 astronaut Neil A. Bolinas Lagoon Filling Work Ordered Halted

Filling of southeastern portions of Bolinas Lagoon was ordered halted yesterday.

Marin County Public Works director Donald R. Frost, who issued the order, said he had been informed that the filling, on the property of developer George P. Leonard of Stinson Beach, had exceeded legal limits.

Conservationists and county parks and recreation officials had expressed concern over the effect of filling on lagoon wildlife and shellfish.

Frost said the fill limit without a permit from his office is 1,000 cubic yards, but that much more had been dumped on the Leonard property. One estimate placed the amount at 5,000 cubic yards.

Frost said that not only does Leonard lack a county fill permit but also needs one from the Army Corps of Engineers, which also has jurisdiction.

Leonard has applied for a permit that would enable dumping of 54,000 cubic yards of fill on portions of his 22 acres along Shoreline Highway.

About 10,000 yards would be used at once to provide a new bridge and realigned causeway to the Seadrift community from Shoreline Highway. This is the spot where filling had been going on until yesterday.

Leonard plans to hold the other 44,000 yards in reserve for future filling of property farther north that already is partially filled. He said a shopping center was planned in that area in the distant future.

Melton Ferris, a member of the parks and recreation commission, said he was concerned over whether filling in the causeway area would disrupt tidal action in the extreme southern portion of the lagoon, a popular feeding area for birds. Leonard said it wouldn't.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Grant Wins Battle

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Cary Grant won a court battle yesterday to keep his 3-year-old daughter from being taken to visit her maternal grandparents near Seattle, Wash.

The actor told Superior Court Judge Marvin A. Freeman that little Jennifer disliked the parents of his ex-wife, actress Dyan Cannon, and became upset last Christmas when she was taken to visit them.

He said Jennifer would be "just dumped" in Seattle with Ben and Clara Friesen, adding, "I am quite concerned."

Miss Cannon was in tears during Grant's testimony and told the judge Jennifer had nothing but "love and devotion" for the grandparents.

Johnson In Public

ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP) — In one of the rare public appearances since leaving the White House, former President Lyndon B. Johnson walked down the street of this city without attracting a crowd.

Johnson, visiting Rochester yesterday for a one-day meeting of the foundation that runs the Mayo Clinic, went unnoticed by some passers-by as he walked a block from his hotel to the meeting. He flew back to his Texas ranch last night.

The clinic's administrator emphatically denied a published report that Johnson underwent routine medical tests while here. Johnson has served on the Mayo Foundation since February.

Atheist Gets Hearing

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Atheist Madalyn Murray O'Hair has won a federal court hearing for her suit that seeks to stop American astronauts from radioing religious matters while in space.

Mrs. O'Hair had previously instituted a suit that led to a Supreme Court ruling against mandatory prayers in public schools.

She now seeks a temporary restraining order against the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the astronauts to keep them from permitting or conducting any religious activities in space, "especially the reading of the sectarian Christian religion's Bible."

Canadian Defense

Defense Minister Leo Cadieux ended months of rumors with an announcement yesterday that Allard, a 56-year-old French Canadian, will retire from the country's No. 1 military post.

Unlike Allard, who has an army background, Sharp, 53, came up through the Air Force, which was a separate service before the mid-60s unification of Canadian armed forces.

Indonesian Decision

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — President Suharto declared today that the decision of West Irian to remain part of Indonesia is "absolute, it cannot be made void by anyone under any pretext whatever."

Suharto, delivering his annual state of the union speech before Parliament on the eve of Indonesia's 24th anniversary of independence, formally announced that the troublesome territory will be granted "full and real autonomy" now that it is legally part of Indonesia.

Hungary Is Warmer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department sees a little thawing in the sometimes icy relations between the United States and Hungary in an exchange of letters of concession — granting certain privileges — between the two nations.

Department spokesmen said the letters were exchanged following talks in Budapest between U. S. Ambassador Alfred Puhan and the Hungarian deputy foreign minister, Bela Szilagyi.

The agreement allows Hungary to join most other East European nations in setting up its own trade-promotion office in New York City.

Airport Gun Duel

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — The Swiss government has filed murder charges against three Arab commandos and an Israeli security agent in the Israeli El Al airliner gunfight Feb. 18 at Kloten Airport.

The three Arabs have been confined in Switzerland and their requests for bond refused. The Israeli security agent, Mordecai Rachmanin, charged with second-degree murder, has been free since March on $23,000 bond. Israel has guaranteed he will return for trial.

Cambodian Review

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Prince Norodom Sirhanouk, the Cambodian chief of state, said today his country is ready to re-examine its policy of rejecting U.S. aid.

Sihanouk was quoted by the official press agency as saying the new cabinet under Gen. Lon Nol would have complete latitude in determining new policy lines — "for example the question of American aid and cooperation with the United States."

Collision On Nile

CAIRO (UPI) — Divers today searched the Nile River 10 miles north of Cairo for more victims of yesterday's collision between a pleasure boat and a barge. Seven bodies have been recovered so far and about 25 other persons are missing and feared drowned. Sixteen persons were rescued a short time after the boat slammed into the barge, splitting the pleasure craft in two and spilling its 40 to 50 passengers into the water.

A New Grandfather

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Entertainer Danny Thomas is a grandfather. His 25-year-old daughter, Terri, gave birth to a 6-pound, 8-ounce girl yesterday in Cedars of Lebanon Hospital. She is the wife of Larry Gordon, a publicist.

Doctors said mother and daughter, named Dionne Theresa, were in excellent condition.

Asthma Convention

LISBON (UPI) — Medical authorities from 38 countries sailed yesterday aboard a Portugese cruise liner on a 20-day voyage to discuss one of man's most troubling afflictions—asthma. The 300 delegates, guests of the Portugese government, will attend the 6th congress of the International Association of Asthmology aboard the liner Principe Perefeito during its cruise off northwest Africa.

Israel Claims Guerrillas Intercepted

TEL AVIV (AP) — The Israelis said today they killed seven Arab infiltrators in two separate overnight clashes along the Jordan River frontier.

An army announcement said the Israelis killed five Arab guerrillas in a band of eight intercepted two miles south of the Dead Sea early today.

The band was attempting to set up Soviet-made rocket launchers, a spokesman said.

Three Soviet-made rifles, four bazooka shells and ammunition were reported captured.

Two hours earlier, an army patrol intercepted another band in the Negev Desert 50 miles north of Eilat, killing two Arabs, the spokesman said.

Russian-made rifles, "sabotage packages" and timing devices were reported abandoned by the fleeing Arab survivors.

The army made no mention of Israeli casualties.

The army also said an Israeli border policeman was shot and wounded near the Lebanese border when his jeep came under light arms fire, and bazooka shells fell into an Israel camp in occupied Golan Heights of Syria early today.

DEADLY FREIGHT TRAIN

Indonesia Reports Defeat Of Communist Insurgents

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — President Suharto declared today the army has defeated Communist guerrilla forces in West Kalimanthan—Indonesian Borneo.

"The execution of suppressing armed rebellion by the PGRS (Sarawak Peoples Guerrilla Forces) in Kalimantan can be said to have been accomplished and we are now beginning the territorial operation to rehabilitate and restore the daily life of the people," he said.

The Indonesian army, working with Malaysian units across the border in Sarawak, have killed or captured hundreds of guerrillas, mostly Chinese, in the last three years.

Suharto, in his annual state of the union speech in Parliament on the eve of Indonesia's 24th anniversary of independence, announced that the government is sending 2,500 lower echelon Communist prisoners to the remote island of Buru in the Moluccas group to clear land and make a living by farming.

This, he said, is the first step toward rehabilitating the country's 80,000 Communist detainees and may be "a positive step" toward solving the serious and costly problem of keeping the prisoners and easing them back into society.

He appealed to Indonesians for "understanding and assistance" in helping released prisoners readjust.

While noting that internal security has improved in Indonesia, he warned that the government will not tolerate any move to revive the outlawed Communist party and will deal harshly with those who aid the underground.

He appealed to this nation's 115 million people for unity and declared: "Let us sacrifice everything for the success of development."

Suharto, who has staked his reputation and his nation's future on the five-year development plan launched last April, said: "The greatest danger which might threaten us at this moment would be the failure of the five-year plan.

"Failure of this development would not only mean the loss of faith in the government but would also mean the destruction of the achievements in economic progress we have obtained with so much effort."

Any major deterioration in Indonesia's still precarious economy, he warned, would permit a comeback by the Communist party.

"Strategically speaking our economy is indeed getting better," he said, but "I know very well that your living conditions, you peasants, vendors, civil servants and soldiers, are still burdensome."

The president made no bones about it—Indonesia's slow mending economy, which his government salvaged from its headlong race to disaster under the ousted Sukarno regime, is still "far from our expectations."

As he has done many times already, Suharto called on this vast and diverse nation to set aside religious, political and regional differences to build up the economy to ensure progress.

Suharto, the one-time army strongman dressed in his now familiar dark business suit, repeated in his speech, broadcast nationwide, his oft-stated warning that although the economy is finally moving "in a positive direction" his people should not expect an overnight miracle.

"I said that our economy is improving," he added. "I did not say 'already good.' We should truly understand this."

Dirty Water Foes Collect Congress Help

WASHINGTON (AP) — Backers of the war on dirty water are rapidly recruiting a large bipartisan army of congressmen to battle for a $786 million increase in the President's pollution control budget plan.

President Richard M. Nixon asked for $214 million for construction of waste treatment plants. Supporters of a move to raise the level to the $1 billion authorized by Congress in 1966, when it passed a comprehensive water pollution act, said yesterday they have rounded up 162 House members who will vote for the extra money.

Rep. John D. Dingell, D-Mich., heads the group of five Democrats and two Republicans which has been gathering pledges of support since July 15. Backers include Rep. Hale Boggs, D-La., the House whip; five committee chairmen and many members of both parties who rarely are supporters of big spending legislation.

The money involves matching grants to state and local governments. The federal share is from 30 to 55 per cent.

A major contention of the backers of the additional funds is that the 1966 law encouraged states to begin ambitious projects to clean up lakes and rivers in the expectation of getting substantial federal assistance. But, except for the initial year, federal appropriations have not come up to the authorized level.

Twenty-two governors also have given their support to the funds boost move.

Senator Will Fight Any Thai Troop Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John Sherman Cooper, fearful of another Vietnam, will press for putting the Senate on record opposing use of U.S. troops in Thailand to combat possible Communist insurgency.

But the Kentucky Republican declines to relate this effort to the acknowledgement by Nixon administration sources that a secret 1964 U.S.-Thailand military agreement could put American forces under Thai command in event of a threat from Communist Pathet Lao and North Vietnamese troops operating in Laos.

Cooper, who withdrew an amendment to the military aid portion of the $20 billion military authorization bill because of the congressional recess, said in an interview yesterday he will offer it when the Senate resumes consideration of the legislation next month.

"I hope it will prohibit use of funds for the support of local forces by U.S. troops to engage in combat against any insurgency," he told a reporter.

The amendment would limit U.S. aid to Thailand and Laos to supplies, equipment, materiel and related costs in order to prevent the authority for assistance from becoming a basis for expanded U.S. involvement in the two Southeast Asian countries.

But senior members of the Armed Services Committee said the Cooper amendment might cost U.S. lives.

At the State Department, press officer Robert J. McCloskey said the secret agreement "specifically states it cannot be put into effect without the specific agreement of both governments."

McCloskey also said "this contingency plan has not expanded our defense commitment to Thailand beyond that already contained in the SEATO (Southeast Asia Treaty Organization) treaty.

"It involves no commitment to any specific military action and that is made clear in the document itself," McCloskey said, adding that as a military agreement, not a treaty, it does not require Senate confirmation.

According to administration sources, the main feature is that U.S. troops could be committed to help Thai forces stop Communists in Laos before they reach Thailand.

Under such a plan, the over-all allied command would be exercised by Field Marshal Thanom Kittikachorn, Thailand's prime minister and defense minister.

The 1964 plan provided that, in such an instance, Lt. Gen. Richard G. Stilwell, then chief of the U.S. military assistance Advisory Group in Thailand, would become ground forces commander. In the event of a general Red Chinese offensive, the over-all command would have been assumed by Gen. William C. Westmoreland, then U.S. commander in Vietnam.

The sources insisted the plan does not expand U.S. commitments under SEATO but was signed to reassure the Thais that the United States would honor its commitments.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, one of the members of the Foreign Relations Committee who have assailed the Pentagon for refusing to give it a copy of the agreement, suggested earlier in the week that it involved putting U.S. troops under Thai command and asked for an explanation.

Church was unavailable for comment on the latest details of the plan.

Cooper said he could not comment on the still seceret agreement.

Canadian Recalls 'Days Of Horror' In Zanzibar Cell

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — A free lance Canadian journalist described today "five days of horror" in a Zanzibar jail where he was held on suspicion of espionage.

Ronald Laytner, 35, of Toronto, arrived here after being deported by Tanzanian authorities.

Laytner said he had gone to Zanzibar last week after covering the civil war in Biafra.

He said he saw Communist Chinese troops and workers in Zanzibar and "got himself invited" into an Arab house from where he could observe them and take photos with a telephoto camera.

Laytner said he got his pictures, but later was seized by police who accused him of spying and thought his telephoto lens was "some sort of weapon."

Laytner said he lost 28 pounds during his six days in police hands. He said he was taken to a Peoples' Revolutionary Court to be tried for criminal trespassing.

Possible Tribunal Jurist Claims Record Is Cleared

NEW YORK (AP) — Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. says a Justice Department investigation exonerated him of a conflict-of-interest charge in connection with a 1963 federal court decision he made in a labor case.

A Washington dispatch in the New York Times today said Haynsworth called the allegation "blatant falsehoods" when reached at his Greenville, S. C., home yesterday. He said an investigation made when Robert F. Kennedy was attorney general showed the charges against him were false.

The Textile Workers Union accused Haynsworth of conflict-of-interest six years ago after the judge joined in a ruling that was unfavorable for the union. An AFL-CIO official agreed yesterday that the charge was found to be baseless, the Times said.

Reports of the old charges began circulating amid speculation that President Richard M. Nixon would nominate the 56-year-old federal appellate judge to the Supreme Court.

The core of the textile union's 1963 charge was Haynsworth was first vice president and a shareholder of Carolina Vend-a-Matic Co., which had contracts with plants owned by Deering Milliken Co., a large textile firm, the Times said.

Haynsworth voted with the majority in a 3-2 decision by the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, that reversed a National Labor Relations Board finding that Deering Milliken had committed an unfair labor practice. The NLRB said the company had closed a plant to avoid bargaining with the union.

Abernathy Reelected As SCLC Head

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — The Southern Christian Leadership Conference has reelected Rev. Ralph David Abernathy as president and pledged a militant new attack on poverty, racism and war.

The reelection came yesterday, a day ahead of schedule, as the civil rights group hurried to finish pressing business before recessing a four-day national convention in Charleston today. The convention will reconvene in Chicago to decide whether the SCLC will become more involved in an assault on what it calls "racism" in the building trade unions there.

Abernathy said the SCLC will spend the next year involving itself more heavily in labor affairs, including the organization of nonprofessional hospital workers in several Southern cities. He said there will be a nationwide effort to organize the working poor into labor and political groups.

The convention met in the historic port city that this year became the scene of the SCLC's first effort to organize nonprofessional hospital workers. The SCLC led numerous demonstrations on behalf of Negro workers striking two Charleston hospitals before compromise settlements were reached.

As the convention neared its end in Charleston, the SCLC received another request for help in the city. Negro garbage workers and street workers went on strike yesterday and Abernathy swiftly promised help.

The convention was filled with tributes to Abernathy, a close friend and colleague of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Abernathy became president of the SCLC after King was slain while leading a strike of garbage collectors in Memphis.

Abernathy, a Baptist minister, was reelected without opposition, despite a campaign by one SCLC faction to replace him with the younger Rev. Jesse Jackson of Chicago. Jackson endorsed Abernathy in an emotional speech.

Party Paper Report Protested By Dubcek

VIENNA (AP) — The Czechoslovak Communist Party newspaper Rude Pravo said today it received a protest, apparently from Alexander Dubcek, over an article it printed earlier this week.

The article quoted Dubcek and other Communist officials as telling a top-level conference May 12 and 13, 1968, that there was a danger from the right and that, if it tries to remove the Communist Party from power "we will mobilize all means and suppress such force."

Dubcek, then party chief, was further reported to have said: "The Communist Party of Czechoslovakia can rely entirely on the aid of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union."

Today Rude Pravo said "one of the quoted officials made a protest with us" in which he charged that "parts of the speeches were published in a tendentious and untruthful way."

Although Rude Pravo did not say who made the protest, the wording of it indicated that it must have been Dubcek himself. He still holds a position of power, president of the Parliament and member of the party presidium, and this would oblige Rude Pravo to acknowledge his protest.

When the minutes of the 1968 meeting were published by Rude Pravo, observers here said they thought they appeared incomplete. Dubcek had made several speeches before the invasion in which he also attacked the right wing, but he always added the Czechoslovak Communist Party was strong enough alone to repulse it.

Therefore it appeared logical that Dubcek had added the same statement in the speech from which Rude Pravo had been quoting but which it did not publish.

Commenting on the protest, Rude Pravo, which now firmly supports the tough line and new party chief Gustav Husak, said that "before August (the invasion), one position after another was weakened" and ". . . there is no other solution than to organize the struggle against the right wing in all spheres."

The newspaper did not go so far as to say the invasion was needed—no leading Czechoslovak Communist up to now has said so—but the comment continues in the vein of previous statements, that the inactivity of the Dubcek leadership was at least partly to blame for the invasion.

The attacks on Dubcek were part of a campaign to persuade the Czechoslovaks to ignore the first anniversary of the invasion. This has been coupled with threats to use force against troublemakers

PROTEST A BUST

'Bras-Less' Advocate Gets Fired From $18,000 Post

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A woman engineer who says brassiers are "nonfunctional and uncomfortable" was fired after urging female employees at an aerospace firm to come to work yesterday without their bras.

A company spokesman said her planned antibra protest was a bust.

"Bras are horrible things, and I thought calling for a 'bra-less Friday' would be fun," said Joan Andre, 39, who lost her $18,000 job at General Dynamics in suburban Pomona as a manufacturing and engineering supervisor.

Mrs. Andre, a 39-29-43 divorcee, says she "never, never, never wears bras."

She said she was fired Thursday for "conduct unbecoming a member of management" after urging for a week via bulletin boards that the company's 2,200 women employes come to work "unstrapped" yesterday.

A General Dynamics spokesman said apparently not many women had the courage. "We don't know of anyone working without their bras," he said.

Mrs. Andre said her superiors told her that "society in the Pomona area would not accept the braless fad and that for a woman in my position it was considered improper behavior."

She said her supervisor told her the company would lose a number of work hours because men would stare at women without bras.

"I told him men have been staring at women for centuries and will continue to stare at women—bra-less or not," Mrs. Andre said. "Someday bra-lessness will be bigger than miniskirts."

Mrs. Andre is looking for another job.

Home Building Industry, Asks Federal Credit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Association of Home Builders, pointing to the continuing drop in the building of new housing, wants the government to institute credit controls.

In July, for the sixth consecutive month, new construction of private housing slipped—down 9 per cent from June. The Commerce Department said the level fell to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1.34 million units.

Eugene A. Gulledge, president of the home builders' group, maintained the production slide "is accelerating faster than during the disastrous period of 1966 when production in October of that year fell to an annual rate of just 845,000 units."

During the first seven months of 1966, housing starts dipped 31 per cent. Currently, fresh construction of housing is down 29 per cent from the point six months ago.

WOMAN DRIVER SETS MARK AT 34 FAILURES

LUPSET, England (AP) — After spending $480 in the past eight years on driving lessons, Miriam Hargrave has done it again. She just flunked the test for a driver's license for the 34th time.

"I drive quite well," Mrs. Hargrave protested, "but none of the examiners wants the label of the man who passed Miriam."

She said she plans to complain to the transport. ministry.

Judge Wipes Out L.A. Dance Laws

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Sections of a new county ordinance which prohibited adults from dancing with minors at youth events and prohibited minors at public dances where liquor was served, were found invalid in Superior Court yesterday.

Judge Bernard S. Jefferson said the provisions do not have a legitimate purpose of protecting the public health, safety and morals.

The court issued a permanent injunction preventing the county, the Board of Supervisors and Sheriff Peter Pitchess from enforcing the two sections.

A WILD RIDE

They Abducted Him With Knife, Kisses

An amorous, knife-wielding woman and her young feminine companion abducted a 44-year-old San Rafael man last night in San Francisco and forced him to drive them to Black Point.

Bruce Rosemont Burket, 44, of 9 Serra Way, told sheriff's deputies that his wild ride began about 7:15 p.m. when he stopped at a stoplight at Scott and Lombard streets in San Francisco.

Two women got into his car and one, whom he described as about 30, pulled a knife with a two-inch blade and told him to drive them to Vallejo.

While heading north on Highway 101, Burkett said, the knife-wielding woman repeatedly kissed and caressed him while her companion, who appeared to be about 18, urged that she attack him with the knife.

When he neared Black Point on Highway 37, Burket told the women that he did not have enough gasoline to drive to Vallejo and they told him to stop.

While one held the knife on him, the other flagged down a light tan van, he said, and then the two got into the vehicle and were last seen driving toward Vallejo.

At 6 a.m. (EDT)) Camille was located near Latitude 24.1 north, Longitude 85.8 West or about 420 miles south of Panama City, Fla. Gales gusted out 150 miles from the center.

Simpson also added the full force of the hurricane should strike the coast Sunday.

Camille's top winds were knocked down from 115 to 100 miles per hour as she lashed across the rich tobacco croplands of western Cuba, sending hundreds of persons fleeing to high ground in that flood-vulnerable area.

Havana Radio was silent today on the damage wreaked by the storm as rains up to 10 inches sent floodwaters pouring down the mountainsides.

As Camille spun toward a landfall, tropical storm Debbie grew to hurricane force in the Atlantic 1,200 miles east-southeast of San Juan, Puerto Rico. Debbie's winds were up to 80 miles per hour and increasing.

Risky Mosquito Found In Marin County

The mosquito that carries encephalitis in California's central valleys appeared in greater numbers than usual in Marin and southern Sonoma counties this summer, according to the Marin County Mosquito Abatement District.

However, not a single case of human encephalitis has been recorded in the state to date and "evidence at hand" does not indicate this type of mosquito can cause encephalitis "under prevailing Marin County conditions," the district reported.

Hijacker Sets Course To Albania

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — A DC3 Olympic Airways plane with 31 persons aboard was forced to fly to Albania today and land, the line announced here.

A bulletin from Olympic, which is owned by shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis, said the plane "was forced from its course to Vlore."

It was the second time an Olympic Airways plane had been hijacked; the first known hijacking of a plane to Albania.

A young Greek waving a pistol at the pilot hijacked a DC6 airliner to Cairo last Jan. 2 on a flight from Athens to Iraklion, Crete. The passengers returned later that day aboard another Olympic plane and the gunman, George Flambourides, was arrested in Cairo when the plane landed.

Greece still is officially at war with her northwestern neighbor. A Greek-Albanian treaty was never concluded following the end of World War II and borders between the two countries are heavily guarded.

Greece would have to negotiate for the passengers and plane's return through a third party which enjoys diplomatic relations with Albania, and there are few of these.

fantrymen, artillery, armor and air strikes since Tuesday. U.S. officers say in this period about 50 Americans have been killed and probably 200 wounded in the area.

Generally, the North Vietnamese and iVet Cong slackened their activities along the Cambodian border, where fighting has been sharp on most days since Tuesday. But allied forces presumably were keeping the pressure on the enemy.

The enemy increased the tempo of shellings, however, hitting 45 allied bases and towns with rockets and mortar shells overnight. The average has been below 40 since the high point Tuesday.

U.S. sources with access to field reports said allied troops had killed about 3,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong soldiers throughout South Vietnam since Tuesday. In that period they estimate at least 200 Americans have been killed and probably 800-1,000 wounded. South Vietnamese losses were believed to be about the same.

One U.S. source said that despite the B52 raids and heavy losses, the enemy is still capable of mounting a strong attack.

"He's capable of hitting pretty hard where he's closest to his sanctuaries and supply lines," the source said.

sentatives — to show substantial progress in the work.

Failure to comply, Barrows said, should be considered a breach of contract, enabling the county to hire others to complete the job.

McKee had earlier promised — after numerous contract extensions — that the building would be ready for final inspection on July 25, but then asked for more extensions when it became apparent that that deadline could not be met. The county ruled out more extensions.

Although the official construction agreement still calls for a completion date on July 26, McKee has not been held in default. Asst. County Counsel Richard V. Godino said it is normal practice to decide upon any penalties when the job is completed.

Much of the blame for construction delays had fallen on allegedly lethargic subcontractors, most of whom are not from Marin and have no local reputations to protect.

Hondurans Claim Looting During War

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — Troops from El Salvador that invaded Honduras during a week-long war between the two countries last month assaulted women, robbed and destroyed private property and committed murder, Honduran witnesses told an investigation committee from the Organization of American States yesterday.

"The Salvadorans murdered my father and beat my mother," said Jose E. Chinchilla of Las Piles, one of the 50 persons who testified. "Then they looted their house and robbed the few livestock they had."

Rev. Rodrigo Brennan, a Roman Catholic priest from Nueva Octoepeque, said he was captured by Salvadoran troops and taken to their capital, El Salvador, after being accused of espionage. He said the U.S. Embassy arranged his release.

When he returned, he said, women parishioners told him that Salvadoran troops had assaulted them. He also said the troops desecrated his church and took money from collection boxes.

The OAS commission promised those who testified that it would investigate a charge that more than 60 women and children were kidnaped and taken to El Salvador.

Probation Set In Kentfield Narcotics

Jacklynn Diane Arzio, 20, of Oakland, was placed on a year's supervised probation yesterday in Marin Municipal Court for being in a place where narcotics were used Feb. 24 in Kentfield.

Goldstein Jr. ordered a new probation report after he sentenced her to a day in jail for contempt of court Aug. 1. Mrs. Arzio slammed her chair into a table in protest when her husband, John Nicholas Arzio, was sentenced to seven days in jail for being where narcotics were used.

own plea for a transfer and Ballou's past record in "obviously circumventing and disregarding" Air Force "human reliability program" fitness standards for men in sensitive positions.

"I submit that the guilt, if any lies, lies with Major Tidwell," Carrow said. He urged McQuaid not to recommend a court-martial because the evidence presented in the two-day hearing was not sufficient to prove Ballou had "sufficient control of his actions on the night in question to establish specific intent."

Graham told the inquiry, "We blame Major Tidwell for making a command decision that was certainly a mistake . . . perhaps an honest mistake." He saidt he defense does not blame the Air Force for the incident, but blames Tidwell.

Later, however, Graham said that the government was partly responsible because Tidwell was an agent of the government. Saying he would find it "hard to swallow" if the Air Force, instead of rectifying its mistake, "lashed out against an unfortunate and, I think, innocent individual," Graham suggested that court-martial proceedings not be brought and Ballou be given a medical discharge.

"He warned the government and the government didn't listen," Graham said, adding that a recommendation for a court-martial would reflect an attitude by the Air Force of "and eye for an eye and 'Vengeance is mine, saith the Lord'."

McQuaid will make his recommendation, possible late next week, to base commander Col. Michael J. Stubblarec, who can either accept or reject the suggested course of action.

MARGOT JONES, professional dancer, choreographer and singer, works on movements for her ballets in the inspiring setting of a cliff above the ocean. Her dance company performs ballets with a message. Universal love and the oneness of man are the themes of of the performance to be held tonight at 8 p.m. in Angelico Hall on the Dominican College campus in San Rafael. The performance which will combine dancing, singing and drama, is sponsored by the Festival Theater. (Don E. Wolter photos)

Dancer Carries Message Of Oneness

By JOAN LISETOR

"Many performers measure success materially — they have to have a fancy car and a penthouse. I don't really care about success," says Margot Jones, professional singer, dancer and choreographer.

Miss Jones is back in Marin, her home until six months ago, to direct a performance of her dance company, which will be presented tonight in Angelico Hall at Dominican College.

WHAT MARGOT cares about is a message in the ballets her company is performing.

"Our message is the oneness of man and universal love, a phrase I hesitate to use because it has been so overused," she says. "But we want to show what is beyond the human being who is black or white."

The message most recently has been delivered in Bay Area churches, where her dance company has performed as a part of the church service.

"Churches are touching more levels since they realized they were not doing enough to reach the people with just words. They have realized that they need art, dance and music."

She feels that creativity can ride on the coattails of religion in its rebirth, and the two forms can work together to produce a better world.

"I WANT TO tour churches throughout the United States and work on a creative rebirth of enjoyment on more than one level," she explains. "In the setting of a church people are susceptible, and the audience is there. You don't have to seek it commercially."

She is very excited about an upcoming performance, Sept. 7, when her group will perform at Grace Cathedral in San Francisco, the first time in history the church has allowed dance during its services.

Born in Palo Alto and reared in Los Altos, Margot came to Marin in 1964. Her mother, Mrs. Joan Jones, still lives in Tiburon, but Margo has moved to Chico, where she will begin teaching dance and choreography in the fall at Chico State College.

Also in Chico she has done the groundwork for a children's theater.

"I love working with children," says the 27-year-old performer. While living in Marin she taught at Maringate Nursery School, at St. Andrew Presbyterian Church in Marin City and has been active this summer in a children's program in Marin City.

As a child, Margot decided she wanted to enter a creative field but was not sure in which area. She has tried singing, appearing among other places at the Hungary I in San Francisco, a night club she considers almost unique because it is geared toward entertainment instead of drinking.

"IN OTHER places there is always the drunk who wants to hear 'Melancholy Baby.' The only way to handle him is to tell him to sing it himself. Performers develop ways of handling hecklers, but that life just isn't for me."

Margot says dancing is more rewarding to her, and she enjoys what she is doing now because she can combine dancing, singing and acting and express herself spiritually, mentally and emotionally.

"I am up in arms over television," she says. "It doesn't have enough creativity. It is art by laymen who learn lines, read lines and their timing and types of material are not creative. Television viewers are physically oriented. There is no emotion of spirit on television because it is all on one level — physical — and people are mesmerized by it."

Another area of the theater of which she is critical is the Broadway stage, where the measure of success is based on the length of a play's run.

"Broadway has repressed a new birth in the creative arts and stifled creativity by its repetition. Actors say the same lines performance after performance, and they have no chance for inspiration," she says.

"INSPIRATION IS what art is all about. Did anyone teach Leonardo da Vinci how to paint or Isadora Duncan how to dance? And Nijinsky was inspired from within."

Margot says creativity must be felt, not taught, and hopes that this will be the theme of a reconstruction period she believes is going on in the field or art.

If this reconstruction is successful creative persons won't have to support those who are only interested in making money — agents who take 25 per cent of an entertainer's salary and night club owners who just want to sell drinks, she says.

Margot's 18-year-old sister, Gillian, has formed a folk rock group of six girls, who have been appearing in Marin and San Francisco, mostly in coffee houses. Their music, Margot says, is on the folk level, and it has a message.

CHURCHES AND coffee houses, she explains, are better for the creative performer than the theater. The theater is not an effective way to communicate the point because there is not room for originality in a theater format.

Margot says she dreams of appearing in Trinity Church in New York and then she wants to do concert work, performing what she wants to perform.

"Contrary to what most people believe, a creative person can survive," she says.

Velveteen Coat Can Add Flair To A Drab, Practical Wardrobe

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE,

I have seen some expensive coats made of printed velveteen, and they look so exciting that I would like to make one. My problem is I don't have a very large wardrobe and am afraid that because these prints are so different and unusual, it would be hard to find one that goes with everything I already have. In the end, I usually end up with something practical and drab.

MRS. M.T.E.

DEAR MRS. M.T.E.:

You have the same problem that lots of women have. They see something very exciting and lovely in ready-to-wear and decide to make one like it. But, somewhere between the time they have seen the ready-made garment and end up in the fabric shop, their courage leaves them and they decide to use a more basic color and fabric.

The most challenging part of my job is to try to persuade women to put more flair in their clothes, especially if they make them. You have no idea how much more fun it is to make them and wear them.

I would make the printed velveteen coat and forget about trying to make it go with everything. A coat is not part of an ensemble unless you want it to be. A coat can carry itself beautifully, but you must remember to make it with a covered up look, not a low-notched collar which would show part of your dress.

Unless you have an ensemble that will be worn open and must be coordinated for the effect, treat your coat and your dress as two completely different units. Did you ever notice how drab most women's clothes look on dull, rainy days? You'll make everyone who looks at you feel better if you wear a pretty color or an unexpected print.

"I have discovered a new use for the versatile paper towel. When altering a pattern in such a way that it must be cut apart, use a piece of paper toweling for patching the pattern into the correct shape. It is firm, flexible and when taped into place, lasts almost indefinitely. The pattern can be easily folded without disturbing the alteration since this material is both soft and strong."

DEAR EUNICE,

I have just finished using the press-on hem tape for hemming a dress and found that I had to change part of the hem because it looked uneven. When I tried to remove the press-on tape, some of the adhesive stayed on the fabric, and I can't get it off. Every suggestion anyone has given me has failed to work; you are my last resort. Have you ever had this problem come up before?

MRS. M.V.

DEAR MRS. M.V.:

Yes, I have had this question come up many times in the past, and I'm afraid I don't have a magic solution. I recently spent some time with a representative from one of the companies who distribute this type of hem tape, and they say that in order to really bond the tape to your fabirc, it has become a permanent thing. Sometimes, if it hasn't been applied too tight, it can easily be removed by simply pressing over it with a warm iron and peeling it off. However, they admitted that if part of it doesn't come off, there is no way to remove it.

It really shouldn't be used except for an emergency and not on your better clothes. If any of our readers have a solution to removing these marks, it would sure help lots of frustrated gals if you would write to me and let me pass on the good word.

DEAR EUNICE,

I am making a coat out of a beautiful wool that has a diagonal weave. It is turning out beautifully with the exception of the collar. The collar was an oblong shape with a seam at the center back and was to be cut on the bias grain. When I stitched the center back seam, one half of the collar had the diagonal weave going vertical, the other half was going horizontal. It looks perfectly terrible, and I tried to cut it again and it came out the same way. Please help!

MRS. H.C.C.

DEAR MRS. H.C.C.:

The difficulty you are having is because of the diagonal weave in your fabric. Instead of cutting your collar according to the directions, eliminate the center back seam in the instance. Cut another piece of paper the shape of the collar pattern, eliminate the seam allowance at the center back and lay this complete collar pattern on a single layer of your fabric on the bias grain .

HELEN HELP US!

What To Tell The Boys Who Are Dedicated To "The Proposition"

DEAR HELEN:

In college you meet a lot of fellows who figure sex is the friendliest thing, and love has very little to do with it. They have all kinds of comebacks like "Don't be Victorian," "Be liberated," 'It's the natural thing to do," "Don't be a second class citizen — be as free as the men," etc., etc.

I like these guys and figure they have as much right to their point of view as I do to mine. They aren't pushy, but they sure do like to argue. What do I say to close them off ? — NOT READY

DEAR NOT:

Says our daughter Kathy:

How about telling them you aren't dedicated to the "proposition" and — sex can ruin a beautiful friendship? — H.

DEAR HELEN:

My fiance and I will be married soon but one thing bothers us. His folks belong to a church that doesn't believe in smoking or drinking. He doesn't attend, having changed to a church that is more liberal.

My parents aren't alcoholics or even regular social drinkers, but we would like to have champagne for the reception in the traditional manner. His parents say they won't come to the wedding if liquor is in evidence. We say it's bride's choice and those who don't approve can stick to punch.

Should we give up champagne and look chintzy, just to keep the peace ? — FEELING PUNCH DRUNK ALREADY

DEAR FPDA:

You probably can't unbend these rigid people, so rather than a family split, how about a compromise? Serve two bowls of punch, one with champagne, the other plain. And be sure you keep the punch bunch on the right side of the table! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

This girl I know is fine as long as I don't have a boy friend, but when I do, she takes over. She comes barging in every time he drives up, as if he were hers instead of mine. She sits between us even, and does everything possible to attract his attention, like wearing low cut dresses and bending over.

She even came prancing through our living room to use the telephone in only panties and bra. (She's always inviting herself to stay overnight, and this was one of those times.) My boy friend was sorta shocked, but he sure did look!

She thinks my boy friends are always neater than hers. Once she said she couldn't stand to see my date and I get along so well.

My folks say she is jealous of me and will cause trouble. Maybe she just doesn't know any better, as her parents don't tell her much and she does about as she pleases.

Should I be frank and lose a friend, maybe, or keep on being tactful, and not getting through? —OH, TO BE A LONER!

DEAR TO BE A LONER:

Lay it on her! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I am a 13-year-old boy and the girls like me. I guess because I came from England and they expect me to be rich some day.

The trouble is they're all cute, but no one likes two-timers, so I start going steady with one, and then the other girls get mad. So I break up and choose another. Now I like two girls and two more girls are fighting because of this. What to do? — STEVE

DEAR STEVE:

How about taking up summer baseball? — H.

First Lady Takes Reports On A Tour Of The Western White House

SAN CLEMENTE (AP) — Pat Nixon showed off the redecorated Spanish-style ocean-front Western White House and told how she tried to keep expenses down and make the place "light and airy."

"I try not to be extravagant," the President's wife said Thursday as she took reporters on a tour of the $340,000, 14-room, five-bath Nixon home set amid cyprus, palm and eucalyptus trees.

She said she tried to make use of French provincial furniture the Nixons had in their New York apartment, painting things "to make them fresh and new."

From the six-hole golf course and blue-tiled, scallop-edged swimming pool to the President's red-and-white bedroom with a Vietnam painting over the bed, Mrs. Nixon said, "I love it."

With a minimum of time on the project—"We did it all in one day"—Mrs. Nixon put to work Los Angeles interior decorators Cannel and Chaffin to create a predominately yellow-and-white color scheme with accents of royal blue.

THE MAJOR IMPROVEMENT, Mrs. Nixon said, was making the place "light and airy" by painting the heavy wooden ceiling beams white, replacing venetian blinds with white shutters and cutting back shrubbery to enhance the Pacific Ocean view.

Flowers are everywhere in pots and patios and colorful Spanish tiles are indoors and out.

Every room has a white telephone and Nixon's has red ones too.

A closet in a downstairs hallway houses the Nixon' music system. Mrs. Nixon tried to put on a record to demonstrate, but confessed, "I haven't been here long enough to learn how to use the machine."

There have been reports that neighbors in the Cyprus Shores community are upset over the security restrictions the Nixons have imposed on them. But Mrs. Nixon said all the neighbors have written her nice notes inviting her to tea. And she plans to have them in for a visit.

When she showed off the dining room with French provincial table and chairs and an American Oriental rug, Mrs. Nixon confided "we haven't had dinner here yet."

SHE SAID her husband is "a taco man." One night when they were home, he "sent down to the local taco place" for his favorite Mexican food. A taco is a sandwich made with a tortilla instead of bread.

The President's study is the only second-floor room in the sprawling white stucco, red-tiled house. The house surrounds a courtyard with a fountain.

There were still only a few books on the low shelves. Nixon's reading on a coffee table before the curving blue couch was "Great Presidential Decisions" by Richard Morris.

In their redecorating, the Nixons even fitted the Secret Service into the Spanish-styled decor. The agents occupy matching white stucco, red-tile roofed gazebos with tinted glass windows.

HUMOR DESPITE HARDSHIPS

200,000 Jam Roads To Rock Festival

WHITE LAKE, N.Y. (AP) — Like legions of vagabond soldiers, more than 200,000 young followers of pop music have descended here in rag tag fashion for a three-day rock festival, partially paralyzing this town and jamming area roads.

With increasing numbers of cars being abandoned on the highways leading to this Catskill Mountains resort area, the festival producers today called on "all vehicles heading for the festival to turn back home."

"Everything is quite out of hand," said a state trooper who described the area as "supersaturated." He said troopers at some posts had to be relieved by helicopter because traffic made the roads impassable.

MOST PEACEFUL

Despite the road jams, intermittent thunderstorms and a shortage of food, most of the young people remained peaceful, taking the inconveniences in good humor and helping each other out.

The town has a population of 3,000 and is about 100 miles northwest of New York City. Normally it is a summer haven for the middle-aged and middle class.

What brought everybody here is something the producers call the Woodstock Music and Art Fair, an aquarian exposition. It is set up on a 600-acre farm with the stage at the foot of an alfalfa field that forms a natural amphitheater.

By early yesterday afternoon the crowds had pushed the ticket situation out of control. "Anybody can get in," said one observer, "tickets don't matter."

State police said 50 to 60 persons had been arrested on charges of possessing such drugs as LSD, barbiturates and amphetamines but there were no serious incidents or violence as of early today.

DRUG ARRESTS

Elsewhere around the state, troopers reported another 100 youths arrested on drug charges as they made stepped-up spot checks of cars headed for the festival. One car had a half-filled suitcase of marijuana and peyote, police said.

At the festival itself there were no reported arrests for marijuana. "As far as I know the narcotics guys are not arresting anybody for grass," said one state police sergeant. "If we did, there isn't enough space in Sullivan or the next three counties to put them in."

Both police and young people at the festival appeared determined to try and avoid a major confrontation.

"There hasn't been anyone yelling pig at the cops and when they ask directions they are polite and none of them has really given us any trouble yet," a state police lieutenant said.

Helping to keep the cool were 100 members of the "Hog Farm" commune of Taos, N.M., and special security guards wearing orange shirts with "peace" emblazoned on the front.

FEW TAKE NOTICE

The music that brought everyone here had become almost unimportant. The opening concert last night was of folk orientation. Richie Havens opened the bill but few people seemed to notice which performer was on stage.

Today's acts—set to run from 2 p.m. to 2 a.m.—include the Who, Jefferson Airplane and Janis Joplin. Tomorrow the billing includes Jimi Hendrix and Crosby, Stills and Nash.

Performers were being ferried to the site by helicopter from hotels in nearby Liberty. Most of the fans, however, had no shelter. A carnival-like atmosphere prevailed as they prepared to sleep in the open fields.

There were some tents set up but most of the youths simply unrolled a bedroll and turned in.

Those who could afford the $25 nightly rate at nearby hotels and motels were not much better off because of the difficulty of travel.

Facilities were meager. Portable toilets had been set up and six wells dug to provide running water, but there was no shelter available at the site.

There were long lines at the mobile food centers even though many of the young people had packed in their own food. One commune was passing out a free gruel made of peanuts, oatmeal, raisins and sunflower seeds.

There seemed little likelihood that the massive jam would break until the festival ended.

Word spread quickly when the producers asked early today for cars to turn around and go home.

JAM SESSION — With still 10 miles to go, rock music fans find traffic at a frustrating standstill in the Catskill Mountain area of New York. Converting the normally two-way highway near White Lake, N.Y., into a one-way road yesterday was still not the complete solution to handle an estimated 200,000 incoming festival fans. (AP Wirephoto)

HAWAIIAN SANCTUARY

Military Resisters Form Church Village

HONOLULU (AP) — A small village of young people has formed within the grounds of a church where 18 young U.S. servicemen, disgruntled with the Vietnam War and the military have taken sanctuary.

"We are finding a greater security in the increasing numbers. The esprit de corps is tremendous," said Rev. Robert Warner, leader of the group of servicemen and their supporters who are in the Church of the Crossroads.

Three more servicemen joined the group yesterday.

"We're getting organized now and have our own little community going. We're even getting out a newspaper now," said Warner, an instructor in religion at the University of Hawaii.

The protest, sanctioned by church officials, began Aug. 7 when Airman Basic Louis D. Parry, 21, of San Jose, announced that he could "no longer cooperate with the military."

By yesterday the group included seven soldiers, six sailors, four Marines and Parry, the only Air Force man.

The central area of sanctuary has been the church's chapel, which seats more than 100. Fifty to 75 young people including the servicemen have been sleeping, eating, playing and studying there.

The church, near the University of Hawaii, is affiliated with the United Church of Christ and has said it supports "men who for conscience sake must resist what they believe to be the immoral activities of their own government." The Resistance, an antidraft group, is supporting the servicemen.

The military so far has officially ignored them.

Warner said the young people spend the time singing, dancing and carrying out study projects on the Vietnam War, U.S. foreign policy and political science.

Police Seek Father Of Chained Boy

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A federal fugitive warrant was issued yesterday for the father of a 6-year-old boy who was found chained in a wooden crate at a desert commune near Blythe, Riverside County.

Warrants for four other persons who were living at the commune at the time also were issued.

Anthony Saul Gibbons was found July 27 in a wooden box near a livestock pen at the ranch. The child told authorities he was kept there for 56 days as punishment for setting a fire at the commune. His story was supported by his 11-year-old sister, Tammy.

James H. Gibbons, 37, a former Los Angeles County probation officer, and the others are accused of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution.

The five persons sought are among 19, including the boy's mother, indicted by the Riverside County Grand Jury for felony child abuse.

A Virginia Hitches Ride In Police Car

WAUKESHA, Wis. (UPI)—The little old lady from Duluth said she didn't mind hitchhiking the 90 miles to a Seventh-Day Adventist rally at Portage, Wis.

Sheriff's deputies, however, had different ideas when they found the woman, identified only as Virginia, looking lost and confused by the side of the road.

She wore a pink and red checkered dress, a small flowered hat and white leather boots reaching almost to her knees. She said she had stopped in Oconomowoc, Wis., to buy the boots, specially fitted with braces for her legs.

The deputies took Virginia to the courthouse, where Sgt. James Carroll talked to her.

"We can't let you hitchhike 90 miles at night, Virginia. You might get hurt."

Virginia looked even more perplexed. "Doesn't the Lord protect us?"

"I wish he did, Virginia, but people get killed every day."

"Well, don't you all drive cars? Can't you give me a ride to my camp? They're going to set up a tent for me."

Carroll telephoned authorities in Jefferson, Dane and Columbia counties and arranged for sheriffs' cars to meet at the county lines to ferry Virginia to her destination.

Columbia County authorities said yesterday Virginia reached the camp without mishap.

When completed, the interstate highway system will have cost more than $62-billion, based on today's prices.

William Goetz, Top Film Producer, Succumbs At 66

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Motion picture mogul William Goetz, who produced such film greats as "Sayonara," "The Man from Laramie," "Song of Bernadette" and "The Glenn Miller Story," is dead at 66.

The movie maker, who was of the same era as Louis B. Mayer, Harry Cohn, Samuel Goldwyn, Cecil B. DeMille and the Warner brothers, died in his Holmby Hills home yesterday after a long illness.

A retiring, quiet man, Goetz' career began in the days when studios held absolute power over their stars. He was the first producer to sign a profit-sharing agreement with a star, Jimmy Stewart. The practice is the norm in modern Hollywood.

The screen's biggest stars appeared in pictures Goetz produced or supervised.

They included Fredric March and Constance Bennett in "Cellini"; Jennifer Jones in "Song of Bernadette"; Tyrone Power in "Crash Dive"; Alice Faye in "Hello, Frisco, Hello"; Claudette Colbert in "The Egg and I"; Olivia De Havilland in "Dark Mirror"; James Stewart in "The Man from Laramie"; Gary Cooper in "They Came to Cordura"; Donald O'Connor and Glen Ford in "Cry for Happy"; Marlon Brando in "Sayonara"; and Joan Crawford in "Autumn Leaves."

Goetz made more than 100 movies. He had served as vice president and a director at 20th Century Fox, and formed a major independent company, International Pictures, in 1941. The studio later became Universal-International, and Goetz was head of production.

Richmond Span Sets Record For A Day

A record number of vehicles crossed the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge Aug. 3, the state Division of Bay Toll Crossings has reported.

Total number of vehicles that day was 22,764, compared to the last high of 21,703 on June 16, 1968.

Erotic Film Patron Raids Are Halted

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A federal judge has ordered San Francisco police not to arrest patrons attending theaters where erotic movies are shown.

Some 19 embarrassed persons were arrested this week in police raids on two sex film theaters.

U.S. Dist. Judge Alfonso J. Zirpoli stressed that the temporary restraining order he issued yesterday is limited to patrons, and would not prevent the arrest of the theater owner or operator.

The judge set next Friday for a hearing on the matter.

Zirpoli acted in a suit brought by the American Civil Liberties Union on behalf of James Mitchell, 25, operator of the O'Farrell theater, scene of one of this week's raids.

The suit charged state laws regarding obscenity and "visiting a disorderly house" were unconstitutional.

After the court action, Mitchell said, "We are open for business and we will stay open.

"Our customers are protected even if we aren't. But we'll take our chances."

Mitchell was arrested July 25 on charges of showing an obscene film. But with some 27 theaters in San Francisco showing erotic movies, police decided to change tactics and arrest the customers.

THE WORLD'S LARGEST AIRPLANE

The public is getting its first peek at the world's largest airplane, the C5A, this weekend at the National Air Exposition at Dulles International Airport near Washington, D.C. Billed by sponsors as the nation's largest air show in a decade, the display is expected to draw more than 100,000 persons. (AP Wirephoto)

Reagan Pens $134 Million School Aid Bill With Some 'Reluctance'

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California schools were assured today of an additional $134 million in state assistance after Gov. Ronald Reagan signed "with some reluctance" the extra aid measure.

Reagan stressed yesterday in a statement announcing his signature of the measure that the amount was a one-shot boost in the regular school aid program which totals $1.3 billion.

"I must warn the school districts of California that at least a portion of the increased level of state support contained in this bill will not, in all probability, be available in 1970-71," he said.

The governor cautioned school administrators to heed this and plan their next year's school budgets accordingly.

The bill by Assemblyman Victor Veysey, R-Brawley, cleared the Legislature in the closing days of the session. It represents a compromise worked out between the two houses.

It includes $95 million contained in the current $6.2 billion state budget, plus another $40 million in anticipated surplus money from last fiscal year.

If the surplus exceeds $40 million, the first $5 million will be pumped into ghetto schools for disadvantaged children. Anything over that up to $30 million will be allocated for junior college construction.

However, it will be late fall before the state can accurately estimate how much the surplus will be.

The measure also includes $8 million for special reading programs.

The bill also extends for two more years the legal requirement that voters approve any school tax rate increase. The provision was due to expire July 1, 1971.

However, another bill on Reagan's desk by Assemblyman Robert Burke, R-Huntington Beach, would make permanent the requirement of voter approval for all school tax overrides by eliminating the expiration date.

The governor has not said whether he will sign the Burke bill. If he does, it would supersede the provision in the Veysey measure since the last piece of legislation signed is the law.

Reagan said he "broke past precedent" this year by requesting $105 million extra in school aid and later agreeing to up the amount to $120 million. But lawmakers did him one better and increased the sum another $14 million.

The governor said he had urged the Legislature to commit the one-time surplus to other purposes such as classroom construction, but noted his suggestion was ignored.

"They (awlmakers) saw fit to use some of these funds to increase the regular support formula," he said. "Therefore, today I must make the same plea to the school districts of California—to commit, to the extent possible, these one-time funds to one-time purposes."

Deadline For Pesticide Sales

Information released to the Independent-Journal this week by County Agricultural Commissioner R. Allan Ballard on the use of pesticides containing DDT or DDD was erroneous.

A story in Wednesday's Independent-Journal quoted Ballard as saying that the use of such pesticides in home gardens would be banned after Jan. 1.

In a clarification issued yesterday, Ballard said that persons may buy DDT or DDD-bearing pesticides for garden use until Dec. 31, 1970, by which time retail stores must have disposed of their stocks.

Burton Maps Plans To Save Fort Point

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Fort Point, an aging Civil War era Army fort that never fired a shot in anger, is the object of a new drive aimed at its preservation.

"This historic fortress must be preserved—and if anybody wants to tear it down, it will be over my dead body," declared Rep. Phillip Burton, D-Fifth District, on a tour of the fort yesterday.

Burton is the author of a bill to designate Fort Point a national historic site and authorize $2.6 million over a five year period for its restoration.

"The money would allow the fort to be restored as it was a century ago," Burton aid.

Retired Army Maj. Herbert Batz, vice president of the Fort Point Museum Association, was enthusiastic about the chances of the bill's passage. He also said the interest of youth in the old structure "restores your faith in America."

"The young people realize what this thing called heritage means after they visit Fort Point," he said, adding that 164,000 persons had visited the structure under the shadows of structure in the last 16 months.

Churchmen Attack Black Manifesto

SEATTLE (UPI) — About 8,000 church members meeting here for the five-day General Assembly of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) were asked last night to reject the "black racism" of the black manifesto submitted by James Forman.

Throughout the day, attacks were heard on the black leader's demands for $500 million in reparations from the churches and synagogues. Bishop Gerald Kennedy of Los Angeles made the sharpest criticism of the day.

"Forman doesno't know any more about the church than a rabbit," he said during a question-and-answer period. "We don't owe him a nickel and I'm not going to pay reparations for the actions of my forefathers."

The demand in question stemmed from an April 26 National Black Economic Development Conference in Detroit. Forman, former national chairman of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, headed that conference.

The church's general board has gone on record as opposed to the manifesto and urged members to put more than $30 million into church programs designed to help solve urban and racial problems over the next four years.

In other first-day business, the General Assembly elected Rev. Forrest D. Haggard, Overland Park, Kan., as president of the National Evangelistic Association of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ).

Nonconforming Use Problem On Agenda

The San Anselmo Planning Commission will discuss the non-conforming multiple family use of property in single family residential districts at its 8 p.m. meeting Monday in the city hall.

Commissioners will also discuss an application from Lani L. Waller for a use permit for living quarters secondary to commercial use at his painting and sculpturing studio at 1525 San Anselmo Avenue.

Plans For Downtown Tiburon To Be Eyed

Four master plans for the development of downtown Tiburon, submitted to the city by various planners and interested residents during the past four years, will be reviewed by the Tiburon planning commission at 8:30 p.m. Monday in city hall.

Planning Director Wayne E. Moody, in a written report, will outline the history of the search for an acceptable downtown plan and will present a brief analysis of each of the four plans studied by the city — Callister and Payne plan, Gatter plan, lagoon plan and Buskirk-Noble plan.

On Sept. 4, 1968, the city council adopted the development policies of the Gatter plan but submitted the plan map to the planning commission for further study, particularly with reference to the then newly submitted lagoon paln.

In April of this year a fourth plan, this one by Philip K. Buskirk and H. Morgan Noble, was submitted to the city and referred to the planning commission for study and recommendation.

In his report, Moody will recommend that the planning commission and city council make policy decisions on these four questions before adopting any one or portions of the four plans:

1. — Elimination of a new Tiburon Boulevard through the heart of the undeveloped area.

2. — Designation of a recreational-open space corridor through the heart of downtown, acting as a common complement to new residential development on one side, and intensive busintsses on the other and linking other areas surrounding the downtown with a pathway system.

3. — Provision for construction of as much business as possible over parking areas and development of pedestrian-level shops on terraces above the parking.

4. — Provision for a minimum of 20 per cent of all downtown housing to be developed for moderate income families and the elderly, with appropriate density bonuses as necessary.

After Sept. 1st. will move to a new, larger location in the RED HILL Shopping Center San Anselmo

DON'T BE FLOORED with Wall to Wall Headaches!

Most home buyers insist on Oak Floors, even with wall-to-wall carpeting. This enables them to change their room decoration to accent rugs when the carpeting gets worn and shabby, or needs replacement as a result of damage. Oak floors also insure higher resale values . . . make homes more salable than ones with carpeting laid directly over concrete or plywood.

Rather than furnish carpeting with your homes, doesn't it make more sense to provide a permanent floor of solid Oak and let the owners choose their own floor covering . . . in colors to match their furnishings and personal tastes?

Both you and the buyer come out ahead when you use Oak floors in your homes and apartments. Think it over.

Offers Far Between For Alcatraz

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

SAN FRANCISCO — For rent: One 22-acre island in scenic San Francisco Bay. Main building sleeps 315 persons in maximum security. No water or electricity. Price: $1,800 a month.

With real estate like that on its hands, neither the federal government nor the city of San Francisco has had much luck finding a prospective developer for Alcatraz Island, once the home of the meanest and most difficult convicts in the federal prison system.

Since 1963 when the last prisoner was removed for reasons of economy, "the Rock" has been abandoned except for the occasional visits of a federal caretaker and scores of pelicans which nest among the fast-decaying walls.

Officially, Alcatraz is for sale as surplus government property. Unofficially, San Francisco plans to buy the island on the installment plan for $1 million and lease it to a private developer for the cost of its monthly payments.

So far, only one man has come up with a firm offer to redevelop the island. He is Texas millionaire Lamar Hunt, one of the founders of the American Football League and son of H. L. Hunt.

The most spectacular aspect of Hunt's plan is the construction of a 364-foot tower topped by a replica of the Columbia space vehicle used by the Apollo 11 astronauts.

Hunt said the tower would be the exact height of the Apollo 11 capsule with its Saturn booster. The Columbia replica, however, would be "four to five times" the size of the actual capsule to allow more people to get in it at one time for a "magnificent, 360-degree view of the bay area."

The monument, called "Apollon," would tower over an underground "living museum showing the history of our space program." A plaza surrounding the Apollon would feature "life-size statues of astronauts, scientists and administrators of the American space effort."

Hunt estimates the cost of the monument, museum and plaza at about $5 million. Later projects would include restoration of the prison which would be open for "dignified and informative" tours and creation of a historically accurate reproduction of "San Francisco —1890."

The millionaire Texan's proposal has not been acted upon officially by the San Francisco Board of Supervisors.

Although Hunt has promised to landscape and protect the basic silhouette of the island, he promised the prison would not glorify the past and there will be "no wax figures" of famous inmates as proposed by some interested parties.

Whoever takes on the task of developing Alcatraz for some public purpose faces a monumental job, and not everyone is for it.

"Let's leave it alone," says Mortimer Fleishhacker Jr., a member of the city planning commission. "I've been looking at it 60 years and it doesn't bother me at all. We don't need a new chamber of horrors or an inaccessible park. I don't want a Texas statue—we've got a lighthouse there already."

Questions On Fairfax's Future Vary

Questions ranging from merging Fairfax with another city to an individual's ability to relate to Fairfax are included in a questionnaire to be mailed to residents next week.

Responses to the questionnaire will be used as a base for the second Fairfax Congress for Community Progress to be held at noon Oct. 11 at Manor School.

The congress committee has asked questionnaires be returned by Aug. 30.

Other questions include: "Is Fairfax getting its money's worth in city government and services? Would you like to see some services combined with those of other cities or the county? Would you be willing to serve on a city committee or commission?

"What would be a good recreation and meeting place in Fairfax? What kind of Fairfax would you like to see?"

There are also questions on business, schools and parks and recreation, tourism and other topics, and plenty of room for comments on the city.

Table Grape Growers Ask $75 Million

FRESNO (UPI)—A group of California grape growers have filed a $75 million amended antitrust suit against the United Farm Workers Organizing Committee (UFWOC) and three other unions,

The action, filed Thursday in federal district court, was first entered July 3, but was dismissed a month later by Judge M. D. Crocker with the understanding an amended suit would be filed later. In dismissing the original suit, Crocker said there were insufficient legal grounds for action.

The amended suit includes 13 additional table grape growers as plaintiffs, bringing the number to 95.

Added as defendants were the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen Local 746 in Chicago, the Retail Clerks International Association Local 1500 in New York, the Meat Cutters Local 342 in New York, and UFWOC representatives in New York, Chicago and Boston.

Judge Crocker signed an authorization permitting the immediate taking of depositions or legal statements from top officers of the three unions.

The suit charges Cesar Chavez' UFWOC, an AFL-CIO affiliate, with conspiring with retail stores to keep grapes off the market.

The union last summer organized an international consumer-oriented boycott of table grapes grown by California farmers who refuse to negotiate with the union.

Growers admit the boycott has hurt their business. The 95 plaintiffs, claiming the boycott activities resulted in $25 million damage, asked a triple payment. The suit contends the alleged conspiracy violates the Sherman Antitrust Act.

According to attorneys for the Central California Farmers Commiteee Inc., of Dinuba, the Chicago and New York unions were listed as defendants because their members have refused to handle table grapes or "do any work" if their employers buy the grapes.

The number of feathers on most song birds ranges from 1,500 to 3,000.

★ ABOUT MARIN ★

MILL VALLEY

Mill Valley has a feeling of the European Alps. . . . Its village is safe for children day or night. . . . And we who live in Mill Valley boast about evening walks in the redwoods or on Mount Tamalpais along streams that are still running with cool refreshing water. And yet we're only minutes from downtown San Francisco. We have a large real estate office in Mill Valley where we keep up-to-the-minute lists of Mill Valley's homes and lots that are for sale. Our office is on the right just beyond the high school (and next to Crocker-Citizens Bank). Come by — we have lists of used homes, and in fact we're building new homes here too! See Mill Valley real estate with

KENT WOODLANDS

Offers spectacular views, prime climate and commute and is one of Marin's four finest addresses. Kent Woodlands was planned for privacy and protection . . . with only one entrance for 450 homes affording maximum security. All building and subdivision restrictions are carefully enforced. It is a beautiful place to live. We have a real estate office opposite the Kent Woodlands gates. There we post every home and lot that is for sale (with their prices) on a wall map. We invite you to come in and see what is now for sale in Kent Woodlands.

SAN RAFAEL

With all of Marin to choose from, the Mission Fathers selected San Rafael for the site of their Mission . . . they had an eye for property. Here is Marin's greatest complex of communities in our warmest climate . . . and in San Rafael we have every choice of price and amenity . . . from budget homes in Santa Venetia to English Tudor mansions in the Dominican. Our office in San Rafael is just off the freeway, and our exclusive San Rafael home listings range all the way from $25,950 to $197,500! FRANK HOWARD ALLEN is known in Marin for their courtesy, so stop by and see us, please. Take San Rafael's first exit and on 4th turn rifht one block to Grand. We've been on this corner for ten years.

"TIBURON"

. . . means shark in Spanish but to the home buyer it means Marin's most spectacular views and commuter convenience. Tiburon has Marin's only ferry service affording a small group of executives a real kick out of morning and evening bay rides. Tiburon offers fine schools and a surprising variety of prices in new and used homes and still a wide choice of building sites. Our office in Tiburon is on the non-business side of town, right on the water, looking at the Golden Gate Bridge. (You go thru town and past the old ferry slip to find us.) We keep a wall map up-to-date there with every property for sale in Tiburon (we also keep a coffee pot going) and while you're looking at our real estate map, your children can walk over to Elephant Rock where Tiburon asks "no adults, please." So plan to stop by this weekend at FRANK HOWARD ALLEN's Tiburon office . . .

If You Could Have Seen

the joy in our eyes, then these words could go unsaid. This is one of the most charming, sturdily built, Bavarian chalet-styled modified "A"-frame homes that we have seen (3 bdrms., 2 baths plus den). From the quality carpeted living rm., a styled staircase rises with a flair to a railinged study-den & to a most generous sized master bdrm. w/adj. large walk-in closet & bath. The view windows are like picture frames encasing the beauty of natural wooded privacy accented by Yosemite-sized boulders and gay splashes of colorful fruit & flowers. The customized all-electric kitchen is unusual and warm with rdwd. paneling & surprise quality extras. About 12 min. to G.G. toll. Want charming living (?), then please phone now; you'll be glad you did!

Nixon, Lodge Will Discuss Withdrawals

SAN CLEMENTE (UPI)—President Richard M. Nixon, moving towards a decision later this month on another Vietnam troop pullout, was expected to meet here next week with chief Paris peace negotiator Henry Cabot Lodge.

Lodge, with little advance notice, flew to Boston yesterday and was expected to meet with Secretary of State William P. Rogers in Washington on Monday.

No reason was given for Lodge's return after he met with enemy negotiators at the 30th session in Paris and warned that stepped up enemy attacks in Vietnam could upset the American withdrawal timetable.

WEEKEND DISRUPTED

No date was set for Nixon's meeting with Lodge. He had a relaxed weekend planned with more swimming, golfing and strolling on the beach of his magnificent walled-in Spanish style estate facing the Pacific.

Last night,t he President and his close friend, Charles G. (Bebe) Rebozo of Key Biscayne, Fla., took an hour and one-half drive down Pacific Coast Highway to Oceanside, and returned to his villa for a late dinner with his wife Pat and daughters Tricia and Julie Eisenhower, and Julie's husband David.

Earlier in the day Nixon had spent more than four hours on the golf course at Camp Pendleton with a foursome including Rogers, Atty. Gen. John Mitchell, and his son-in-law.

DEMONSTRATION SET

A quiet weekend was planned but the White House made it clear it "was aware" of anti-Vietnam War demonstrations scheduled to take place in front of the Nixon estate tomorrow although a permit has not been granted for the protest march. The Western White House had no comment on the peace action council pickets.

The Chief Executive has a busy week ahead with an unprecedented state visit to San Francisco by South Korean President Park Chung Hee Thursday and Friday. Nixon will be meeting with President Park at the St. Francis Hotel where he will also host a black tie dinner in Park's honor.

Former President Lyndon B. Johnson had state visitors at his LBJ ranch in Texas but there was no known previous known state visit to San Francisco.

On Labor Day, Sept. 1, Nixon plans to fly to Colorado Springs, Colo., on a one day trip to formally address the national governors conference.

And he is sending Gov. Ronald Reagan to Manila Sept. 8 to represent him at the ceremonies opening the new Philippines cultural center.

Alternate Plans For Novato Pool To Be Presented

An alternate design for the spray pool and small boat lagoon will be presented to the Novato Parks and Recreation Advisory Commission at 8 p.m. Monday in the Novato Community House.

The Novato City Council Tuesday night rejected the one bid of $53,333 for the spray pool, for which it has budgeted $33,000.

Ribera and Sue, landscape architects who designed the park, will have an alternate design for the pool, according to parks and recreation director Edward W. Adams.

The commission will go over the details of an agreement with the North Marin County Water District on the water service to the park.

Adams will give a progress report on the park.

The commission will review park priorities.

Second Strike At Port Of Stockton

STOCKTON (AP) — The Port of Stockton was struck yesterday for the second time in the past month in a jurisdictional dispute between longshoremen and Teamsters.

Some 200 longshoremen picketed warehouses, objecting to a work contract between Teamsters and Max-Pack, Inc., which leased two warehouses from the port.

Longshoremen in all port warehouses walked out but dock operations were unaffected.

Lab Report Delays Charges On Woman

Pending a laboratory report, no complaint was issued yesterday in Marin Municipal Court against Patricia Betty Knox, 34, of Terra Linda, who was arrested Tuesday on suspicion of having a dangerous drug.

A highway patrolman said she tried to palm one and a half white tablets as she was entering the sheriff's office after being arrested on traffic warrants.

Fire Blamed On Defective Flue

EUREKA (AP) — A defective stove flue may have caused a fire which killed two children and burned another critically yesterday, fire officials report.

Killed were Brooke Carlson, 2, and Allison Carlson, 11 months. Their 7-year-old sister, Shelleen, was in critical condition at Trinity Hospital.

A teen-aged sister, Yvonne, and an uncle, John McCash, 30, escaped from a second story window before the burning house collapsed.

The youngsters' father, Willard, was working in the woods when the fire erupted. His wife was treated for minor burns and shock.

Guard In Fair Condition After Attack

San Quentin guard Leo Naranjo, 31, of Sacramento, was reported in fair condition at Marin General Hospital today where he was under observation for a possible head injury after being slugged by a prisoner yesterday.

Another correctional officer, Walter J. Del Rose, 45, of 1099 Rosalia, Novato, also was struck by the prisoner, Associate Warden James W. L. Park reported, but apparently did not require hospitalization.

The prisoner accused of the assault is Tommie Lee Walker, 24, of Los Angeles, who was committed to the California Youth Authority in 1961 and since then has been sentenced twice to terms of six months to three years for battery on a correctional officer.

Park said Naranjo and Del Rose found Walker on the fifth tier of the prison and when they took him back to the first tier to lock him in his cell, he turned and swung at the officers.

Inverness Music Fest Continues Tomorrow

The fifth annual Inverness Music Festival opened last night at St. Columba's Church with a program of Elizabethan music. It continues today and tomorrow.

Margaret Fabrizio will present a harpsichord recital at 8 p.m. today.

Tomorrow, there will be a repeat performance of "Cavalleria Rusticana" at 3 p.m., and at 8 p.m., a chamber music program will be followed by Mozart's comic opera "The Impresario."

Replacing Of City Clerk Is On Agenda

The San Rafael City Council is scheduled to appoint a city clerk to replace retiring clerk W. C. Cornwell at its meeting at 8 p.m. Monday at city hall.

The council is also expected to appoint three members to the planning commission; set the 1969-70 tax rate, and hear a report on possible sites for a recreation building and main fire station.

Cause Of Fatal Childhood Disease Found

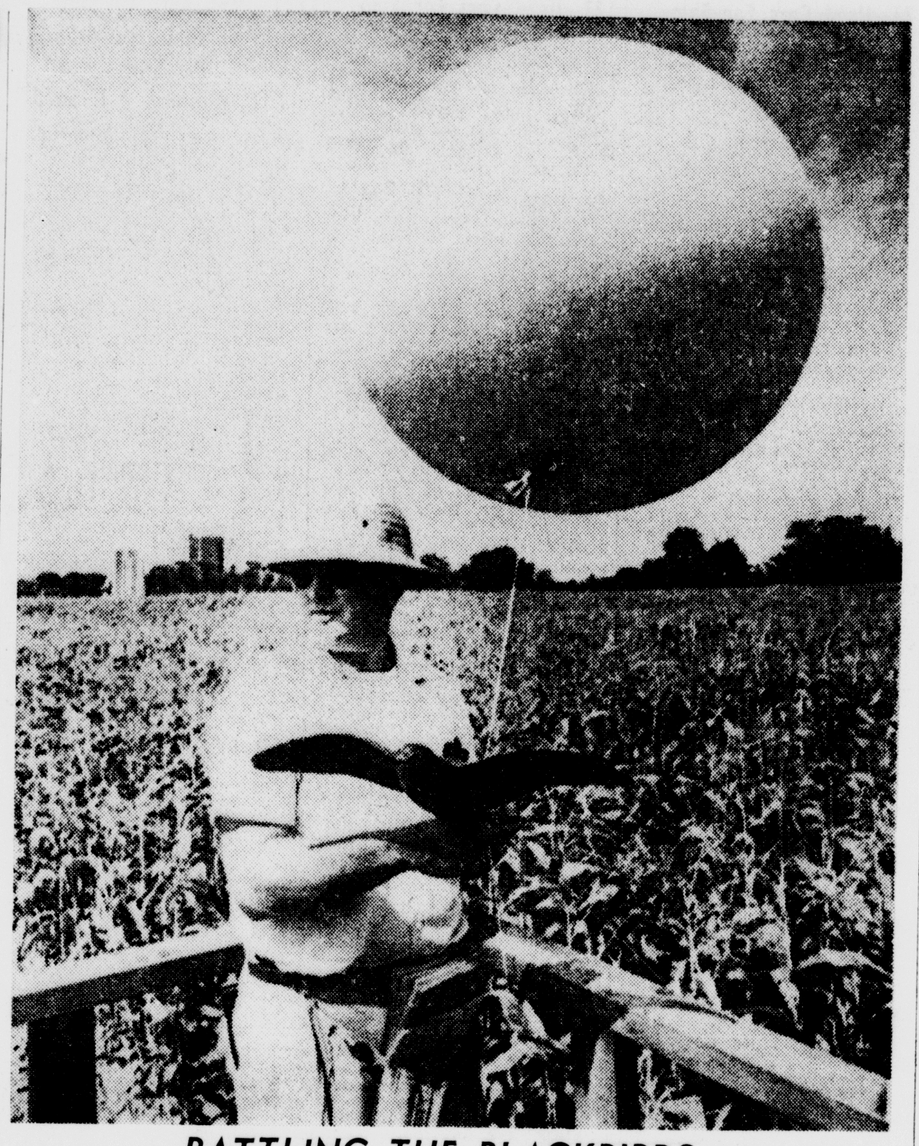
LA JOLLA (upi)—The cause of the rare, fatal childhood disorder known as Tay-Sachs disease has been discovered by two researchers at the University of California at San Diego School of Medicine.

Dr. John S. O'Brien, principal investigator, and Shintaro Okada, both of the Department of Neurosciences, announced their discovery yesterday.

The researchers found the disease is caused by the absence of a specific enzyme, Hexosaminidase A, in the brain. Tay-Sachs (TSD) is a genetic disease transmitted to children whose parents carry the gene for the disease, DMR. O'Brien said.

"If an infant gets the gene from only one of his parents, he will be healthy, but if he receives the gene from both parents, he will be a TSD baby and live only a few years," O'Brien said.

He said TSD babies appear normal until they are about 6 months old. Until that time they look healthy and have pale and pink translucent skin.



BATTLING THE BLACKBIRDS

In an effort to scare away crop-scavenging blackbirds, Dr. Lorne Donovan prepares to release an imitation hawk suspended from a helium-filled balloon. HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Sluggish Thyroid Condition May Be Mistaken As Neurosis

A sluggish thyroid (hypothyroidism) often is overlooked, especially when vague manifestations exist. Some sufferers have been dubbed neurotics and in middle-aged women, the menopause frequently is blamed for all complaints. In addition, many symptoms are not recognized by the individual until brought to his attention by members of the family or friends.

VAN DELLEN

A poorly functioning thyroid must be considered whenever a person is constantly tired and finds it difficult to keep warm during the winter. Dry skin and coarse or falling hair are other clues as well as sluggish mental activity and lack of ambition.

SPEECH MAY BE halting when the tongue is thick. The face and eyelids appear puffy; the pulse is slow, the body temperature low, and perspiration scanty. Daily headaches, menstrual disorders, and infertility may not be associated with thyroid deficiency; yet when the gland is found to be less active than normal, relief often follows the use of thyroid extract.

Various tests determine thyroid activity. The serum protein bound iodine (PBI) test is popular because it is not influenced by nervousness, and can be done at any time of the day. In addition, there is no need to withhold breakfast. A blood sample is removed at the physician's office and sent to the laboratory.

ONE DRAWBACK to PBI testing is that results will be distorted if the person has taken an iodinated substance within four weeks. These include gargles, ointments, swabs, toothpaste, and suppositories as well as the ingestion of kelp, vitamin-mineral combinations, potassium iodide, Lugol's solution, or related medicines. The iodinated substances used in X-ray studies of the gallbladder and kidneys also make the test unreliable for weeks or months. Seafood or iodized salt does not have this effect.

POISON IVY

P. G. writes: Can poison ivy be spread from one person to another?

REPLY

Poison ivy is caused by contact with the sap in the plant (urushiol). Another person can get the disease if he touches the sticky substance while it is still on the skin, glove, or clothing of the contaminated individual. But once the rash develops or the skin has been cleansed, the disorder cannot be passed to another. Occasionally it develops after petting a dog that has run through the brush. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on poison ivy.

NOSEBLEED

E. R. writes: Is it good for a person with high blood pressure to have frequent nosebleeds?

REPLY

Nosebleeds do no harm, provided they are not massive and anemia does not develop. It is better to have a blood vessel rupture in the nose than in the brain.

Young Caretaker Threatens To Sue Over Arrest In Murder Probe

LOS ANGELES (UPI)--A young caretaker questioned in the mass murder of actress Sharon Tate and four others at her Benedict Canyon estate threatened yesterday to sue for false arrest.

William Garretson, 19, told newsmen he went shopping for groceries, entertained a friend and stayed awake till dawn writing letters and listening to music the night of the massacre.

The victims were the pregnant actress; her former fiance, hairstylist Jay Sebring; Polish film producer Voityck Frokowsky; coffee heiress Abigail Folger, and Steven Parent, Garretson's friend.

Garretson said he was unaware of the murders until police burst into his bedroom early Saturday and led him to the bodies of Frokowski and Miss Folger, lying on the lawn, and Parent, slumped over the wheel of his car.

Garretson said he was unable to recognize Parent because of the damage to his head from the bullets which killed him.

Police released Garretson Monday and have arrested no other suspects. Homicide detectives refused to confirm or deny published reports an informant who believes he knows the killers had given them the names of three possible suspects, including an aspiring young actor.

Garretson said he would sue the city for false arrest, false imprisonment, invasion of privacy and violaton of his Constitutional rights. He said he was not advised of his right to remain silent until several hours after his arrest.

The informant reportedly told police he was invited to the party at the home of Miss Tate and her film producer husband, Roman Polanski, the night of the murders. Polanski was in London att he time.

The informant, a Polish emigre who knew Frokowski, said he worked late that night and never went to the Polanski home. He reportedly believes Frokowski was the prime target in the mass murder because of his involvement with narcotics distributors.

The Los Angeles Times reported today that detectives had been guarding the informant since Sunday, when he first spoke with investigators.

Police hace declined to comment on reports that drugs were found in Sebring's car and that a "commercial" quantity of drugs was found in Miss Folger's bedroom.

Police have been checking every rumor in the bizarre case, which involved four members of a social set described as "rich hippies." It is believed that Parent, 18, was unacquainted with the other victims and may have been killed when he saw something as he left the estate after visiting Garretson.

Garretson, the only person found alive on the premises early Saturday, was held for questioning over the weekend and released after he voluntarily underwent a lie detector test. Police said there was no evidence against him.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, Aug. 16, the 228th day of 1969 with 137 to follow.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter. The morning stars are Venus and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1896 gold was discovered in the Klondike region of Canada's Yukon territory.

In 1923 steelworkers hailed the decision by Carnegie Steel for setting up an 8-hour work day.

In 1948 Babe Ruth died in New York City of cancer.

In 1965 all 30 persons aboard were killed when a plane crashed and sank in Lake Michigan.

A thought for the day: Socrates said, "False words are not only evil in themselves, but they infect the soul as well."

Tornadoes Hit Family Twice

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — Walter Gneiser and his family decided to find a safer place to live after a 1965 tornado leveled their Fridley, Minn., home. Now they're not sure they made the right move. A second twister demolished their split-level home recently. Gneiser, an engineer, says his co-workers have calculated the possibility of such a coincidence as one in 20 billion. His insurance company hopes they're right.

The firm State Farm Fire and Casualty paid $27,633 for the damage caused by the first tornado and estimates the latest loss at about $19,000.

THREE TRICKS

West opened the queen of spades, and the defenders began by taking three tricks in that suit. A shift to diamonds then put dummy in with the ace of diamonds.

Declarer naturally led the low trump from dummy, and East played the king of trumps. South won with the ace of trumps and thought things over.

While South thinks, let's see what would happen if East played the ten on the first round of trumps. South would win with the queen and would then lead the ace of trumps, dropping the king.

LAST TRUMP

Dummy's jack would draw the last trump, and South would claim the rest of the tricks, scoring the game and rubber.

East's play of the king of trumps gave South a problem. If this were a singleton king, West had started with four trumps to the ten. In that case South could avoid the loss of a trump trick only by taking a finesse with dummy's nine.

CREDIBILITY QUESTION

South wondered whether to believe or disbelieve the play of the king of trumps. South would have faced no problem if East had made the normal play of the ten of trumps, but he did have a sizable problem after the play of the king of trumps.

After deep thought, South tried a finesse with dummy's nine of hearts, losing his contract. I must confess that I also would have gone wrong. If an opponent is clever enough to make plays of this kind without hesitation he can talk me out of a trick. (It will not be a total loss, after all; I'll still be able to write an article about it.)

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes.

You hold:

♠ A 8 5 2
♥ K 10
♦ J 9 7 6 2
♣ 10 8.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one spade.

Show your four-card major suit rather than bid 1-no-trump. If partner had opened with one club, you would gladly bid one diamond, showing your five-card suit.

Ecumenical Church School Begins Monday

Six Marin churches will join in an eight-day ecumenical summer vacation church school, beginning Monday at the First Presbyterian Church in San Rafael.

Participating will be the First Methodist Church, St. Paul's Episcopal Church, St. Luke Presbyterian Church, Church of the Redeemer (Episcopal), First Presbyterian Church, all of San Rafael, and the Fairfax Community Church (United Church of Christ).

A highlight of the two-week, Monday through Thursday sessions, which will run from 9:30 a.m. to noon, will be 15-minute morning worship services conducted by the churches' participating ministers. They will be held in the host church's main sanctuary. Guitarists Melinda Leoncini and Bryan Park will provide special music.

Ministers of the churches are Revs. Phillip Whitmer, First Methodist; Hugh Hardin Jr., St. Paul's; Richard Willimington, Community; Angus Dun, Redeemer; Henry Kent, St. Luke, and Dr. Charles Griffin, First Presbyterian.

Other special features:

Each class will be equipped with two team teachers — each from a different faith.

Recreation under direction of Roger Page, which will be conducted by junior and senior high school students on the football field of the San Rafael Military Academy, near the church which is located at Fifth and E streets.

Daily swimming at the military academy pool, supervised by senior life saving certificate holders.

Members of the Guide Dogs for the Blind will show a film on how dogs are raised and prepared for their work.

The school is limited for children from kindergarten age through the sixth grade.

Major Topic Of Session: Social Issues

I-J Special Report

MINNEAPOLIS — The nature and extent of church involvement in social issues will be a primary topic of discussion at the U.S. Congress on Evangelism, according to Dr. Victor B. Nelson, a United Presbyterian minister who is executive secretary of the congress.

Nelson pointed out this week that one of the goals of the congress is to initiate "a vigorous attack upon the forces producing misery, inequity, emptiness, discrimination, and other evils in our society."

The congress will be held here Sept. 8-13. It promises to be the largest interdenominational evangelical conference in the nation's history.

"The program includes a special focus upon today's social problems," Nelson said, "And we are putting a major emphasis on youth and ethnic-group representation."

He predicted that delegates from some 100 American denominations would debate vigorously the relationship of biblical evangelism to contemporary problems.

"Churches have been tossing around the idea of renewal and relevance for a number of years now," he said. "We think it's time to seek to apply them."

Six major study papers have been commissioned. They are: "The Church and Conversion in a Day of Revolution," by Dr. Leighton Ford, an evangelist; "The Church and the Journey Inward" (having to do with personal conduct and the individual's devotional life), by Dr. Paul S. Rees, vice president of World Vison; "Evangelism and the Renewal in the Church," by Dr. Richard Halverson, a United Presbyterian minister; "Evangelism and Coming World Peace," by Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Oregon, and "Evangelism and the Journey Outward" (having to do with the church's missionary task), by Dr. Harold John Ockenga, president of Gordon College, Wenham, Mass.

Missionary To Alaska Will Speak

Experiences as a missionary from Natnek, Alaska, will be related at the 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. service Sunday at the Bethel Baptist Church in Novato, by Rev. Curtis Nestergard.

A native of Canada, Reverend Nestergard has served with the Arctic Missions, based in Anchorage, Alaska. Natnek is 285 miles from Anchorage and can be reached only by air.

He preaches in Natnek on Sunday morning and then flies across the Natnek river to hold service at South Natnek in the evening. Both to the Aleut Indians.

He will tell of building a church by volunteer help and the primitive living conditions there. Only recently did his family get running water in their house.

Awareness Gap

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — A survey taken by the Roman Catholic diocese here found that 43 per cent of Catholics in the area had never heard of the Second Vatican Council, the 1962-'65 meeting in Rome whose actions have revolutionized Catholic methods and thought.

Theologian Wins

BOSTON (AP) — Boston College, a Jesuit institution, has reversed its decision to drop Dr. Mary Daly, a theologian, from the faculty, after student demonstrations and other professors rallied to her support. Dr. Daly, author of "The Church and the Second Sex," claiming discrimination against women in the church, was promoted and granted full tenure at the college.

ENGLAND'S LOURDES

Linking Of Medicine, Religion

By GODFREY ANDERSON

GROOMBRIDGE, England (AP) — It isn't a bit like Lourdes but the same sort of people are there. They come on their aluminium crutches, bent over wooden canes, huddled in wheelchairs, with faces stamped by suffering and eyes still lit by hope.

This is Burrswood, Church of England center of divine healing—the place where they tell you miracles do sometimes happen.

It's little more than 40 miles from bustling London, in 230 acres of idyllic peace in rural Kent County. People come here from all over Britain, Europe and even America to seek a cure which some will say they find.

Here medicine and religion work side by side. Burrswood itself, a gray stone mansion, once an English stately home, is a 42-bed clinic where the doctors and nurses rule. The little Church of Christ the Healer, built beside it, is where the sick undergo a priest's laying-on of hands.

Husbands and wives, whole families, join hands as they kneel together before the priest. Others come to seek by proxy aid for some patient too sick to make the journey. Before the gilded crucifix on the altar is a book of names—those to be prayed for.

In the spring and summer, people come by the coach-load for thrice-weekly healing services. Nine thousand came last year alone. At one recent service the congregation included a Negro couple, an Indian, two Swedes, a group of Asiatics. They represented Christian denominations from Roman Catholics to Pentecostals, those from other faiths and those with no faith at all.

"They all take something away with them—if only peace," says Rev. Garth Bawtree-Williams, Burrswood's resident chaplain.

"Sometimes, of course, no physical cure follows the laying-on of hands. But the person is made whole in his personality, so he can better accept his situation. I've never known anyone resentful because they were not healed."

Father Garth, now 68 and with two decades in the Church's healing ministry, says he was cured of blindness due to diabetes when another priest laid healing hands on him.

"That was what really brought me into the healing ministry," he said. "Of course, some priests are hostile; some doctors are against it. They say: 'Miracles don't happen.' But when one has happened to you and when you see them happening, there's no argument about it."

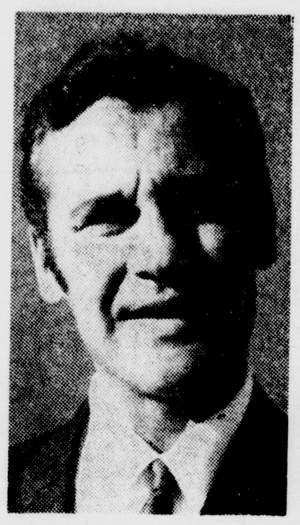
The Church of England has no elaborate means of checking claimed cures such as the Roman Catholic Church has in connection with Lourdes. But most of the bishops are sympathetic to the work done here and, even those with reservations preserve a carefully neutral attitude.

Dr. Edward Aubert is in charge of the medical end of Burrswood's partnership of religion and medicine. He gave up a flourishing practice on the offshore island of Guernsey to become warden and resident physician.

"I came to recognize," he says, "as most honest physicians quickly do, that there are limitations to orthodox medicine and what one can do for a patient. Even in this age of rapid technological advancement, there's a great deal to be done that it can't do."

Convinced that emotional problems lie at the root of most medical conditions, Dr. Aubert says, "You can't just cast aside the spiritual values which so often underlie illnesses."

Patients needing nursing and treatment are expected to pay about $75-$86 a week plus the cost of drugs prescribed for them. But there is a fund to help those who cannot pay such fees and a National Health Service doctor to write them free prescriptions.



TO ASSUME LEADERSHIP

Jargon Of Churchmen Hurts Gospel's Cause

By LOUIS CASSELS
By U.P. International

People who share a common interest frequently fall into the habit of talking to each other in jargon—a sort of insiders' language which is meaningless to the uninitiated.

Sports fans do it; astronauts do it; theatrical people do it; soldiers do it—the list could go on and on.

Among the worst addicts of jargon, unfortunately, are ministers, theologians and laymen who attempt to speak to the world in the name of the church.

Since their avowed purpose is to spread the good news of the Gospel to all mankind, one might reasonably expect Christian leaders to take great pains to phrase their message in a way that everybody can understand.

Instead, they persist in using recondite terminology which is very meaningful to them but virtually unintelligible to people without a religious background.

Take, for example, the word "salvation." It is greatly cheriched by evangelical Protestants. But as British Baptist leader George Beasley-Murray observed recently, "it raises a blank in the minds of most people outside the church."

The same is true, he said, of words such as "redemption" and "reconciliation," which Christians are wont to use in trying to describe the gift which God makes available to men through the life, death and resurrection of Jesus Christ.

Dr. Beasley-Murray pointed out that Jesus himself almost never used such words.

"He had a far simpler and more appealing word for what he was offering to men. He called it life."

There are many other churchy words which loom large in traditional Christian usage but which rarely if ever appear in the biblical record of Christ's own teaching. Among them are "grace," "sacrament," "conversion," "evangelism" and "penitence."

This is not to say that the ideas signified by such words are absent from Christ's teaching. On the contrary. But he was too good a communicator to rely on abstract nouns.

It is a remarkable thing that the simple little anecdotes Jesus used to convey profound truths about man and God to the people of Palestine 2,000 years ago have proved to be equally meaningful to people of every nation, every language, every culture and every subsequent age of history.

The contemporary church has an urgent need to emulate Jesus' example of plain speaking. The young people on whom the future depends are particularly repelled—turned off, as they would put it—by churchy jargon that says nothing to them.

The Gospel has not lost its power to move the hearts of men—when it is communicated to them in the same kind of vivid, everyday language that Jesus used. This is demonstrated by the phenomenal success of the American Bible Society's translation of the New Testament into idiomatic modern English.

Since its appearance 2½ years ago, the "Today's English Version" has become by far the best-selling book in the history of the world, with sales totaling about 16 million copies to date.

Abolish Sundays?

CHICAGO (AP) — With Sundays widely used for recreation rather than rest and worship, Dr. Leroy C. Hodapp, a Bloomton, Ind., Methodist leader, suggests in the weekly Christian Advocate that the church abandon its weekly worship custom, and substitute 10 or 15 "Christ-Days" per year in large centers of workship.

Highlight of the week will be the learning of a play which will be presented at the worship hour on Sunday, Sept. 7, as part of Rev. Gary R. Copeland's sermon, "Good News."

In order to aid transportation and instruction, the church will hold the school in five different neighborhood locations — Marinwood, Terra Linda, Ignacio and San Marin.

Parents who wish to enroll their children for classes, which will be conducted daily, 9:30 to 11:30 a.m., may do so by calling the church which is located in the Marinwood Community Center.

DOWN AND OUT — Tad Tassone of San Francisco was quite out at third base in this first inning action against Toby's Truckers in Joe DiMaggio Tournment game yesterday. After the forceout, Toby's third baseman Tom Olson (3) threw to second sacker Mike Parnow in vain attempt at double play. Kicking up all that dust is S.F. outfielder Lloyd Robinson.

Novato Team Still Alive In DiMaggio Tournament

Annex Tops Eureka, But Toby's Falls

By GARY TISCHLER

The regional Joe DiMaggio League Tournament moved into its third round today after producing a couple of second-round casualties yesterday.

The early victims in yesterday's action at San Rafael's Albert Field were Toby's Truckers, the Southern Marin champion, and Eureka Active 20-30 Club, which turned out to be very inactive, bordering on paralysis.

Meanwhile, El Molino of Forestville and Myers Safety Switch of San Francisco remained unbeaten, while Annex Motors, the Northern Marin champion, and Best Products of S.F. stayed alive in the double elimination competition.

Toby's Truckers left their hearts and their games with San Francisco, losing to the two S.F. champions, Myers Safety Switch and Best Products.

El Molino opened things up yesterday by deactivating Eureka, 2-0. Myers Safety Switch then followed with a harrowing 7-5 win over stubborn Toby's Truckers. Annex Motors, shaking off a 10-3 opening loss, whipped and eliminated Eureka, 6-4, and Best Products performed the same service for Toby's Truckers, eliminating the Marin entry, 6-3.

TODAY'S SCHEDULE

Today, Myers Safety Switch and El Molino, the only two undefeated teams left in the tournament, were to play at 3:45 p.m. Annex Motors meets Best Products in a loser-go-home game at 6 p.m., while the loser of the Myers-El Molino game meets the winner of the 6 p.m. game at 8:15 p.m.

Tomorrow's championship game will be played at 1 p.m. A second game will follow if necessary.

A scattered crowd of 425 fans showed up for yesterday's quartet of games.

For Toby's, it was an uneven and finally fatal night. The Truckers died hard in their opener, coming from a 5-0 deficit to tie in the fifth inning, only to lose going away.

HOT STRUGGLE

Starting Toby's pitcher Bob Johnson struggled manfully in the stifling heat, getting shelled for five runs in the first two innings, then going three shutout innings before giving up a two-run, game-deciding double to Jim Schach.

Myers pitcher Rich Escalambre had a perfect game going for three innings before the whole thing turned into shambles, with the help of usually sure-fielding shortstop Larry Haren, the former all-around athlete at Wilson High in San Francisco.

Movies Help Juan Regain That Old, Effective Style

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Giants right-hander Juan Marichal watched a movie, didn't like what he saw and resumed his role as one of the National League's most effective pitchers.

The "movie" was taken early this week by pitching coach Larry Jensen. It started Marichal, who had lost four straight games—the most in his illustrious professional career.

Marichal detected a flaw in his pitching rhythm, made a correction and muffled the booming bats of the Chicago Cubs 3-0 last night.

"I looked at the film and discovered I wasn't following through like I used to," Marichal pointed out. "I wasn't kicking — I wasn't doing anything right.

"This time I was kicking on every pitch," added Marichal, who boosted his record to 14-8 with a four-hit, nine-strikeout performance.

TWO HOMERS

Southpaw Ken Holtzman, 13-7, suffered the loss, yielding a two-run homer to Dick Dietz in the sixth. Willie Mays capped the scoring with a solo homer off reliever Phil Regan in the eighth.

The four-game series resumed today with San Francisco's Gaylord Perry, 15-8, facing Ferguson Jenkins, 16-10. They'll wind up the series tomorrow with a doubleheader.

The victory was Marichal's first since July 19. His fifth shutout of the season lifted his career total to 42, tops among active pitchers.

Mays' homer was his 10th of the season and 597th of his career—and his first since June 21, a dry spell of almost two months for the National League's all-time leader.

And the Giants' lineup featured a "regular" batting order for the first time since the same eight players faced the Atlanta Braves in the first two games of the season, April 7-8.

"It was good to have all those

Dodgers Acquire Bunning

By STU CAMEN
UPI Sports Writer

The Dodgers, in the thick of the National League's Western Division race, got veteran hurler Jim Bunning from the Pittsburgh Pirates yesterday in exchange for two minor league players. The Dodgers traded for Bunning, who has won 206 games during his 15-year major league career, including a perfect contest against the New York Mets, in an attempt to fill the void left by the retirement last week of Don Drysdale.

Don Sutton joined teammates Claude Osteen and Bill Singer as a 15—game winner last night when he hurled the Dodgers to a 9-2 victory over the Montreal Expos that lifted Los Angeles to within two games of first place Cincinnati. and Sutton was overjoyed when he learned of the acquisition of Bunning.

WELCOMING COMMITTEE

"I'm ecstatic about Bunning joining the team," Sutton said. "I'll be the first one to welcome him here. We now have another pitcher to take up the slack left by the loss of Big Don."

Early Bogey Spurs Floyd Into PGA Birdie Barrage

By HAL PARIS

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — An early bogey set off the spark that launched Ray Floyd into the halfway lead in the 51st PGA Championship.

"I think the key to my round was a bogey," the handsome 26-year-old bachelor said yesterday after he added a five-under-par 66 to an opening 69 for a 36-hole total of 135.

Floyd, who owns two tour victories, was seven-under-par for two trips and carried a shaky one-stroke advantage over charging Gary Player into today's third round test.

Still in hot pursuit only two strokes back was Bunky Henry, the former Georgia Tech placekicker who carded a 68 for a 137.

Big Jack Nicklaus, always menacing, posted a 68 and was in a three-way knot at 138 along with U.S. Open champ Orville Moody, who also shot 68, and 31-year-old Don Bies, who electrified the gallery of 18,135 with a sizzling seven-unde-par 64, a course record.

Bies, 60th on the money list with winnings of $20,000, started with a double bogey six when he three-putted from 15 feet, but then completely mastered the tricky 6,915-yard layout with a barrage of nine birdies that sliced 10 strokes off his opening round.

The Seattle golfer, playing his first full year on the tour, registered his birds on Nos. 2, 3, 5, 6, 7, 10, 11, 13 and 16.

"After shooting a 74 Thursday I began wondering whether I was going to be around Saturday after that double bogey," Bies said.

Bert Greene and Jimmy Wright, both with 68s, were in at 139 while five back of Floyd at 140 were Larry Ziegler, 71; Ron Cerrudo, 66; Lar-

Girls (All Sizes, Shapes) Flock To Cage Tryouts

By JIM CHURCH

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Franklin Mieuli has begun his great girls' basketball experiment.

The flamboyant San Francisco Warriors' owner, who rings a cable car bell at Warriors' home games, thinks girls may be a boost to attendance.

More than 50 young women of all sizes and shapes dribbled, shot baskets and posed for pictures last night at the University of San Francisco gym in the first of four tryouts. Another was scheduled this morning for 50 different players, and two more sessions will bel held next weekend.

Mieuli envisions a girls' league—with cute girls in chic costumes—that will play before Warriors' games and at halftime.

Four teams of 11 players each —plus an alternate—will be selected for a 26-game schedule. At first Mieuli talked of a pro girls' league but now says it may be a mixture of pro, semi-pro and amateur.

"When the AAU teams were playing our preliminaries," says Mieuli, "they were compared unfavorably to the pros. It was like comparing apples with apples.

"Now it will be apples with peaches."

He created an uproar by drafting 18-year-old Iowa high school sensation Denise Long in the 13th round of the National Basketball Association player draft.

But he was serious. The 5-foot-11 Miss Long, who will attend USF at the Warriors' expense, already has appeared at Warrior clinics.

The publicity surrounding Miss Long attracted 150 applicants, including a local topless dancer who stands 6-6.

"We discouraged her right away," says league commissioner Bill Helbush. "We want girls who can play basketball, no publicity seekers or roller derby types."

Among the candidates are several housewives and girls who played on touring pro teams such as the Arkansas Travelers and All-American Redheads.

"Our tallest players are only 6-1," says Helbush. "We tried to get a 6-6 girl from Denver but she wanted to play for the AAU there."

The shortest is Lois Webb, a 5-0 San Francisco nurse who says: "I bounce around like (Bob) Cousy. Don't let my height fool you."

One applicant wrote, "I'm the best player on my team and we haven't lost a game yet in the fourth grade."

"We sent her a thank you note and told her to write again when she is 18, the minimum age for our league," said Helbush.

A's Now Have Two HR Sluggers

OAKLAND (UPI)—It's seldom that a cluster of newsmen query a pitcher about his hitting.

But that was the scene in the dressing room of the Oakland Athletics last night after Lew Krausse drilled a three-run homer off 1968 World Series hero Mickey Lolich and shut out the defending world champion Detroit Tigers 4-0 on four hits.

It was Krausse's fourth homer of the season to lead all major league pitchers in the long-ball department. In 4 1-2 previous big league seasons, the $25,000 bonus player had hit only two home runs.

"Gee, now me and Reggie (Jackson) between us have 46 homers. Isn't that something?" grinned the blond pitcher after his masterpiece.

"I hit a hanging curve ball off Mickey and it just jumped out of here. I really don't know why I'm hitting all these homers. I thought about that and I really don't have an answer."

Broadening his smile, Krausse, now 7-5, replied to a question: "No, I have set no personal home run goal this year."

Tigers manager Mayo Smith ordered Lolich to walk catcher Dave Duncan, hitting .096, after Tommy Reynolds singled with two out in the seventh. Then Krausse strode to the plate hitting .158 and banged the ball out of the park.

"I walked Duncan because I wasn't aware Krausse was going to hit a homer despite the difference in their batting averages," snapped a somewhat nettled Smith.

Krausse hurled hitless ball for 5 1-3 innings until Tom Tresh singled for the first Detroit hit. Don Wert also had a harmless single off Krausse in the eighth for the Tigers' second safety.

No Detroit runner got past first base until the ninth when Al Kaline and Norm Cash hit consecutive singles with two out.

By winning, Oakland kept pace with Minnesota in their hot battle in the American League West. Two games still separate runnerup Oakland from the frontrunning Twins.

PRO FOOTBALL ROUNDUP

Simpson Nervous As Bills Lose; Colts Shade Oilers

By STEVE SMILANICH
UPI Sports Writer

O.J. Simpson, the Buffalo Bills' high-priced rookie, is generally pleased with his professional football debut even though last year's king of college heroes admitted to being "just a little bit nervous."

Simpson, the All-America halfback from University of Southern California, played his first pro game last night and saw limited action as the Detroit Lions of the National Football League downed Buffalo, 24-12, in a contest in which another rookie, Utah State's Altie Taylor, was the standout.

In the only other pro action last night the Baltimore Colts pulled out a 32-29 triumph over the Houston Oilers on a 58-yard touchdown pass from Earl Morrall to Willie Richardson with three seconds left in the game after the Colts blew a 21-0 lead.

"I was a little bit nervous because I went in earlier than expected," Simpson said of his initial action in a Buffalo uniform. "It's great to have it over with," he added, referring to his long-awaited pro appearance.

Last year's Heisman Trophy winner, who joined the Bills training camp only four days ago, carried four times for 19 yards and had one pass reception.

The victories by the Lions and Colts gave the NFL an 8-3 lead in 11 exhibition games played against American Football League teams this season.

The Lions never trailed in the contest with the Bills, jumping to a 7-0 first period lead on a four-yard scoring run by Mel Farr. The Bills narrowed it to 7-6 on a 20-yard pass from Tom Flores to Haven Moses but the Lions made it 14-6 at halftime on a 10-yard pass from Bill Munson to Carley Sanders.

the fourth inning for Toby's, getting hit by a pitch to become the first baserunner, then scoring on an error. Jerry White, the rightfielder obtained from the Presidio, drove in the second run with a slashing single.

COSTLY ERROR

In the fifth, Haren opened up a Pandora's Box, with a two-out throwing error that eventually let in three runs, one of them coming home on another error by Haren. In between, Wilhelm, who won a golf tournament at Lake Merced earlier in the day, had banged a two-run single.

Haren was the early big stick for Myers, driving in three runs with a pair of doubles in the first two innings.

Toby's got nowhere nearly as close in their second encounter with a San Francisco team, as the Truckers accounted for just four hits and eight errors while Best Products stole six bases.

The only big bright spot of the day was White, who wound up with four hits over the two games, making only one out, and that on a long fly ball.

Annex roared back from its opening-night disaster behind pitcher Dennis Bueler and a flock of hits as the Novato-based team rolled to a 6-0 lead in the first two innings.

BATTING STARS

Kim Kerwin had a two-run single in the second inning, and Rich Harmon contributed a two-run single in the first inning while Ken Gnoss and Dewey Forrey drove in one run each.

Bueler went the distance, striking out nine batters and allowing Eureka only three hits.

That was one more hit than Eureka managed off El Molino's Randy Pugh, who turned in the tournament's outstanding pitching performance to date in yesterday's opener.

Pugh, a righthander, struck out 13 batters enroute to his shutout. Wes Tusimato's two-run triple was the key blow.

Coach Vows Improved 49er Lineup

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Coach Dick Nolan says the San Francisco 49ers will show improved play in tomorrow's home exhibition opener with the Dallas Cowboys.

"We'll still be looking but we'll be better," he said on the eve of his team's second preseason game. Last Sunday the Cleveland Browns beat San Francisco 24-19 after turning two fumble recoveries into touchdowns.

Doug Cunningham, the player who fumbled the two kicks deep in 49er territory, won't be starting against the Cowboys. His place will be taken by Johnny Fuller.

Rookie Gene Washington from Stanford, who did an outstanding job against Cleveland, will open at wide receiver for the 49ers at Kezar Stadium. Leo Johnson, Bill Wondolowski, Bob Windsor and rookie Ted Kwalick bolster the pass-catching corps.

Nolan said he would follow the same procedure in regard to alternating his quarterbacks. John Brodie will start and be spelled by George Mira and Steve Spurrier.

ALL THE WAY

Dallas coach Tom Landry says his quarterback, Craig Morton, might go the entire distance against the 49ers as he did last week in losing 24-17 to the Los Angeles Rams. Morton inherited the starting quarterback role after Don Meredith retired.

"Craig will play whatever is necessary for him to become the fluid quarterback we'll need by the time the league season rolls around," said Landry. "It may take all six exhibitions."

Morton will be throwing to such fine receivers as Bob Hayes, Lance Rentzel and Pettis Norman.

Nolan said he will give Tommy Davis a rest from his double-barreled kicking chores and try Spurrier on punts and Dennis Patera on extra points, fjeld goals and kickoffs.

Four 49er veterans — center Bruce Bosley, guard Howard Mudd, defensive lineman Kevin Hardy and running back Gary Lewis — are expected to see their first action of the exhibition season against Dallas.

MARIN NETTER WINS S.F. JUNIOR CROWN

After dropping the first set, Redwood High School student Steve McDonald of Tiburon rallied to upset top seeded Andy Webb yesterday for the boys' 18 and under age division championship in the San Francisco Junior Hard Court Tennis Tournament at Golden Gate Park. The score was 5-7, 7-5, 6-4.

Two other Marin County players also brought home titles in doubles competition. Bee Kilgore of Tiburon teamed with Marna Louie of San Francisco to capture the girls' 14 age division while Dan Tierney of Tiburon along with Eric Lee of San Francisco won the boys' 14.

Player, the little South African health faddist bidding for his second PGA conquest, had set the course record before Bies even teed off with a hot 65. He had an opening 71.

PUTTED WELL

"I putted very, very well. These are the finest two rounds I've played this year," he said.

Player, who discarded his traditional black attire "because I like to wear pastel shades when it gets very hot," bogeyed two of his first three holes. He two-putted from six feet on No. 1 and missed a two-footer on No. 3.

Floyd, who has won at Jacksonville and Akron, said he was very irritable at the start of his round, possibly because he didn't sleep well the night before.

He missed a bird by two-putting from three feet on the second hole and missed another three-footer for a bogey on No. 3.

"That made the difference," he said. "The fire got started. I told myself I was going to get moving when I left that green."

AN EAGLE

He rolled in a 15-footer for a birdie on the next hole and dropped in a two-foot putt for another bird on No. 5. Then the husky pro from North Carolina boomed a long drive and a four-wood three feet from the pin, holing out for an eagle on the 548-yard No. 6, longest hole on the course.

Ex-49er Stickles Placed On Waivers By New Orleans

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN DIEGO — The New Orleans Saints put veteran tight end Monty Stickles on waivers yesterday just before the team boarded its chartered flight to Denver, Colo., for tonight's exhibition game with the Broncos.

A Saint's source said Stickles would not be reclaimed if another team attempted to pick him up but there was a chance the 6-foot-4, 235-pound former Notre Dame star could wind up on New Orleans' taxi unit as an instant reserve.

New Orleans acquired Stickles 13 months ago in a trade with the 49ers that sent George Rose to San Francisco.

Andy Kosco and Bill Sudakis also homered for Los jangeles in support of Sutton who struck out eight and allowed seven hits, including Rusty Staub's 22nd homer. Kosco and Sudakis homers came off Elroy Face, who was released by Montreal after the game.

In other National League games, Pittsburgh beat Cincinnati, 5-1; San Francisco blanked Chicago, 30; Philadelphia shut out Houston, 1-0; Atlanta walloped St. Louis, 8-2 and the New York Mets-San Diego Padres game at New York was rained out.

Gene Alley belted two homers and Al Oliver and Rich Hebner added one apiece to back the six-hit pitching of Bob Veale in the Pirates' win over the Reds. The loss cut Cincinnati's Western Division lead to 1 1-2 games over Atlanta. Veale upped his record to 8-11 while Young Gary Nolan, who was tagged for three of the Pirates' four homers, took his fourth setback in seven decisions.

THE ONLY WAY TO FLY

Australian Bill Bennett, the well-known water-ski kite flier, explains the mechanics of his delta-wing kite to Inger Young of Mill Valley as news cameramen record the scene. Bennett, who did a fly-by of Alcatraz Island Thursday, was brought to the Bay Area by the Pepsi-Cola Co. to publicize next weekend's National Water Ski Championships in Berkeley. Towed by a speedboat, Bennett attains heights in excess of 2,000 feet, then free flies his kite to pin-point landings.

San Rafael, Watsonville Teams Meet

Lefthander Russ Dillon, who has won all three of his starts for San Rafael, and righthander Ben Burch (7-1) will pitch tomorrow for San Rafael. The Braves' batting leaders are catcher Rocky Shone with a .438 average, shortstop Tom Corder, .397, and third baseman Dave Edson, .380.

THE GENERATION GAP

Boy, 12, Vet 55, Share Top Honors In Marin Bowling

By RALPH CHATOIAN

Call it generation gap or age space, but there are 43 years of age between the two Marin County bowling stars of the week.

Don Roque, 12, of Mill Valley won the Bantam Boys division all-events title in the California State Junior Bowling Tournament, and Walt Silva, 55, Sausalito bar owner, blasted a 926 four-game series during play at Country Club Bowl in San Rafael.

Roque, an eighth grader at Edna Maguire School in Mill Valley, scored 1,973 pins, including handicap, in nine games of action at Mel's Bowl in Redwood City and Kings Bowl in Millbrae to run off with the title. He carries a 145 average.

Silva cracked out a 752 series on games of 255, 240 and 257 before falling off to a 174. It was in the 555 Trios. That 752 is one of the highest three-game series scores in Marin County in many moons.

Other high scores out of the 555 Trios came from Orlando Conti, 225-845 and Elmer Tynes, 233-833. In the Peterson Point Trios at Country Club, Mike Curry had game of 234 and series of 825 and Lee Stetson a 231 and 819.

Gayle Chu had high score among the women at Country Club, one pin shy from a 600. Her games were 211, 202 and 186 (Oh, for a 187) in the Keglerettes League.

THIS AND THAT — Don Young led the scores at Greenbrae Lanes with a 252 line in the Thursday Men's Scratch ... Faith Hicklin rolled her first 200, a 206 in the Hi-Lo's League at Country Club, while Sharon Peicich led scores with a 223 line. ... In the Sleepers League at Country Club, Shirl Burger rolled a 546 and Ethel Stocking a 541. ... Peggy Quezada had high game among the women at Country Club Bowl, 255. ... Jerry Tatum rolled an all-spare 183 game in the TGIF League at Country Club. ... Fran Spear converted the difficult 4-7-8-10 in the Bowlerettes.

THIS AND THAT — Grace Webster rolled a 214-572 and Bea Hoffmann a 202-563 in the Blue Chip League at Country Club. ... In junior bowling, 104 average Jackqui Dorsey, 13, rolled a 199 game and 495 series, her highest ever, to lead the scores in the Saturday Juniors and Rich McPherson led the adult-juniors with 214-586.

BOWLING TIPS

By MARION LADEWIG

Some of today's best bowlers are southpaws, especially among the men. The lefthand side of the alley will have a higher polish, since it isn't used as much. For this reason, lefties can expect less of a hook and might be wise to start farther to the left than usual.

Raiders Seek First Win

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Two rivals in both the State of California and the American Football League clash tonight in San Diego Stadium.

The Oakland Raiders and San Diego Chargers will field lineups relatively free of pre-season injuries.

In the battle of quarterbacks, Oakland's Daryle Lamonica, who has engineered victories over the Chargers the past three seasons, and John Hadl, the veteran Charger, will start.

But both will be backed up by solid relievers — Eldridge Dickey and George Blanda for the Raiders and Marty Domres for the Chargers.

Raider Coach John Madden, who at 33 is the youngest mentor in pro ranks, has lost his two pre-season starts, but his team has scored 44 points while the Chargers were scoring 16 in compiling a 1-1 record.

It will be Madden's first football appearance in San Diego since he was defensive coordinator at San Diego State from 1964 through 1966.

Oakland has the same starting lineups that have played the previous games. With only one significant exception the same is true of San Diego. Russ Smith, who suffered a back sprain in last week's Charger-Saints encounter, will be out for another week.

Also absent from the Charger lineup is all-pro offensive tackle Ron Mix, whose pulled thigh muscle, suffered last month, will keep him out until the Aug. 23 encounter with the NFL Cleveland Browns.

Among the younger players, the Raider pass receiving of Rod Sherman and Drew Buie have alerted the Charger defense, while linebacker Bob Babich of the Chargers has made his imprint as one of the finest prospects in the pro lineups.

'Moe' Hill To Head Terra Linda Club

M. O. "Moe" Hill has been elected president of the Terra Linda Trojan Boosters Association, succeeding Donn Nissen, president of the Terra Linda High School boosters group the past two years.

R. J. "Jim" Young was elected vice president. Persons interested in Terra Linda prep sports and who would like to assist should call one of the two officers, they said.

Hunter Safety

Registration for a hunter safety course for youngsters 12 to 18 years of age will be held Monday, 7 p.m. at the San Rafael Police Pistol Range and not at 2 p.m. as was erroneously reported in yesterday's Independent-Journal.

Campus Unrest Reflected In Auto Insurance Rates

AUTO INSURANCE RATES are on the way up — again.

The number of claims, which means the number of bills which auto insurance companies have been called upon to pay, has risen sharply again this year. In other words, there have been more accidents.

The cost of repairs also has risen at least as much as the cost of parts and cost of labor.

One company which in its 40-year history has never had to institute two rate increases in one year may wind up 1969 doing just that.

PEOPLE KNOWLEDGEABLE in the field have a variety of explanations:

It was a wet winter with above normal number of storms which produced more accidents.

Each year traffic is heavier and the number of accidents increases accordingly.

The rising cost of repairs lifts many bills out of the standard $100 deductible range and up to the level where the insurance company must pay at least part.

Beyond these obvious reasons is a surprising one that some insurance executives believe has been a heavy contributor to highway accidents.

It is campus unrest.

Their reasoning is simple.

In California during 1969, traffic policemen from city police forces and the California Highway Patrol necessarily invested a tremendous number of man-hours in campus police duties.

This tremendous number of man-hours spent on campus took traffic patrolmen off our streets and highways, by droves.

Traffic safety observers know that if you want to reduce the number of accidents in any given area, you can do it simply by increasing the number of traffic patrolmen working the area.

The reverse is true. If for any reason you have to reduce the number of patrolmen working an area, the accident rate is sure to rise.

This is, many insurance executives are certain, exactly what happened on California streets and highways during 1969, thus far.

When you read about new campus unrest this fall and when you get your higher-than-ever auto insurance bill, you can be pretty sure there is a connection between the two.

A YOUNG MAN WORKING on his doctor of philosophy degree at Stanford several years ago became seriously interested in highway safety, specifically as it applied to him — driving along the Bayshore Freeway.

He quickly became aware that at least 50 per cent of accidents are so-called rear-enders.

He decided to put his quite considerable talents to seeking some kind of solution.

He studied the physics of stopping an automobile. He determined the average time and distance required to stop an average car at various driving speeds.

He researched the human neurological system to determine average reaction times.

The highway patrol recommends that you keep at least one car length space between you and the car ahead, for every 10 miles per hour of speed.

The young Ph.D. candidate verified that this distance would in fact allow for both human reaction time plus the time and distance necessary to avoid a rear-ender with the car ahead.

Trouble is, almost nobody keeps that much distance, especially on crowded freeways.

THE YOUNG MAN SET OUT to use modern electronic technology to provide an "early warning" system when the car ahead begins to slow down. He has attempted to cut human reaction time by eliminating hesitation.

His solution he calls the "Cyberlite."

It is a kind of auxiliary tail light which flashes brightly as you start to slow down.

It is so conceived that the degree of braking is reflected in the frequency of the flash.

A "panic" stop produces extremely rapid flashing which just naturally motivates you to put on your own brakes much more quickly than you would otherwise.

THE YOUNG MAN'S NAME is John Voevodsky. He has received his Ph.D.

For three years he has been trying to get the California Highway Patrol to test his device with a view to giving it necessary approval for use in our state.

So far, he has seemed to get nowhere.

Can it be that the highway patrol is so busy preparing for its next campus calls that it doesn't have manpower to test a promising safety device?

The Food Finders

Different animals have different talents. The raccoons have many. These charming little creatures are common in Marin, and Marinites are familiar with at least one raccoon habit: Raccoons are expert food finders.

The ability of these animals to search out goodies borders on the uncanny. They can nose out the caviar from the run-of-the-mill garbage. They keep better track of state of ripeness of figs and grapes than the Department of Agriculture, so they can pick them first. And they are experts in picking out the families that will be the softest touches when they don their beggar's habit.

Some naturalists believe that other, less shrewd, animals follow, or at least, observe these cunning creatures in their own search for food.

Bouquets And Brickbats

BOUQUETS to Sharon Walsh of San Rafael for winning the national girls' lawn tennis championship, and to Mike Suyderhoud of San Anselmo for winning the world water skiing title at Copenhagen, Denmark.

BRICKBATS to boys who shoot at birds with B-B guns and sling shots. There can't be much "sport" in bagging a robin or waxwing this way, and there's not much sportsmanship in boys who do it.

One day a mere New Yorker asked if she came from Boston. "I am not FROM Boston," she corrected him haughtily. "I AM Boston."

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Editor Made To Eat Some Of His Words

My letter to the I-J (Aug. 12) criticized your editorials of June 25 and July 26 for belittling Nixon's proposed initial troop withdrawal from Vietnam because they inaccurately stated that only medics, supply troops, and postal clerks were being withdrawn. Your reply to my letter was that "the editorial of June 25 did not say the initial 25,000-troop withdrawal 'consisted entirely of medics, etc. . . ." Allow me to quote from that editorial: "However, the caution that makes removal of 25,000 medical and supply troops 'the start of a pullout from Vietnam' could bear another, less respectable, name. That name is tokenism." Similarly, the July 26 editorial refers to "the recall with much hoopla of 25,000 medics, supply troops and postal clerks." Since the Department of Defense news release listing the units you referred to definitely stated that these constituted only 2,000 of the 25,000 and earlier news articles identified some substantial combat elements being withdrawn, the editorials can only be regarded as inaccurate and misleading.

Your policy of usually printing in full letters of moderate length disagreeing with or correcting points in your editorials is highly commendable. Why not gain even more respect among your readers by admitting it when you are obviously wrong?

(The editor admits to looseness in referring to "25,000 medics, supply troops and postal clerks," although even if all 25,000 had been combat troops the withdrawal might still be termed tokenism. Latest reports indicate President Nixon is considering recalling an additional 113,000 by Christmas. This would be a more significant withdrawal, but still leave 400,000 American troops in Vietnam. — Editor.)

Bit Of Moon Dirt Or Free Universities?

We have conquered space and are overwhelmed by the tremendous achievement of American astronauts. Unstinted honor and credit is due all the participants and to the unprecedented capacity for cooperative effort demonstrated in our country.

Now let's get down to earth! At the staggering cost of 23 billions of dollars, which taxed the average American family $575, we have snatched from the moon a bucket of soil such as can be found near any volcano here on earth! We have also learned many new facts of which few, if any, have practical application to the urgent problems of mankind.

Of each billion dollars spent, 200 million could have built a great university for 10,000 students. The remaining 800 million, invested at 6 per cent could have provided an endowment of $48 million a year to provide faculty and maintenance forever! Twenty-three great universities in all, giving a free education to 230,000 students, graduating 46,000 of them each year for the next hundred years and at no additional cost to the taxpayers. All this we have traded for a bucket of dirt!

If, without strenuous protest, our citizens permit this reckless waste of their taxes to continue — then history will surely regard them as "lunatics."

Value Of Fishing Permit Questioned

We've been wondering what the use is of paying $5 each for a permit to fish in Nicasio Lake this year.

All other years we've gotten nice big blue gills in the months of August and September, but this year all these "blue stone" they put in the water, no fish at all.

The water department men say they have to use the "blue stone" to purify the water, but why so often? Every time they use it, the fish are gone for about three to four days — then they use it again.

After all, it did cost us $5 each for the fishing permits, plus $5 for the state license, for what? Nicasio Lake is never stocked with fish, so it's plenty hard to catch any without the added "stopper" of "blue stone."

LINES ON LIVING

Life Of Imitation Like Muddied Pool

By Rabbi HAIM KEMELMAN

A stream that isn't in motion becomes at best only a muddled puddle, mirroring nothing else but outside reflections and sights.

Men and women who live for themselves end up enjoying little in themselves. They lose originality and languish in a fixed inertia of thinking and living that reflects nothing but outside impressions.

The joyful and creative life must possess a living simplicity — original as far as possible, unadulterated as far as obtainable — as its end.

WHEN DIOGENES Laertius threw away his only utensil, a simple shell from which he drank, as he saw a boy drinking from his own hands, he didn't merely show defiance of civilized convenience. His purpose was to demonstrate an exercise in the worthiness of simple living as a virtue in itself. And when he lustily quenched his thirst by drinking from that cupful, formed by his own 10 fingers, he declared with childish innocence, "A child has beaten me in simplicity of living."

Here the ancient sage rejected a crude form of sophistication to remind himself of the simple joys of plain living and the thrills of self-celebration with all its attendant delights that are within reach at all times. Joyful living requires not the wealth of a millionaire nor the luxury of a yacht, but the richness of soul and the elegance of awareness. Drink, Diogenes exhorts his contemporaries, from the cup of life, with your own hands.

MANY LIVES are muddled because they are fixed and trapped within their own confines. They show nothing of original motion, no sign of creative living. They only reflect that which is projected upon their surface. They show shallow imitations of other lives. They either live in the yesterdays of wine and roses, or in the foggy dreams of tomorrow, of some kind of a "somewhere over the rainbow."

If life is really so weak that it fails to move some people from their boring existence, it's only because it had become trapped in the muddy and slimy lagoon of self-containment. "It takes life to love Life," suggests Edgar Lee Masters. But when the stream has stagnated, the only life within it are the filthy, creeping, spineless little creatures which breed nothing but disease and muck. And what's true of liquid fluid, is true of the human mind.

A MOVING simplicity, and as far as possible an innate originality, is the crowning grace of a joyous and creative life: an awareness in things that happen, not an obsession in things that are bought; in clocks that strike time for holidays, not in relentless wrist-watches that push the blood pressure up to boiling; in enjoying a nice life, not in wrestling for rich living. To put it simply and aptly, in the words of William Henry Channing:

"To live content with small means; to seek elegance rather than luxury, and refinement rather than fashion; to be worthy . . . to study hard, think quietly, talk gently, act frankly; to listen to the stars and birds, to babes and sages, with open heart; to bear all cheerfully, do all bravely, await occasions, hurry never; in a word to let the spiritual, unbidden and unconscious, grow up through the common."

COUNTRY PARSON

"We don't need much of a police force in a community small enough for everybody to know everybody else."

Shabby Trains In Last Runs As Airports Become Clogged

Aboard the California Zephyr enroute to San Francisco — As Rip van Winkle waking up on one of the last cross-country trains, we wind across the Rockies, across the moon-like deserts of Utah, down through the Feather River Canyon.

Enlarging the time span gives a curious sense of reliving the past of an age all but vanished. By jet from Denver to the west coast is two and one-half to three hours. We take 32 more or less, allowing for being an hour late while we wait for long freights to pass us. In our leisurely progress we know that America is not just a gray blur between cities but a continent of many splendors. Beyond the urban sprawl, the junk heaps and used-car graveyards, you can believe in America the Beautiful of spacious skies and vast open spaces.

As companion an eight-year-old granddaughter supplies the note of wonder. One reason for the journey was so Catherine could say in later years that, yes, she had once ridden on a train, just as a great-grandfather of ancient memory talked of how he had been a passenger on a stagecoach. For Catherine the train is as novel as a space rocket would be for her grandparent.

THE EQUIPMENT is on the tired and shabby side and the personnel suffers from a fatigue factor. The talk is about seniority. The road bed leaves something to be desired, the jumping-bean effect in a berth at night being hardly conducive to sleep.

But the melancholy aspect of the journey as the old nostalgia flows is the imminent threat of the end of the service just around the next curve. Posted in each of the 10 passenger cars are notices that the railroads — the Burlington between Chicago and Denver and the Denver and Rio Grande and Western Pacific between Denver and San Francisco — have petitioned the Interstate Commerce Commission to discontinue the Zephyr. A series of hearings along the 2,000-mile route will precede the ICC's decision.

If they had their way, undeterred by government authority or public opinion, the railroads would probably stop all intercity passenger service. In the past decade more than half the passenger trains have been taken off and the passenger miles traveled have fallen proportionately.

THAT IS ONE measure of the nation's transportation crisis, with more people on the move at the peak of the vacation period than ever before. The quarrel between the air traffic controllers and the Federal Aviation Administration threatens to shut down the airlines. Airports are a bedlam of overcrowding and the air corridors between major cities are dangerously congested. This is at the point that rail service, with few exceptions, is grinding to a stop.

The controversy over why this should be so has been long and fierce. The airlines and the truckers, the railroads contend, have had all the breaks from government. But the railroads, their numerous critics say, never tried to modernize passenger service to compete with planes and motorcars.

Robert R. Young made a valiant effort after World War II with full-page ads assailing the antiquated methods of the entrenched rail executives, the most famous ad being the one headlined: "A Hog Can Cross the Country Without Changing Trains But You Can't." But he never had a chance in his fight for innovative changes in passenger service. The stalwarts in the Association of American Railroads insisted that passenger service in the age of the motorcar could never be made to pay and they were determined to prove it.

ON THE NEAR horizon is the first sign of a compromise. The railroad association is saying that if the government forces the roads to run trains that are unprofitable, then the government will have to provide a subsidy. Hitherto subsidies — or, at any rate, direct subsidies — have been looked on as an instrument of a socialist takeover.

Obviously, it is going to take a far greater degree of cooperation between government and the rail lines if passenger traffic is restored to anything like the place it should have in a balanced transportation system.

We are speeding down the flat, sun-lit California terrain past the factory farms with stoop labor in the fields, the fabulous hills of San Francisco just beyond. For the impatient traveler, it must be confessed, this is just in time.

Speaking Of Disarmament— Well, That Goes On Forever

(Art Buchwald has gone into quarantine for a few weeks so that he doesn't give the astronauts any germs. We are repringing some of his all-time favorites.)

The disarmament talks may start again in Geneva. I happen to be an expert on disarmament, and after a while the talks all seem to have a pattern.

Let me take you to the 12,654th plenary session of the 17-Nation Disarmament Conference in Geneva, in the year 1994.

American Ambassador Stone is about to make a statement, but he sneezes instead.

AMBASSADOR GROANYKO: Your proposal is entirely unacceptable to the Soviet Socialist Republics.

STONE: But I didn't make a proposal. I just sneezed.

GROANYKO: I ask for a 5-minute recess to confer with my staff.

GROANYKO: What should our response be?

SOVIET ADVISER: We could say gesundheit.

GROANYKO: Yes, but how do we know the sneeze wasn't a trap to make us say gesundheit?

SECOND SOVIET ADVISER: But if we don't say gesundheit, and he really sneezed, it could be a big propaganda victor for the West.

GROANYKO: Should we ask time to get instructions from Moscow?

SOVIET ADVISER: No. It would look like we don't have authority to make decisions on our own.

GROANYKO: I think the best thing is to say gesundheit with reservations. If it's a trap, we can always renounce it.

(The session is called back to order.)

GROANYKO: Mr. Chairman, I wish to address a word to the ambassador from the United States.

CHAIRMAN: Does the American ambassador yield?

STONE: I do.

GROANYKO: Gesundheit.

STONE: I object to the Soviet proposal. They are not dealing in good faith, and my government cannot accept their proposal.

GROANYKO: But all I said was gesundheit in answer to your sneeze.

STONE: I request a five-minute recess to discuss this with my British colleagues.

(The recess is granted, and Stone huddles with the British ambassador.)

STONE: What do you make of it?

BRITISH AMBASSADOR: I don't like it.

STONE: Neither do I. I've sneezed before, and they've never said gesundheit.

BRITISH AMBASSADOR: If we accept it, and then a Soviet sneezes, we'll have to say gusendheit to him.

STONE: If we give in on this, we may have to give in on other things. Why do you think they spoke in German?

BRITISH AMBASSADOR: That's what I've been wondering. They've got something up their sleeves.

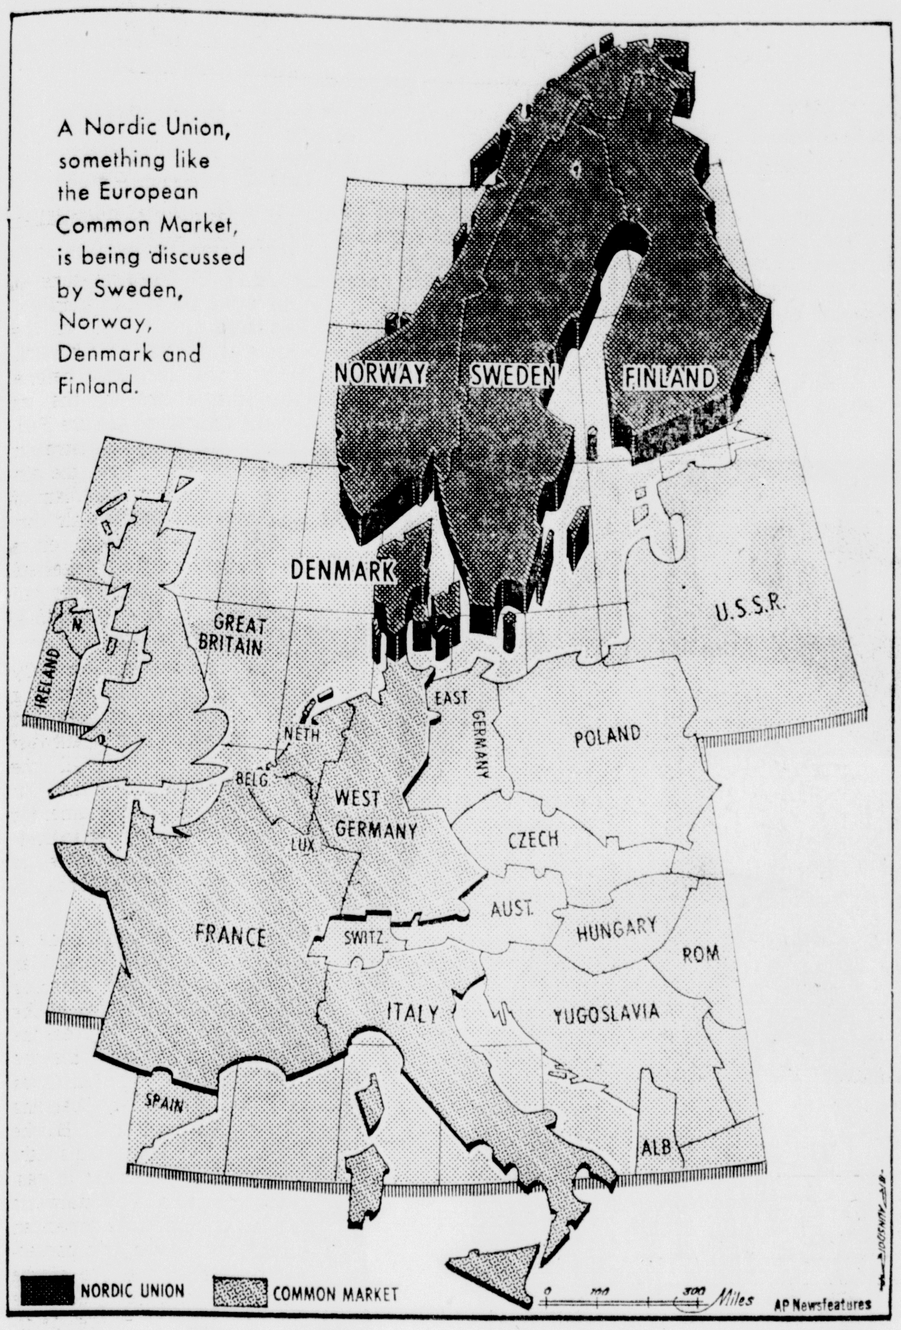
STONE: Suppose I say thank you on the provision that if they accept the rest of our proposals, we will accept their gesundheit.

(The session is called back to order.)

STONE: I wish to thank the Soviet ambassador for saying gesundheit.

GROANYKO: I wish to object to the American ambassador's statement and cannot see any significant change in the American warlike attitude toward these talks.

Nordic Common Market Rising



COPENHAGEN (AP) — Sweden, Norway, Denmark and Finland move one uncertain step closer this summer to realizing an old vision, a kind of Nordic dream, when a joint group of high officials submits the draft of a treaty designed to inject new dynamics into the economies of four small countries, make them more of a power among the world's economic greats, smooth their way into a larger, European community — or help them survive, if Europe remains divided in trade blocs.

Closeted in a suburban Copenhagen hotel for a marathon session, the officials and negotiators have worked hard to finalize the framework for an economic union that would bring 21 million Nordic people together in a cooperation so comprehensive, and so closely coordinated, as to match the European Common Market (EEC).

If the Nordic Union — NORDEK for short — is set up along the lines already suggested by the expert group's first preliminary report last January, the four Nordic countries will be tied together by:

A general treaty of wide-ranging, economic cooperation.

A customs union.

A nuclear energy pool.

Four EEC-type investment funds — for joint development projects, for education, for research, for structural adjustments in agriculture, and for fisheries.

A ministerial council and other joint institutions governing cooperation ranging from automation and antipollution measures to regional development, health, space and maritime research.

There would also be joint discussions of budgetary and trade policies, joint action in some trade negotiations with third parties, joint combat of dumping in the Nordic market. Capital movements and business-establishing rights would be liberalized, fiscal policy instruments harmonized, and credit, interest and monetary policies coordinated, at least to a degree.

However ambitious the project, the officials concluded in their first recommendations that it would be possible "to solve all problems in a way that will, on the whole, benefit all four countries."

They went a long way towards proving it, agreeing right away on 75 per cent of the outer tariffs of the customs union. And even if they had to leave such delicate questions as agriculture, fisheries, capital movements and establishing rights open, it was all promising enough for the prime ministers to tell them to go ahead, tackle remaining tariffs and major outstanding issues, and come up with a draft treaty by mid-July.

But as the deadline draws closer, there are signs that the big, political drive for Nordic unity, begun with much energy and enthusiasm early last year after France's Charles de Gaulle had once more slammed the door of the EEC, was losing some of its original momentum.

With the pace slackening no prime ministers meeting is scheduled to receive the expert group's drafts — and little, in fact, appeared likely to happen this side of Norway's general elections in the fall and the change of prime minister in Sweden in September.

Much clearly depends on European developments in the months to come. They could overtake Nordic developments and give support to calls from some quarters for abandonment of the whole project. But if the EEC remains an uncertain bet, or worse, the Nordic drive would probably pick up new speed.

The overriding theme of the Nordic debate is that NORDEK must be seen in a European context, not as a move towards Nordic isolationism. Also, there is general agreement NORDEK should strengthen the negotiating position vis-a-vis the EEC and in no way impair any country's chances to join a broader European market should the opportunity arise.

Norway's Foreign Minister John Lyng has made it plain that "NORDEK can never be a satisfactory alternative to a European solution." Denmark's Minister of Economy Per Nyboe Andersen traveled to all EEC capitals just to make certain there is no misunderstanding that NORDEK has a European perspective and does not affect the "fundamental" goal: EEC membership.

Danish Prime Minister Hilmar Baunsgaard, one of the prime movers behind NORDEK, insists that Nordic efforts can go ahead at full speed and Europe still remain a priority.

Predicting that a Nordic economic union can be fully established by 1972, Baunsgaard makes this point: "If obstacles to EEC membership still prevail by then, we will have the advantage that we used the time well preparing a close, economic cooperation of our own, ready to go into effect at once."

But skeptics voice considerable doubt that collective bargaining with the EEC would strengthen anyone since attitudes differ widely — Denmark and Norway all out for full EEC membership, Sweden most likely for some kind of association, and Finland not applying at all.

Despite much uncertainty, the general feeling is that the Nordic dream, crushed so often in earlier, abortive attempts, may now be closer to realization than ever. Even if defense, security and foreign policy will be kept out, NORDEK appears to appeal strongly to age-old, popular aspirations for Nordic unity.

And if a Nordic union does not come this time it probably never will. "This, no doubt, is the last chance," says former Danish Minister of Economy Ivar Noergaard.

'REFINED TECHNIQUES'

B52s Assume Greater Role In Air War Over Vietnam

By ROBERT TAYLOR

U-TAPAO, Thailand (UPI)— Refined bombing techniques in South Vietnam and the expansion of the secret air war over Laos have given the B52 bombers based here a more important role in the Southeast Asian war than ever before.

Operations at this bomber base on the shores of the gulf of Siam have mounted steadily despite the seven-month restrictions against bombing over North Vietnam and de-escalation of American ground operations in South Vietnam.

In just the last two months, U-Tapao has acquired facilities for major maintenance of the big bombers, lengthening the time before they must return to their main Pacific base at Guam from about three weeks to 45 days.

This in turn has reduced turnaround time between missions for a larger number of planes and along with other operational innovations made it possible for Strategic Air Command (SAC) commanders to put the B52's over a target within an hour and a half after a call to action.

According to the Sac men, Gen. Creighton Abrams, the American commander in Vietnam, has utilized the B52s and their increased availability as no other military commander has ever used bombers, turning them into a sort of airborne "heavy artillery" to support his ground units.

"General Abrams will move his ground units around to mass as many enemy troops as possible in a given area," one officer said. "Then he calls in B52 strikes."

The result, according to the people here, is that Abrams has been able to follow a strategy of cutting down on casualty-producing offensive operations while at the same time keeping up his mission of destroying Communist fighting capability.

The B52s also have played a great part in the shadowy war in Laos, pounding areas of the Ho Chi Minh Trail supply complex with their loads of 750- and 500-pound "iron bombs."

Air Force men are not allowed to discuss the Laos war because for political reasons the United States will not admit that it flies bombing missions in Laos.

Nevertheless, information is available that out of the average of 60 or so B52 sorties flown every day, anywhere from six to 15 of the camouflage painted bombers will be headed for Laos.

When operational conditions permit it, the number of strikes against Laotian sanctuaries of the Communists goes up.

During the 24-hour American truce in South Vietnam for Buddha's birthday anniversary May 30, a UPI correspondent who visited U-Tapao saw operations going on as usual although no strikes were heading toward South Vietnam. All of the missions were going toward Laos.

Of the 60 or so sorties on any given day, about two-thirds will originate at U-Tapao because of its short elapsed mission time of from two and a half to four hours.

Other missions come from the main base at Guam, about 12 hours roundtrip flying time from Southeast Asia. Still others take off from the American base at Kadena, Okinawa, but Air Force men are forbidden to discuss them because of Japanese objections to use of the base for Vietnam war missions.

The appearance of the eight-jet monsters on the ground has led the B52 men to dub them "buffs," which stands for "big, ugly, fat——." Many of the planes were built in 1955 and 1956 and were destined for the scrapheap when the first B52 strikes of the Vietnam war in July, 1965, gave them a new lease on life.

"Strikes have been flown since April, 1967, out of U-Tapao, which was originally announced as a base for aerial refuelling tankers.

Everything is strictly business at this base. The planes do not have individual names like bombers in past wars and crews rotate among planes and have no particular preference for one plane or another.

The most popular method of bombing is by direction from the ground. Kwons as "Sky-spot," it is controlled from surface radar sites with which one SAC officer says, "we've literally ringed Vietnam." Some sites are at friendly outposts in Communist-held areas of Laos.

The ground controller puts the bomber on a course and keeps him there by voice similar to a ground-controlled landing approach. He tells the navigator when to drop his bombs with a countdown similar to that for a rocket launch. Military sources say accuracy is within a few yards.

Although the B52's often fly out of sight and hearing of the ground, they are constantly tracked by Communist ground radars in some areas where they fly. It is the job of the electronics warfare officer to detect these radars and jam them.

Military sources say the Communists in some parts of Laos now have antiaircraft guns capable of reaching the altitudes of around 30,000 feet where the B52's operate, but so far no B52's have been hit. Missile launches against B52's have also been far wide of the mark.

Behind The News

PLIGHT DESPERATE

Safety Of Mercy Missions To Biafra Remains Real Puzzler

LONDON (Toronto News Service) — Even the wisdom of King Solomon would be sorely tried seeking a solution to the agonizing dispute over how relief deliveries can be resumed to the starving civilian population of Biafra.

Caught up in the frustration of wanting to continue with its mercy flights to the famine-stricken breakaway state but hamstrung by the disagreement of the opposing sides in the Nigerian civil war, the president of the International Red Cross, Mr. Marcel Naville, is due to fly to Africa everyday.

Red Cross supplies were called off recently following the shooting down of one of the mercy planes. As a result, during the last few weeks virtually no supplies have reached Biafra and the plight of the Biafran people is becoming desperate.

It is estimated that the lives of over a million may well be forfeited unless agreement can be reached.

An Irish priest who runs a refugee camp in Biafra's north said he has only 15 tons of food a week to distribute among 60,000 people.

And food stock of the Red Cross now are almost totally exhausted.

"We are tortured at the thought of present deadlock and of the immediate tragedy ahead if no solution is found," says the Red Cross in Geneva.

In simple terms — if anything can be simple when a bitter civil war is entering its third year and emotions are running high among supporters on both sides — the Nigerian government insists it is not trying to use starvation of Biafra to bring the rebellion to an end.

Nigeria says it is quite prepared for the Red Cross and other relief agencies to fly in their supplies provided it is done in daylight. Nigeria also wants these supplies examined by its own officials, together with neutral observers, to ensure that no arms or other war materials are smuggled in.

The Red Cross denies it is doing any gun-running, but although it is against it previous tactics it is quite prepared for such inspections. "Prestige does not concern us," says the Red Cross. "We only want to save lives."

Biafra wants night flight to continue and it is clear why.

With the relief flight planes as a shield, war supplies can also be flown in — not in Red Cross planes but by supporters of the Biafran cause in their own aircraft.

Up to now Nigeria has flights imply because it did not have the equipment to deal with them. Now Russian pilots flying sophisticated aircraft are available to shoot down planes during darkness. So Nigeria is now insisting that all night flights cease.

Nigeria's claim that these flights have been the shields for gun-running seems justified, for since the Red Cross night ferries ceased, no arms have reached Biafra.

Only General Ojukwu stands in the way of Red Cross relief supplies reaching his starving people by his refusal to allow these day-only flights to come in via Nigerian territory, according to Britain. It adds that agreement has been reached on this both with the Nigerians and the Red Cross.

Denying British claims of agreement Red Cross officials say that any proposals must have the blessing of the Biafrans — otherwise no aid can flow to the starving population of this area.

The Red Cross seems annoyed that Britain claims unity in talks between the United Kingdom and the Red Cross.

The British want to show the issue in clear-cut terms with sainthood on the Nigerian side by praising the federal government's policy of "allowing" daylight flights as a "humane breakthrough." But the Red Cross knows very well that Ojukwu fears that if he agrees to day-only flights, he is risking exposing his last known surviving air-strip to bombing by federal pilots.

With trigger-happy Egyptians and Russians flying Nigerian planes he legitimately fears that they will destroy this last link with the outside world no matter what guarantees are made about this airfield by the British or anyone else. After all the U-K has invested interests — it supplies Nigeria with 15 per cent of its arms.

Ojukwu does not agree to mercy flights being channelled through Lagos because the relief supplies will then appear to be "charity" from his enemies. He wants them to come from a neutral source.

The Red Cross is hoping to reach some compromise with both sides in the war. By sending its president, this international mercy organization is playing its last card.

The pawn of starvation is being used ruthlessly by the warring parties with the Red Cross and its humanitarian motives caught in the crossfires of this struggle.

The only losers appear to be the civilians of Biafra. It is now believed that unless supplies are resumed to them within weeks they will start dying from starvation.

Vatican Scoffs At Being Called Top Diplomatic Listening Post

VATICAN CITY (UPI)— Among hardy legends that need knocking down is the one that the Vatican is a major diplomatic listening post in the world.

In fact, it's a pretty poor one.

The late Cardinal Domenico Tardini, who served Pope John XXIII as secretary of state, once commented wryly: "They say we have the best diplomatic service in the world. Well, if we are first, I pity the second."

This view is shared by experienced Western diplomats in Rome who have a close working knowledge of the Vatican, and it may have influenced President Richard M. Nixon's recent decision not to name a fulltime United States representative to the Vatican.

Nixon sent an emissary to Pope Paul VI on July 3 to inform him the United States wanted to maintain close contact with the Vatican, but would do it through visits by special emissaries rather than a permanent envoy.

"The notion that the Vatican is a great listening post is poppycock," one American diplomat says. "If you want a balanced appraisal of the situation in Czechoslovakia, for example, you certainly aren't going to get it from a report that a bishop sends to the Holy See.

"In other countries where the Vatican has diplomatic representatives, they sometimes obtain useful information but in such cases it's usually easier to get it from them on the spot than from the secretariat of state. Over-all, however, we can get better information through our various embassies than I think is available to the Holy See."

Other diplomats say that most countries which do have diplomatic relations with the Vatican have not assigned their most distinguished diplomats there, and all embassies to the Holy See are quite small— which undoubtedly would not be true if the Vatican were the great source of information that legend has portrayed it.

Sixty-seven countries have relations with the Vatican, but six of them currently maintain an embassy in name only and 15 others are represented by embassies actually based in other European countries ranging from England to Luxembourg.

The quality of the Vatican's own diplomats seems to vary widely.

One of the most outstanding is the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Emanuele Clarizio, 58, now apostolic delegate to Canada. Clarizio distinguished himself as papal nuncio to the Dominican Republic in 1965 by helping mediate a solution to the armed conflict between rival political forces in that country.

But one Vatican official who is familiar with most of the Holy See's representatives frankly estimates no more than 10 per cent of them are men of Clarizio's stature.

The Vatican has two main categories of representatives: papal nuncios, who are diplomats of ambassadorial rank; and apostolic delegates, who do not have diplomatic status and serve in countries like the United States that do not recognize the Vatican.

The nuncio represents the Vatican toward the government of the country in which he serves and also is the Vatican's link with the church of that country. He is responsible for reporting to the Vatican on the political situation in a country primarily from the standpoint of how this affects the church's freedom to operate.

The apostolic delegate is responsible for overseeing the local church, but he may also represent the Vatican at a state occasion, such as the inauguration of a president.

The Vatican requires that its nuncios be accorded the rank of dean of the diplomatic corps, no matter how long they have served in a country. But some countries object to this, so the Vatican has gotten around its own rule by creating a rank known as pro-nuncio in those countries.

Another type of representative is an internuncio, who is a diplomat of ministerial rank.

Most Vatican diplomats are Italian priests. One reason is that the diplomatic service never seems to have had much appeal for priests outside Italy, and some who do train for it drop out later because of discouragement with what they consider an outdated training system.

"It's all too juridical, and the human relations aspect that should form part of the training is simply ignored," said one North European priest who dropped out of the training school in Rome.

Cardinal Leo J. Suenens of Belgium suggested recently that diplomacy was not a proper function of a priest and that the Vatican draw its diplomats from the ranks of qualified Roman Catholic laymen.

However, Pope Paul rejected the various requests for a reform of the diplomatic service in a decree in May. He affirmed the traditional role of his envoys, and ignored Suenens' suggestion for the appointment of laymen.

This Week In The World

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Moonday came on Wednesday this week when the nation turned out to cheer the Apollo 11 astronauts.

Neil A. Armstrong and Air Force Cols. Edwin E. (Buzz) Aldrin Jr. and Michael Collins were hailed from coast to coast — with parades in New York and Chicago and at a celebrity-loaded state dinner given by President Richard M. Nixon in Los Angeles.

The turnout in New York was estimated at four million persons lining curbs along the route that took the astronauts from Kennedy Airport to City Hall, the United Nations and then back to the airport. It was a reception equaled only by those accorded Charles A. Lindbergh in 1927 and Col. John Glenn, America's first man in orbit, in 1962.

More than a million Midwesteners turned out to cheer the moon men in Chicago.

The New York parade accelerated because of the astronauts' heavy schedule, ran somewhat ahead of its planned fast pace, but in Chicago crowds swarmed into the streets and slowed things down to a crawl.

The Nixon dinner had a guest list of 1,440 including 44 state governors, the Supreme Court, all of the cabinet except Atty. Gen. John H. Mitchell, 50 astronauts and diplomats from more than 90 countries.

Around The World, Around The Clock:

BELFAST — Northern Ireland — British troops moved into Londonderry, at least temporarily calming the situation there, but spreading violence in other North Irish centers resulted in a number of deaths. One of the dead was a child.

HOLLYWOOD — Film beauty Sharon Tate, pregnant wife of director Roman Polanski and four others were killed in Polanski's rented Bel Air home under mysterious circumstances suggesting ritual murder. Polanski flew home from London for the funeral.

PRAGUE — The Czech government alerted its army and "people's militia" for possible trouble on Aug. 21, first anniversary of the Russian-led Communits invasion of Czechoslovakia.

SAIGON — New Communist attacks ended a seven-week lull in the Vietnamese fighting. Allied forces mounted a strong counteroffensive in retaliation.

WASHINGTON — Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy warned that the tax reductions voted by Congress last week might "force retrenchment in important domestic programs" and make inflation worse.

JERUSALEM — Artillery dueled across the Suez Canal and Israeli jets pounded Egyptian and Jordanian gun positions in another flareup of the Mideastern border war. Early in the week, Israeli jets shattered sections of Jordan's Ghor irrigation canal.

MOSCOW — Russian and Red China reported another clash in their simmering border conflict, each side charging the other started shooting. Both sides said the clash in Central Asia caused casualties.

Probe Prompts More Napa State Staffers

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Reagan administration has said that staffing has been increased in the Napa State Hospital children's ward where violence and homosexuality had been reported.

But "a serious shortage of ward level personnel" still exists at Sonoma State Hospital, acting director George A. Butler told the California State Employees Association (CSEA) in a letter released yesterday.

State Mental Hygiene Director James V. Lowry ordered Napa director Robert J. Spratt to reduce the patient load and increase the number of staff members after an investigation into the reports of violence.

The investigation and the order came after three Democratic legislators July 28 released a letter written by a parent of a 14-year-old patient at the hospital. The parent said the boy had been raped homosexually by other boys and was beaten unconscious.

The Mental Hygiene Department today said that the nursing staff on the ward had been increased by 19 to a total of 127.

The number of patients had been ordered reduced by today from 180 to 167, "the rated bed capacity," but has so far been cut only to 172. The rest of the cuts were expected by Aug. 25.

Children with behavior problems referred by juvenile courts are now being screened by local authorities rather than being sent directly to the hospital, a department spokesman said.

Butler replied to grievances filed last month by hospital employees.

"I concur that there exists a serious shortage of ward level personnel which at times results in inadequate personal attention to patients which in turn is frustrating to employees attempting to provide optimum patient care," he told the CSEA.

He said that while the staff-patient ratio was at "an all-time high" the patient population had changed as less seriously ill persons departed and those entering were "generally more handicapped requiring a much higher level of care and attention."

Butler said, "There is less flexibility and mobility of ward level staff to care for emergency staff shortages because of increasing demands in all areas of the hospital."

But he also said the hospital population will probably drop by 250-300 in the next year while the nursing staff remains the same, and other employees increase.

He also cited a "severe shortage of support personnel at Sonoma," listing shortages in "maintenance, janitorial services, food services and laundry services."

"Unfavorable publicity directed toward the hospital has had an adverse effect on employee morale," Butler told the CSEA.

Whole publicity generally stems from persons who want to improve the hospital, he said, it can also affect "the morale of those who read into such attacks personal criticism of their efforts to care for patients."

Hearing On Probation Is Postponed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A hearing into possible probation violation by Mrs. Gail Woodford Lavery of Strawberry, convicted three years ago for involuntary manslaughter of her husband, was postponed yesterday for a week.

Superior Court Judge Francis McCarty said he planned to have Mrs. Lavery examined by a court-appointed psychiatrist. She was sent to jail Tuesday on a bench warrant after her psychiatrist reported to probation authorities she may have "homicidal tendencies."

McCarty said after examination she may be sent to the women's prison at Corona for three months of intensive observation.

Gregory Stout, her attorney, told the court he intended to have her examined by two San Francisco psychiatrists.

Finns Binge On Medi-Beer

HELSINKI (UPI) — The Finns' consumption of alcohol jumped 50 per cent during the first three months of 1969 because of legalization of the sale of medium strength beer by cafes and grocery stores. The Bureau of Statistics estimated that Finns now spend about 7 per cent of their income on alcoholic beverages.

Model Firm Profits From Space Boom

VENICE (UPI) — If you've ever yearned for a close-up look at an Apollo space ship, all it takes is a trip to the hobby store.

Model kits have been commonplace for years but the current interest in space exploration is giving the interplanetary replicas a surge, according to one of the manufacturers, Revell.

When the National Space and Aeronautics Administration comes out with a new space design, the company is only a few steps behind.

"We're very proud of our models," president Lewis H. Glaser said as he showed off some of the company products. He's especially fond of a model of the Apollo space craft that has many moving parts and stands nearly four feet high.

Glaser explained that his company works "as closely as possible" with the government to reproduce the space vehicles.

"We work from photographs and any plans available for public inspection," he said. "NASA is very cooperative within the framework of security regulations."

The firm stands between $50,000 and $100,000 on the master mold for each model.

Although he anticipates a total sales volume of more than $15,000,000 this year from a wide variety of kits, Glaser noted that his first space sets several years ago were not successful.

"It wasn't until we put a Mercury capsule like the one used by John Glenn into production that our company really began to take off in the space field. People identified with Glenn very strongly."

When the Russians proved uncooperative, Glaser sent a team to Expo 67 to photograph the ship on display at Montreal.

The first canal joining the Mediterranean with the Red Sea was dug nearly 4,000 years ago. The 53-mile-long passage connected the Great Bitter Lake, then head of the Gulf of Suez, with the Nile River Delta of Zagazig. From Zagazig, the Nile linked the channel to the Mediterranean.

The Voice Is Familiar

It's Made Paul Frees Rich Man

By GIL PEARSON

Paul Frees, who commutes between his home in Marin and his work in Hollywood, believes he is the highest salaried person in the United States.

There is general agreement in the business that he is the world's top voice mimic.

And if he were writing this story, he might well begin it by promising you "a tale ... well-calculated ... to keep you in S-U-S-P-E-N-S-E!"

THAT FAMILIAR line, heard week after week years ago in the deep, measured and resonant Frees tones, will jog the memory of many a radio-fan grandparent.

Early-day television-enthusiast parents will recall with equal pleasure the Frees voicing of the somber and shaky speech of the wealthy and aged John Beresford Tipton once a week as he directed his secretary "Mike" to present a fat and juicy check to some deserving person as depicted on "The Millionaire."

And these days, the youngsters and other generations alike hear Paul Frees daily doing a diversity of voices in hundreds of movies, commercials and animated cartoons for television and the screen.

"I HAVE BECOME a Marinite for keeps," Frees said the other day, using his own natural voice during an interview in his brand new cliff-hanging home in Tiburon. "I look forward to a happy life in this happiest area I have ever known."

Frees says he "fell in love with this place" five years ago while visiting his life-long friend, Marin County Sheriff Louis Mountanos.

As our probing into the life of this Hollywood master of voice projection progressed, there emerged an impression that here at hand we had a man whose overwhelming interest in life rests on what he can contribute artistically.

He has enjoyed staggering successes award-wise and money-wise in acting, directing, producing, writing, painting, announcing, cartooning, and of course voicing for all sound media. He does not spend time discussing other matters such as hunting, fishing, sailing, current events, women or travel.

In a word he is a show-business practitioner from A to Z.

AT AGE 49 Paul Frees finds that the demand for his voice is so great that he can afford to reverse the usual business week of five days work and two days off to two days at the studios and five days rest in Marin.

He averages voicing 1,500 TV commercials a year. How does this work out in salary?

Let's look at it:

AN AVERAGE national TV program commercial will pay in residuals (repeats) from $3,000 to $5,000 per year. Frees has done as many as 30 different Pillsbury commercials in a two-hour recording session with each commercial averaging $4,000. Multiplied by 30 this works out to $120,000 for this session, or $60,000 an hour.

His annual income is over a million dollars, which, however, he spreads into the future for tax purposes.

At the present time Frees' voice is heard on more than 20 different animated TV shows which are beamed towards young children. He dubbed in the voices of the Beatles for the Beatles animation series.

"I AM BACHING today," he advised us while pouring some very dark coffee, "so this stuff probably has plenty of hair on it."

If it astonishes you that so moneyed a personage is not surrounded by cooks and valets, you should be told that Paul Frees went through that routine long ago in his $250,000 Hollywood digs —Rolls Royce and all. He sold out to move north.

He now keeps only an apartment in Los Angeles, but does have the use of a Rolls while hopping from one studio to another.

"IT HAS A couch in the back, a bar and icebox, and there are telephones in front and rear," says Paul.

His commercials include such products and brands as Kleenex, Del Monte, Nestles (he's the little chocolate man), Pillsbury (he's the little dough boy who gets his tummy poked), Opel Kadet, and Johnson's Raid (he's voice for the bugs "It's Raidddd!").

"What about your movie acting?" we pressed.

"THESE DAYS I can't afford to be an actor. I make more in an hour than a movie or TV star makes in a week. I recently turned down a quarter of a million to do animal animations for the Doctor Dolittle movie in the South Seas with Rex Harrison."

"If I should just drop all my commercial jobs for 13 weeks or so, they would be snapped by

ON THE SUNDECK of his cliff-hanging Tiburon home, Paul Frees enjoys the view of water, boats, Angel Island and San Francisco beyond. Such has been Frees' success as a voice mimic for television commercials and cartoons and for movies that he can now spend five days a week relaxing in his Marin County home and only two days at his work in Hollywood. other voice men," he said.

"However," he continued, "I am able to do voice dubbing for the movies. For instance, Humphrey Bogart preferred to sail on his boat rather than hang around after picture-taking to correct any lines he flubbed. So I would imitate his voice over those spots."

PAUL FREES is a heavy-set man and he is calm and collected, but his neck turned red when we asked him if the name of one of his children's TV shows is spelled as one or two words.

He roared, "Bullwinkle is one word! You're the only one in the country who doesn't know that show!" But he cooled off at once and told me that he is the voice for Boris Badenov (the bad guy).

"Good casting, there," we ventured. And both of us laughed.

He says, "I work in all media and get from $3,000 to $5,000 a painting. Sid Caesar and Frank Sinatra have bought some pieces."

It all began for Paul in Chicago when he left school at age 14 to go into vaudeville as a song and dance man.

HIS BOYHOOD practice of mimicking the various dialects of Polish, Italian, German and other ethnic groups living in the Windy City turned out to be the greatest of assets for a person with inborn showman talents.

He suffered through all the stresses and strains common to those who seek stardom in Hollywood and over the airwaves. As an actor he played in some 200 films with practically all the well-knowns. He composed music. He wrote scripts. He played as many as a half dozen characters in a single play, all with different voices.

He has dubbed in the English translations for over 800 foreign films.

HIS 6-YEAR-old daughter is named Sabrina Sara and his 16-year-old son Fred William has quit school and entered show business.

As Paul Frees posed for our camera to catch him on his sundeck overlooking his personal view of his beloved Marin we felt admiration for one man who has made his dreams come true.

FROM VAUDEVILLE, in which he was a song and dance man, Paul Frees graduated up the show business ladder to radio. Here he is seen as an announcer for a Chicago station a good many years ago. From there Frees went on to great success in acting and still greater as a voice in radio and television commercials and cartoons.

901 FOURTH STREET SAN RAFAEL

20-Member Marin Club Enjoys Favorite Game In Perfect Setting

By DON KEOWN

The dartboard, ales and beers, fish and chips, and Cornish pasties are the attractions that draw most of the regular patrons to Don Johnson's London Arms pub on San Anselmo's Redhill Avenue.

All stimulate a lively kind of conviviality.

But for one group of 20 "regulars" who show up every Tuesday night, there is a quieter attraction and kind of comraderie.

THEY MAKE UP the membership of the Marin Chess Club, formerly the Mill Valley Chess Club.

From 8 p.m. to midnight every Tuesday, they assemble in the quiet of the tavern's banquet room, segregated from the noisier drinkers, diners and dart throwers in the pub's bar room, and indulge in the very serious business of their favorite competitive game.

The club dates back to 1962 when it was founded by L. A. Post of Mill Valley, an electrician with some 35 years of chess-playing experience and with a current rating as a "High A" player.

UNDER POST'S leadership the club met and flourished in Mill Valley for a number of years. Then came the move to San Anselmo and the change in name.

The membership at present is predominantly male. In fact the roster at this time lists but one woman, Ruth Fitzgerald, one of the club's better players with an expert rating.

"Sometimes women visit and play for an evening," says Ralph Fifer, the club president. "But unfortunately, chess seems to be a game women don't take to very much. We'd like to see more women in our club."

VISITORS ARE permitted to attend and play as guests three times. After that, they have to join if they want to continue to enjoy the chess evenings.

The annual dues are $13, of which $8 goes to the United States Chess Federation with which the Marin club is affiliated.

Persons already belonging to the national federation can join the local affiliate for $5.

AT PRESENT the club boasts two masters — Roy Hoppe and Ken Fitzgerald — and three experts, attesting to the high caliber of play at those Tuesday night gatherings.

Using Stanton-design standard tournament pieces fashioned from painted wood and made in France, the Marin Chess Club members take their games most seriously. A "tournament game" may last from three to four hours. A "skittles" or "for fun" game might run for anywhere from a half hour to two hours.

The so-called "rapid transit game" terminates after five minutes.

CHESS, SAYS Fifer, is a very ancient game that has proven its worth by surviving through the centuries. In the hospitable atmosphere of the London Arms with its Old World paneling and leaded windows the Marin exponents of the game find themselves very much at home, he adds.

"It's a perfect setting for chess," he says.

If the chess players indulge in spirits at all, their drinks are likely to be beer or ale. But more often the beverages before them are coffee and soft drinks.

DURING ITS more than eight years of existence, the club has sponsored three major United States Chess Federation tournaments, the last having been held in January of 1966 in Mill Valley with seven masters in attendance.

The club has also had as its guest a number of chess notables, the most recent being David Glohm, current California state champion.

President Fifer extends an open invitation to Marin chess enthusiasts to appear at the London Arms on a Tuesday and enjoy the competition and conviviality.

"WE HAVE enough club-owned equipment to handle 20 players," he says. "After that, the players have to bring their own."

And what is it that the score of members of the Marin Chess Club ranging in ages from the teens to the 70s find so appealing about the game?

"Chess," answers Fifer, "is an imitation of life."

Marin families enjoy the highest average incomes of any county in all 13 Western States.

MARIN CLEANERS Phone 454-4792 — Member N.I.D. of San Rafael, Bel Aire & Fairfax

"Why Didn't Somebody Tell Me?"

You are not expected to be a technical expert on fabrics and colors. Someone should have told you as it is. Should a garment be drycleaned or wetcleaned? Will the colors run? Will the fabric shrink or stretch? Is it a synthetic or natural fiber? At what heat should it be finished?

Most housewives know how natural fibers act, but new synthetics and blends are difficult to distinguish. The manufacturer often takes special care to make a natural fiber. He can fool experts. For that reason manufacturers should label any special servicing requirements. If the fabric requires special handling the label should read "DRYCLEAN ONLY" or "DO NOT DRYCLEAN" or "USE A COOL IRON." The retailer, too, should point out to you any special servicing needs.

It is unfair for complaints on non-serviceable fabrics to be heaped on the cleaner or retailer. Investigate before you make a purchase of a garment that does not have cleaning instructions. Trade only with stores selling reputable products. They will tell you "as it is."

The Competitive Swim In Marin

More Than 500 Youngsters Represent The Six Teams

Just before World War II, Marin County's Beth Kaufman and her teen-age daughter, Rose, were commuting by ferryboat and bus to San Francisco to go swimming at the famed old Crystal Plunge.

Rose, barely in her teens, was competing against girls of college age, and this didn't make sense to Mrs. Kaufman. How much better it would be if girls could swim against girls of their own age.

With the encouragement of coach Charley Sava, sportscaster-swim enthusiast Ernie Smith, and such swimmers as then Olympic champion-to-be Ann Curtis Cuneo (now owner of a pool and swim club in Marin), Mrs. Kaufman took her idea to the national Amateur Athletic Union.

SHE WENT TO 18 different AAU conventions to plead her case. They said repeatedly, "it won't work."

Finally, after a number of disappointments and rebuffs over the years, Mrs. Kaufman was told by the women's AAU committee: "You work out all the rules, and maybe we'll try it."

She did, and they tried it.

Mrs. Kaufman, now a spry 74-year-old who still swims an hour a day near the Greenbrae apartment she shares with her husband, Jack, is proud to say that "not a single one of my rules has been changed since then."

THUS, AGE-GROUP swimming was born in the United States, and this program is largely credited with the tremendous number of medals U.S. swimmers have won in the recent Olympic Games. Because of her work in this field, Mrs. Kaufman has been elected a member of the Swimming Hall of Fame in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

From that inauspicious beginning more than 20 years ago, age-group swimming has grown to the point where hundreds of thousands of youngsters from 6 to 17 now compete locally and nationally in AAU-sanctioned meets. In the Pacific Association there are nearly 9,000 registered in swimming, and more than 500 of them are in Marin County.

Marin County now has six major organized AAU swimming teams. In alphabetical order, they are:

DOLPHINS OF Marin, Hamilton Field Voodoos, Marin Swim Club, Novato Aquanauts, San Rafael Swim Club and the Tamalpais Swim Club. In addition, there are a number of smaller swimming teams that compete in summer leagues not sanctioned by the AAU.

No one swim club dominates the Marin County overall swimming picture. Most of the clubs have a number of outstanding swimmers in most age groups and classes; and each is actively seeking new members in all age groups.

Here's a rundown on the Marin County swim teams:

DOLPHINS OF MARIN — Coached by Art Octavia, who works with the San Francisco Park and Recreation Dept. No actual president now in office; practice sessions are held at Sir Francis Drake High School; practice ranges from one to three hours daily. Organized last year, and has a membership of 30. Mailing address is 1473 11th Avenue, San Francisco.

HAMILTON FIELD VOODOOS — Coached by Beth Musser, a former member of the famous Crystal Plunge team in San Francisco and owner of a private swim school in Novato. President is John Ferris, an Air Force officer; membership open only to dependents of active duty, retired, or deceased military personnel, or dependents of civilian personnel affiliated with Hamilton Air Force Base. Organized in 1964, and membership is now 80. Mailing address is Capt. John Ferris, Post Office Drawer 9, Hamilton Air Force Base, 94934.

MARIN SWIM CLUB — Coached by Galen Hopkins of Sacramento (he commutes six days a week from Sacramento to Larkspur); he is also chief psychologist for three high schools in Sacramento and formerly with the Del Norte Swim Club of Sacramento; assistant coach is Dick Wader of Corte Madera. President is Carney Campion, general manager of the Redwood Empire Association; practice sessions are held at Redwood High School pool, Ann Curtis Swim Club, and the 50-meter pool at Petaluma. Practice each week ranges from one hour for the young novices to three or four hours each day for seniors and advanced A swimmers. Organized in 1966 when the Marin Pirates and Ann Curtis Swim Club merged. Membership is now 150. Mailing address is care of Mrs. D. L. Hughes, Box 271, Corte Madera, 94925.

NOVATO AQUANAUTS — Coached by Rock Morgan, a former top Midwestern swimmer. President is Dr. Robert Patocchi; practice sessions are held at the city-owned pool at Novato High School, and practices are from one hour per day up. Organized in 1965, and membership is now approximately 200. Mailing address is care of Edward Adams, Novato Park and Recreation Department, City Hall, Novato.

SAN RAFAEL SWIM CLUB — Coached by Don Swartz, on a full-time basis; formerly with the Ladera Oaks Aquatic Club of Menlo Park, and the Davis Aquadarts; assistant coaches are Herm Kamai and Tom Zunino. President is Dan Kamler, a San Francisco businessman; practice sessions are held at the San Rafael High School pool, Terra Linda High School pool, and at the aforementioned Petaluma 50-meter pool; practice also ranges from one hour per week to three or four hours per day. Organized in 1960, and membership is now 75, plus 40 novices. Mailing address is care of Don Swartz, Post Office Box 865, San Rafael, 94901.

TAMALPAIS SWIM CLUB — Coached by Bob Casci, a teacher by profession (head of science department at Sacred Heart in San Francisco, but moves to Marin Catholic shortly). President is Carl Massey, an industrial relations officer; practice sessions are scheduled at the Tamalpais High School pool, and are similar in hours to the other clubs. Organized in 1960 by Casci, and membership is approximately 80 to 90 swimmers. Mailing address is care of Bob Casci, 213 Belvedere Drive, Mill Valley.

clubs organized so that the youngsters could swim in their residential areas. It would put more responsibility on the children to get to the pool, minimize transportation problems and just be handier in general.

THE MARIN County AAU swimming program has developed a number of swimmers who have qualified for several national championship competitions. Among the outstanding ones are Vicki Bitgood, Tamalpais Swim Club, in the top 10 nationally in the 100 and 200-yard breaststroke; Robin Bachrach, Dolphins of Marin, in the 100-yard butterfly; Cookie Arrighi, Marin Swim Club, 200-yard backstroke; Leslie Bryans, San Rafael Swim Club (she just moved this summer to the Peninsula), 200-yard breaststroke; and others.

Marin County has a number of swimmers in the national outdoors championships now under way at Louisville, Ky. and will be represented as well next week in the National Junior Olympics at San Diego.

"Marin County AAU swimming is really just beginning to get started," says San Rafael Swim Club coach, 23-year-old Don Swartz. "Each year more and more youngsters are becoming aware of the AAU swim program in the county — more parents are finding out about our clubs and what we have to offer the child from 6 to 17 in the way of athletic achievement, discipline and fun.

"AND ANOTHER important factor voiced by some parents — narcotics and competitive swimming don't mix. You can't take drugs and expect to do well in swimming."

"Our big problem in the county," added Swartz, "is the lack of facilities, the lack of sufficient time for the swimmers in the water. A hard-working Marin County committee is now laying the ground work for an all-around sports complex, which would include a 50-meter swimming pool.

"Now, to get ready for national events in a 50-meter pool, our best swimmers have to travel all the way to Petaluma to practice. Marin County should have a 50-meter pool of its own."

"OUR OWN San Rafael swim practices this summer are from 7 to 8:30 a.m. and from 5 to 7 p.m.," said Swartz. "The pools we and other clubs use are public pools, and not available in normal daytime hours. Thus, our youngsters have to be in the pool at the crack of dawn, or during the dinner hours. But it does your heart good to see the devotion of the swimmers, to see the enthusiasm they have at those early hours (how many adults will jump into an outdoor pool at 7 a.m., and then proceed to swim several miles and do this day-in-and-day-out the year round?)"

Practice sessions are held 10 or more months out of the year, rain or shine, the coach adds. "And even in a driving rain, the kids are in the pool working hard."

Swartz' day is a long one — from the time he gets up at 6:15 a.m. to the morning practice to the time he gets through after the evening practice. Then a quick dinner, and he's off to a Petaluma swim session, or to a meeting, or to do some paper work.

THEN, ON almost every weekend, it's off to a swim meet.

coach is usually a seven-days-a-week, day-and-night project," says Swartz. "It's hectic and not particularly well-paid, but it is highly rewarding. It's the exact opposite of a 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. job.

"As for a future as a swimming coach, it's pretty well tied up with other teaching. Usually the coach is also a school teacher who finishes his school routine at 3 p.m. and is right there at the scene of the practice sessions. Commuting is too time-consuming.

"I believe there are only about 18 to 20 full-time swim coaches in the nation, and most of these own their own swim clubs and pools."

"AS FOR THE level of Marin County AAU swimming," Swartz continues, "it's getting better all the time, and this is due to three principal things — the sincere dedication of all the coaches and assistant coaches, the tremendous enthusiasm the youngsters show in their efforts to improve, and the sacrifices and time of the parents.

"This year, the county had five entrants in the indoor nationals, more than we ever had before. And the times of many other swimmers are getting very, very close to the national qualifying standards. Many of the clubs also have swimmers who are ranked in the top five age-group clockings in the nation."

Swartz adds: "We always have to be on the lookout for new swimmers, particularly the younger ones — 6, 7, 8 years old; we have to let the general public know that we have this AAU swimming program available; we have to make our clubs well-known; we have to work hard on developing novice programs for those without any great experience but with potential, we have to constructively work with the high schools."

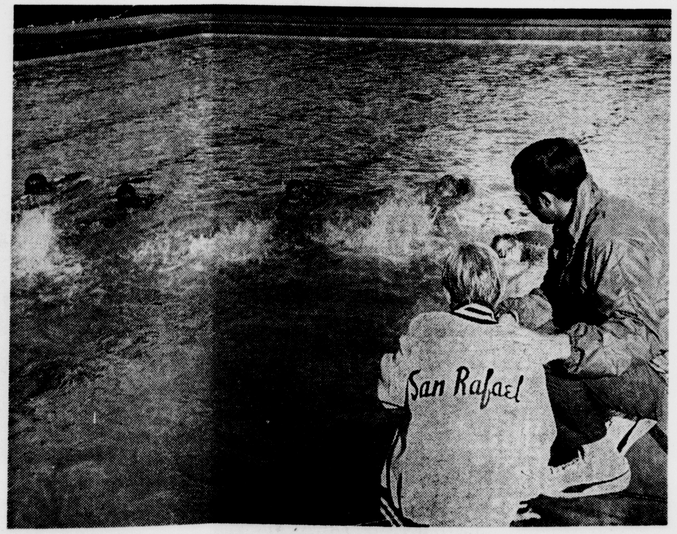
He says it takes three years at least to develop a good swimmer, and the youngsters should start early.

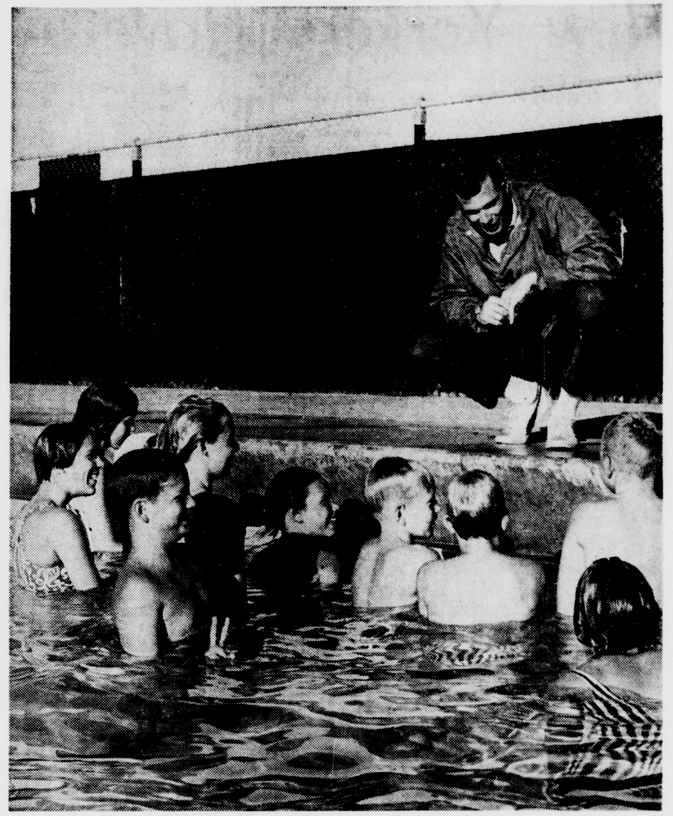
"If anyone is interested in finding out more about any of the swim programs," he recommends they contact the coach or president of the swim club nearest their home.

In the 1928 Olympic Games at Amsterdam, and the 1932 Games at Los Angeles, Marin County had an outstanding swimmer competing — young Eleanor Garatti of San Rafael, now a resident of San Francisco.

After a group of San Rafael citizens had raised enough money to send Miss Garatti to the national trials, she went on to win two gold medals as a member of the 400-meter relay team both years, plus a silver medal in the 1928 100-meter freestyle, and a bronze medal in the same event in 1932. She was given a parade down Fourth Street in San Rafael upon her return.

Now, 40 years later, more than 500 Marin County youngsters practice virtually the year around, many with the hope that someday they might represent the county and the nation in future Olympic competition.





COACH DON SWARTZ reviews with some of his young San Rafael Swim Club swimmers, while they are still in the pool, some of the accomplishments and the mistakes of a practice session. The swimmers' practice time may range from an hour a week to three or four hours a day, and is divided among three pools.

New Yorkers Have A New Crossroads

The Travel Pages

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

New Yorkers used to brag that 42nd Street and Broadway "is the crossroads of the world."

If you stood there long enough, they claimed, eventually you would see someone you know pass by.

But the scene has shifted in recent years.

The real crossroads now lie crosstown near the East River in the six-block area where the United Nations has its world headquarters.

Stand on any of its streets and it is like watching a parade of all the peoples of the world. There are Africans in dashikis, Asians in robes, Arabs in turbans and Europeans and others in business suits and miniskirts.

SOME ARE diplomats, officials or employees of the United Nations complex that covers some 18 acres between First Avenue and the East River from 42nd to 48th streets.

But many are visitors from every continent come to see where diplomats of more than 120 countries meet to discuss and seek solutions to the problems of the world.

Since its Visitors Service began in 1952, more than 16 million people have taken guided tours through the buildings and gardens.

THERE ARE four buildings — the Secretariat Building, the Conference Building, the General Assembly and Auditorium Building and the library. The library and the 39-story, glass-sided Secretariat, housing U. N. Secretary General U Thant's offices and the organization's working staff, are closed to the general public.

Gifts from other nations are scattered through the buildings and gardens.

DIRECTLY IN front of the entrance is a glass-topped case containing a facsimile of the U. N. charter opened at the pages bearing the signatures of the representatives of the United States, Britain and Soviet Union.

Tours are conducted by girl guides recruited from 45 countries for their personality, beauty and linguistic ability. All must have a college degree or equivalent.

About 90 per cent of the tours are conducted in the English language. But tours in other languages can be arranged in advance — the guides speak a total of 33 tongues. Special tours also can be booked for groups of more than 15 persons and for the blind, the deaf and other physically handicapped.

WRITE THE U.N. Group Program Unit.

Most of the girl guides wear neat uniforms, but are encouraged to wear the exotic clothing of their homelands.

Typical of the guides are Maya Mansukahani, 24, of Bombay, India, and Jacqueline Hanley, also 24, born in Kenya and raised in Ireland.

The black-haired, brown-eyed Miss Mansukahani wears a flowing sari and sandals and has a black caste mark on her forehead. Miss Hanley, a brownette with hazel eyes, wears a miniskirted official uniform.

BOTH SPEAK excellent English, plus other languages.

The tour, which takes about one hour, includes visits to the General Assembly, the Security Council and the economic and social committee halls. The guides provide an expert explanation of the workings of the United Nations and its committees as well as descriptions of the buildings, furnishings and works of art donated by member countries.

Miss Hanley and Miss Mansukahani says visitors, particularly Americans, often ask them to point out the desk in the General Assembly where former Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev pounded with his shoe. But the desk is no longer there—most of the old furnishings have been replaced since then.

TOURS OPERATE daily from 9 a.m. to 4:45 p.m., except on such holidays as Christmas and New Year's Day. Adults pay $1.25 while children, students and servicemen pay 50 cents.

Facilities open to the general public include a cafeteria and souvenir, book and gift shops on the lower level of the General Assembly Building. There also is a U.N. postoffice.

U.N. headquarters is easily accessible by public bus and subway service (fare 20 cents) from most parts of the city. Sightseeing companies also include a stop there on their tours.

AN AERIAL VIEW of New York City's skyscrapers finds the impressive buildings of the United Nations in the foreground. The 39-story, glass-sided Secretariat Building in the center houses the staff of the U.N.'s general secretary and other personnel of the world organization and is closed to the public. But the other buildings are popular attractions for tourists visiting New York. (American Airlines photo)

THE LUSH GREEN promise of the fertile land of Costa Rica caused many of the Spanish conquistadores to forget their lust for gold and to settle down to farming. The scene here is the quiet inlet of Mato de Limon in Puntarenas on the Pacific Coast, almost unchanged since this part of the New World was discovered nearly 500 years ago.

Democratic Little Costa Rica Is The Paris Of The New World

By MAXINE ATWATER

Costa Rica's modern capital city, San Jose, is just like home — if home is Paris.

Picture a mountain city, ringed by blue volcanoes, with shady parks, open-air cafes, pretty girls, and a National Theater that is a copy in miniature of the ornate Paris Opera House.

At 5 o'clock, when offices close for the day, international girl-watchers order an aperitif at a sidewalk cafe and settle down to the pleasant business of selecting their individual choices for Miss Costa Rica.

COSTA RICANS, considered by many to be Central America's most beautiful people, are mostly of pure Spanish blood, descendants of the conquistadores.

When the Spaniards came to this little country — nestled between Panama and Nicaragua — just after Columbus' fourth voyage, they were on their favorite quest: for gold. They found little or no gold, but they did discover a land fabulously rich in agricultural promise. For many, it was more than sufficient and they dug in to stay.

The richness that attracted and held the Spaniards is still to be seen when you approach this narrow land caught between the Pacific and Atlantic oceans: dark-colored earth, bright green farmlands, rushing rivers.

THE COUNTRY, only twice the size of Massachusetts, is 70 per cent plateau, that is devoted to cultivating coffee, vegetables, bananas, cocoa and sugar. A more recent addition to the economy is a growing cattle industry.

Seeing these rich crop lands is only part of the reason for visiting Costa Rica, though.

San Jose, the mountain-wrapped capital, is one of the liveliest and loveliest of Latin American cities. Here, you share the pleasures of the sparkling downtown area and get to know the people, who are hard-working, yet always seem to have time to be friendly to visitors, especially North Americans.

WHILE PEOPLE-watching and simply catching the mood of this unique country — long a model democracy — are a big part of any visit, there are numerous other worthwhile sights and activities.

Generally, visitors have tours worked out that are tailored to their personal interests. In San Jose, you have your choice of a number of excellent hotels, and the restaurants offer a variety of international cuisines. In some ways, the capital is more continental than some of the cities in Europe.

A drive around San Jose provides a contrast of old and new, with views of several fine examples of Costa Rican architecture. The new Department of Justice epitomizes the modern style and artfully blends dozens of varieties of marble, including a smokey blue-gray stone that most people have never seen.

THE NATIONAL Theater is a beautiful structure in the style of the French Renaissance period. It was built in 1898 by a group of coffee plantation owners who wanted to bring theater to San Jose, in an elegant style.

The jewel-box building contains ornate galleries, a regal mirrored salon, stately stairways, and polished parquet floors of some 200 varieties of wood. It could stand equally as well in Paris as in San Jose except for one charming detail: in France the ceiling paintings would be of nymphs and flowers, while here they are gaily-colored scenes of girls picking coffee beans and men carrying the beans to market.

ANOTHER EXAMPLE of Costa Rica's past is the small, but excellent National Museum once a colonial fortress but now a showcase for pre-Columbian gold jewelry, rare pottery and other Indian artifacts.

Driving outside San Jose, you take one of the hemisphere's most scenic drives, first to 11,000-foot Irazu Volcano, then to the fertile valley below where the Spaniards first landed in the 1500s.

The road to the volcano passes through the old capital, Cartago, then winds through fields of vegetables, fences of cypress trees, and rows of wild lilies.

THE CLIMB to Irazu is breath-taking as first you approach, then pass through, and finally rise above puffs of white clouds that curl out of the blue valleys. At each turn you rise higher above the clouds until you have the illusion of flying on top of the world.

Just before reaching Irazu's peak, the terrain changes abruptly from lush green to grey volcanic rock and ash. A quarter-mile walk from the end of the highway takes you to the crest of the volcano where you look down into two craters, one filled with water and the other usually emitting blasts of steam.

After the descent, the tour continues on to Orosi Valley for a look at the early Spanish mission there and its museum of Colonial artifacts. It is also a good time to stop for lunch, usually at the riverside Motel Rio, for a delicious meal of fresh-caught river fish.

Seated on the terrace, not more than 20 feet from the river used by the Spanish explorers 500 years earlier, you gain an even better understanding of why many of the conquistadores decided to stay on in Costa Rica rather than continue their search for the very elusive gold of the new world.

The Decline Of Manliness— Are The Schools To Blame?

By DON KEOWN

THE FEMINIZED MALE by Patricia Sexton; Random House, 240 pages, $6.95.

It's a man's world, they say. And certainly the males do dominate society's power structure, pretty much excluding the females.

But women, says Patricia Sexton in her "The Feminized Male," reap a terrible revenge through the two institutions to which they have been relegated — the home and the school.

The New York University professor of sociology and education devotes most of her provocative book to schools that she labels "dehumanizing and unmanly places" where "boys who succeed . . . often do so by grossly violating many codes of honor and the norms of boy culture."

"Though run at the top by men, schools are essentially feminine institutions," she says, run with curricula, teaching methods and rules of conduct developed and enforced by women and the feminized men who work with them.

"I have harbored for many years the strong suspicion that boys who are real boys — masculine types — have a tougher time in school than those who look and act more like girls," she writes. "I have felt that the school makes sissies out of many boys and feminizes many more by insisting that they act like girls.

"The more a boy gives in to what the school wants, the more feminized he will become."

Schools and child-rearing have not mattered enough or paid sufficiently, she says, to attract our strongest males. And, she continues, "we need tough, courageous men — who are also men of reason, tolerance, learning and goodwill. . . ."

Mrs. Sexton is not one of those educators who look down their noses at sports. The coach, she says, is often the only really masculine influence available to boys in a school. "If sports are replaced by greater stress on sedentary and passive academic work, the masculine qualities of our males, already weakened, may collapse," she warns. Instead, she would make the team sports available to all boys rather than only to natural athletes.

The schools and society, Mrs. Sexton insists, would do better if they attempted to direct, rather than suppress, the natural male aggression in boys.

"It is far better, for both men and women, to be strong rather than weak and physically assertive rather than inert," she declares. "A society without a lot of physical strength and daring may risk serious trouble."

And: "If we block natural outlets of aggression, we may turn it inward. . . . We have much to overcome and destroy — injustice, inequality, poverty, disease, death, hatred, unhappiness, boredom and apathy, floods and famine, illiteracy, anomie, unrewarding work, abuses of power, obsolete social institutions, the imminence of nuclear war. With so many enemies, we need a great deal of fighting spirit. It would seem wisest, both inside and outside our schools, to permit as much aggression as possible, but to direct it away from street fights and into combat with the real enemies of man."

The professor has a number of concrete suggestions for making our schools more harmonious to the "natural drive of boys to be boys." She urges, too, that as we masculinize the schools, we also feminize the power structure of society — "balancing out the sexes so they don't corrode any one spot where they concentrate."

Mrs. Sexton sometimes seems to overstate and oversimplify. She ignores the probability that youthful resentment of the feminization she decries is but one phase of a broader rebellion on the part of our young men. Gender isn't the only quality of their individualism that youths feel to be threatened by the pressures of the establishment. She never convincingly differentiates between boys who fail in school and society as misfits and troublemakers because of their masculinity, and those who flaunt their defiance with long hair and exotic clothing, practices she attributes to their acceptance of feminization.

Largely disregarded is a considerable body of evidence that aggression, once released, is not so easily channeled or directed. And whereas she urges the substitution for the feminized male-feminized female situation of today a masculine male-more masculinized female arrangement, there is always the danger the pendulum there might swing too far. The natural order of masculinized males and feminized females might be a wiser answer to the problem.

Nevertheless, Professor Sexton has expounded an interesting and serious thesis deserving thoughtful consideration. She makes a very strong case for her contention that we have experienced a decline in manliness because boys in their homes and in their schools have been placed under feminine or feminized thumbs that suppress their natural instincts and their proper growth.

The greatest value from our costly space explorations may yet prove to be the rise of the astronauts as a new breed of masculine heroes with whom small boys may identify.

DIET BOOKS are very big these days with at least two having appeared high on the 1968-69 best-seller lists.

A new one that probably will not achieve that lofty status is "The Lazy Lady's Easy Diet" (Parker, $6.95), written by Sidney Petrie, a specialist in the weight-loss field, in collaboration with professional writer Robert B. Stone.

As the title implies, it is aimed principally at the distaff side. And its program revolves around the high protein-low carbohydrate diet that has also been expounded in other recent books.

To that company, it is a sound, helpful addition for those fighting the war against calories. One of its big assets is a much more complete caloric table, listing more foods, and breaking them down by types of calories — protein, carbohydrate, fat.

Some weaknesses include its opening assurance that willpower is not a requisite to successful dieting. Nonsense! As anyone who has ever pared off excess poundage and kept it off knows, it takes a tremendous amount of determination. Indeed, Petrie later devoted chapters to "The Psychology of Overeating" and "How to Strengthen Your Determination and Drive to Lose Weight."

Also in his effort to pin the guilt on carbohydrates as the fatteners, Petrie lets the fats off too easily, for they are culprits, too, and fatty meats, etc., can undo the good of giving up the bread and potatoes. Exercise is accorded some attention, but not much.

In the final analysis, the formula for weight loss remains unchanged — the ingestion of fewer calories than you burn up. And the formula for then maintaining the lower weight — a balance between caloric consumption and expenditure.

DOVER HAS reprinted the extended version of Alexander Pope's "The Rape of the Lock," the mock heroic poem that first appeared in 1712 and grew out of an incident in which two prominent families were estranged after Lord Petrie became overly merry and snipped a lock of hair from the head of Mrs. Arabella Fermor. With the five canto version Dover has included the drawings and cover design of Aubrey Beardsley as they appeared in an 1896 edition. The paperbound classic sells for $1.50.

"THE PROMISE," Chaim Potok's second novel, has been selected as its September book by the Literary Guild.

MAJ SJOWALL and PER WAHLOO
Husband-and-wife team from Sweden

Sleuths & Suspense

THE MAN WHO WENT UP IN SMOKE by Maj Sjowall and Per Wahloo; Pantheon, 183 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.

The third book in their Martin Beck series by this Swedish husband-and-wife team to be published in English is their best yet. In fact, it is altogether splendid.

Beck, the Stockholm detective, is torn away from his vacation and assigned to a case with possible international repercussions and requiring a trip to Budapest where a journalist of questionable repute has suddenly vanished.

As always, the Wahloos tell their story in a quiet, understated tone that is most effective. The foreign background is superb. And once again there is as much pleasure in experiencing the actions and reactions of Beck and his colleagues as there is in following the unraveling of the mystery. Undoubtedly, this will prove one of 1969's finest.

The 'Roaring Boy' Of Poetry

VOYAGER: A LIFE OF HART CRANE by John Unterecker; Farrar, Straus and Giroux, 773 pages, $15. Reviewed by Laurel Shapiro.

The man beneath the legend comes vividly to life in this epic biography that was 10 years in the writing and must surely rank as the definitive word on one of America's major poets.

Mindful that " . . . the biographer by his very presence may distort rather than clarify the life he uncovers," Mr. Unterecker (a poet himself) has approached his subject with commendable diffidence and sensitivity.

The sheer mass of material he has sifted through is staggering to think about. Crane, a suicide in 1932 at the age of 32, knew dozens of people who are alive today, and evidently few of the thousands of letters he wrote and received were destroyed. A more comprehensive biography cannot be imagined; the author has evidence to reconstruct what Crane was doing, and thinking (thanks to the frankness and frequency of his letters) for almost every day of his life.

That such exhaustive detailing does not deaden the book testifies to Unterecker's skillful organization and his unusually fresh and readable prose.

The author has overcome the temptation to fit the events of Crane's external life into his poetry, although like most poets, Crane certainly wrote from personal sources that, especially in his work, are incidental to the poems themselves. Unterecker has also refrained from dissecting and judging the poetry, presenting instead Crane's correspondence with the friends to whom he was in the habit of sending the many drafts of his work. The letters back and forth show in detail what he and his contemporaries thought of what he was attempting to do.

The matter of the Greenberg manuscripts which has discredited Crane is clarified.

In a friend's cottage Crane found the poems written by Greenberg, already dead of tuberculosis at 23, and, much struck by their primitive artistry, put together a poem from them, which he was foolishly persuaded (Unterecker does not say by whom) to include in his own volume of collected poems. Crane made no previous attempt to publish the Greenberg collage, and evidently viewed his work on it as a homage to the unknown poet.

At any rate, Unterecker contends the so-called "Greenberg influence" is less important to Crane's body of work than the influences of Eliot, Donne or Herbert, who had the greatest meaning for Crane.

Interest in another artist's work was characteristic of

Reviews Of New Reading

Crane; he would tirelessly promote an artist he believed in, an instance of his instinctive generosity that helps explain why literally dozens of people regarded him as their best friend, in spite of inconveniences, outrages and often in the end, ugliness, the "roaring boy" was almost certain to subject them to.

Crane had an insatiable need of his friends; he never recovered from his position as the only child of an outrageously destructive marriage.

"It's time you realized that for the last eight years my life has been a rather bloody battleground for your's and father's sex life and troubles," he wrote his mother before he was 20. But it was no use, he could never escape; his mother's monstrous need of him haunted him to his death, along with his deep love for her, regardless of his final break with her. He was frequently estranged from his candymaking father, who was incapable of understanding his homosexual poet son, and it was not until a few months before the father's death that they were able to discover the genuine affection they shared.

It is not surprising that Crane suffered from agonizing writing blocks. Tormented by his mother's neuroses and his father's coldness, he was also constantly harassed by lack of money, living perpetually on small loans and handouts, losing and getting jobs.

Yet when a rare windfall —a monthly allowance from his father, Otto Kahn's patronage, his modest inheritance — did make possible the calm he needed to write, he would plunge into an exhaustive social round that often ended in brawls and arrests, and always in the familiar frustration of the poems not yet written. For months at a time he could not write a line; it took five years of this haphazard existence to produce his masterpiece, "The Bridge."

As his biographer shows, it was only when the easing of the Crane family emotional drain on him happened to coincide with a period of relative financial security that he was free to write. The time between these creative intervals lengthened, leading to every-increasing amounts of alcohol and sailors, the "roaring boy" escapades that became legendary before his death.

The Guggenheim fellowship to Mexico served to hurl him on to his suicide. Before the year was out, friends bundled him hurriedly out of the country one step ahead of official expulsion, and he completed his destruction by slipping overboard from the boat that was bringing him home.

But the fascination that Hart Crane exerted on almost everybody shines through all the melodrama. Unterecker has written one of the most hypnotic biographies since Boswell's work on Johnson.

HART CRANE was pictured in about 1930 in this snapshot. John Unterecker has written a biography of the ill-fated poet in his "Voyager, a Life of Hart Crane."

A Journalism Giant Shares His Diary

The New York Times' C. L. Sulzberger, a member of the family clan who control one of the giants of the American press, has penned one of the most significant personal accounts of the days preceding World War II and the years following through 1954.

It is an heroic effort; never boring in detail. He was there when it happened, received by kings, premiers, field commanders and, often as not, personal envoys carrying highly secret papers to and from heads of states.

This volume, the first of an intended two, was put together from the author's personal diaries. He makes much use of the analytical approach.

Scoops he's had, but in this stimulating account, his retelling of history is a nostalgic look back to years that moulded some of history's greatest leaders, uncorked the devastation of Europe and reshaped the thinking of the entire population.

Thanks to Sulzberger's custom of jotting down in diaries frank and colorful summaries of impressions and private conversations, the reader gets to share in 20 years of historical journalism from 1934 to 1954.

There are so many significant tidbits of information it is hard to pinpoint the most rewarding or surprising.

For example, the author's account during his United Press schooling in the mid-1930s of the climb to power of labor giant John L. Lewis is a treasured gem, all the more important since the recent death of the man who tamed a president and humbled big business.

His is a warm look at Dwight D. Eisenhower, the general and president. He relates Ike's days in France following World War II, the general's entry into politics and finally to Eisenhower's nomination in 1952 at the Republican National Convention in Chicago. And Sulzberger was with Ike in a previous year when the general said rather regretfully, "Anybody is a damn fool if he actually seeks to be president."

There are also personal observations of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, John Foster Dulles, Charles de Gaulle, Konrad Adenauer, Gen. George Marshall and Sir Winston Churchill.

What is a sheer joy in a volume of this size — 1,061 pages — is Sulzberger's record of conversations with such characters as Gertrude Stein whom he visited in Paris in 1945, noting "a fat, most amiable old woman who lives in a strange combination of sloppy comfort and a modern art museum with her friend, the cozy, hideous Alice Toklas."

This is a volume which has to be savored at a leisurely pace.

PAPERS FROM THE SPANIARDS

THE CALIFORNIA COAST: Documents from the Sutro Collection, re-edited by Donald C. Cutter; University of Oklahoma, 278 pages, $7.50. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

Adolph Sutro contributed to the history of Spanish California by commissioning the discovery and translation of 13 documents written by Spanish explorers in the 16th and 18th centuries. They were published, with English translations by George Butler Griffin, in 1891 by the Historical Society of Southern California.

The documents were burned in the San Francisco fire of 1906. The volume has long been out of print.

University of Oklahoma Press has now preserved them in a new edition, re-edited by Donald C. Cutter, professor of history at University of New Mexico.

The accounts are fascinating in their reflection of the combination of devout religion and superstition of the period; two of them have been written by Father Junipero Serra and others by Fathers Tomas de la Pena and Juan Crespi, all familiar names to students of California history. Their greater importance lies, however, in the accounts of the voyages of Sebastian Vizcaino in 1597 and 1602. These expeditions, here described by Vizcaino himself, made the discoveries that were allowed to lie without follow-up for over 150 years yet resulted in the Spanish dominance of what is now California.

The Inventor

THE UNREASONABLE AMERICAN by Houston Branch and Wendell Smith; Acropolis Books, 216 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Jeff Greer.

This is the story of Francis W. Davis, who invented a workable power steering unit in 1926, then spent more than two decades battling with the Detroit giants to get them to adopt his device while they labored to wrap him up in legal tape or "invent around" him. Davis kept the whole thing in perspective by comparing his corporate battles to a gigantic poker game. He maintained his status as the "unreasonable man" on whom all progress depends, according to George Bernard Shaw.

Be forewarned that this book seems to be a new twist on the old "vanity press" in which authors paid for publication; this book's sponsor is the Academy of Applied Sciences, launching a series of "individual case studies in depth of the creative process in action."

Despite overtones of the old adulative biographies of the self-made heroes of yesteryear, this is interesting reading, particularly for youth.

A Firm Course

THE POWER OF DECISION by Raymond Charles Barker; Dodd, Mead, 181 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

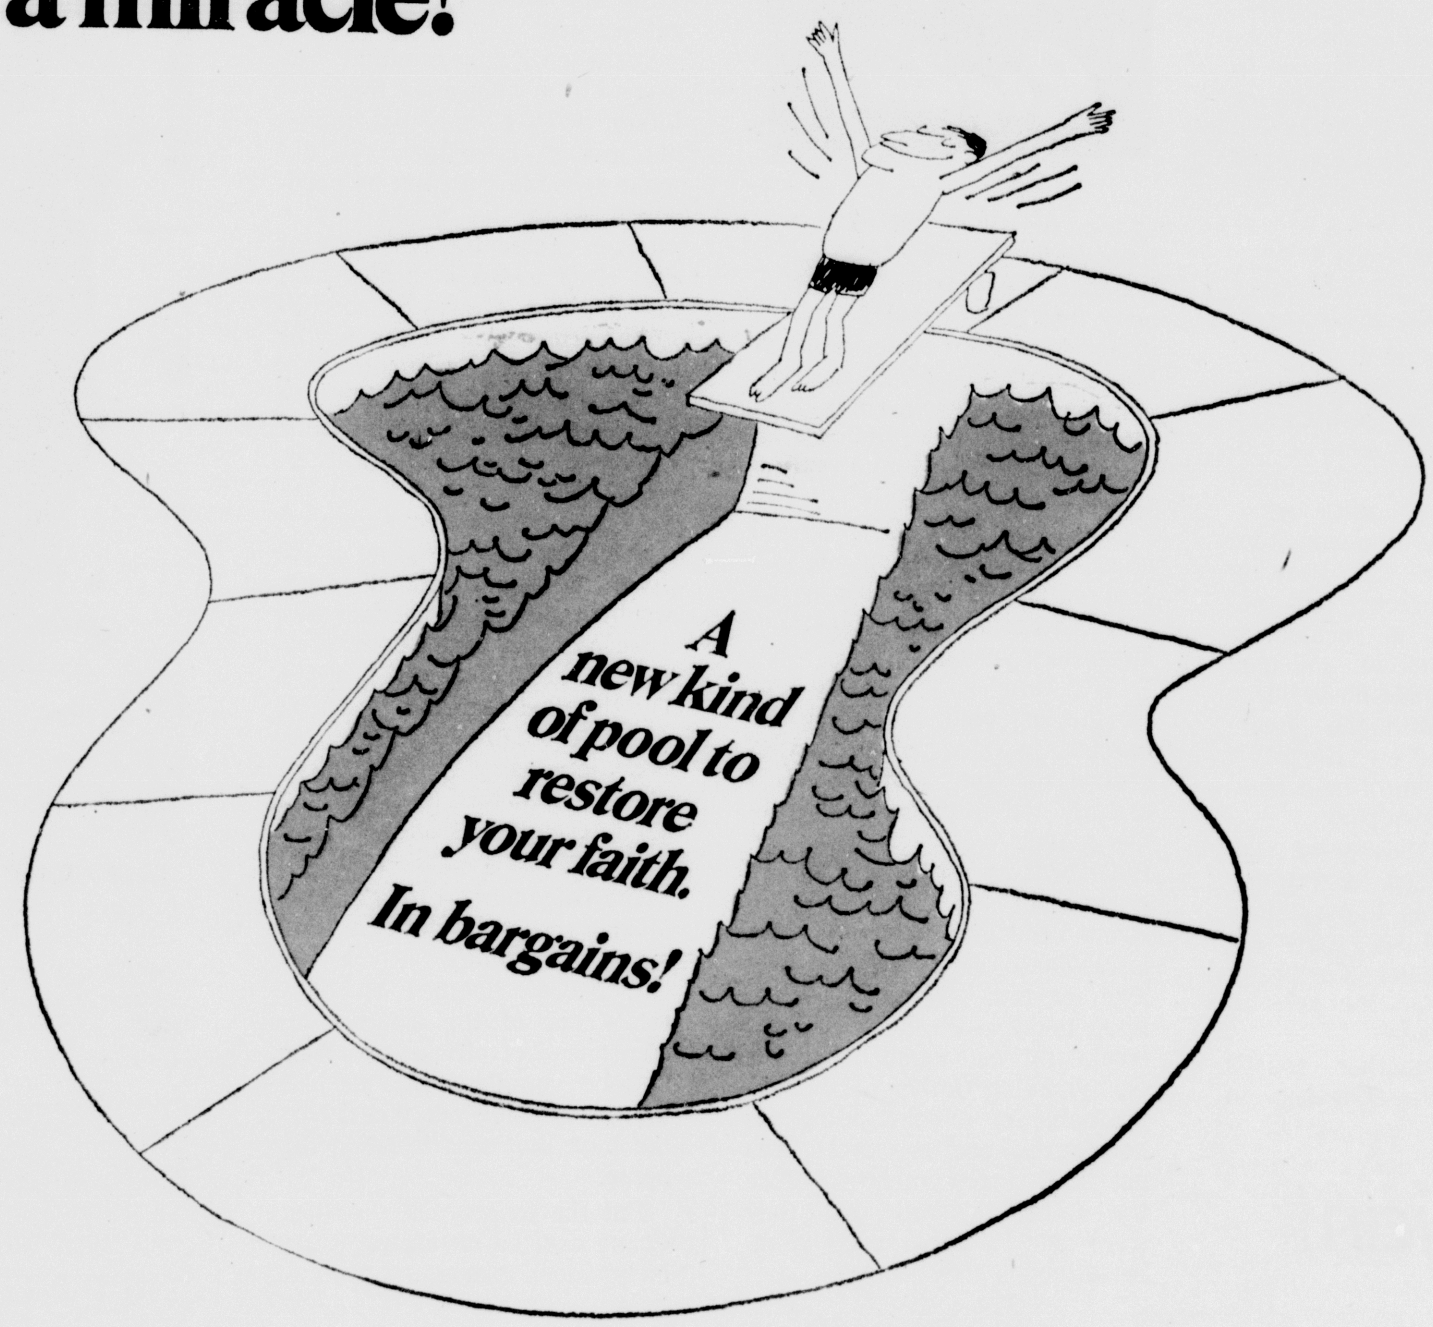
Indecision, writes Raymond Charles Barker, a veteran author in the self-improvement field, is a major contributor to man's failures and distress.

Furthermore, he claims, difficulty in reaching a decision contributes to the possibility of adopting ultimately an incorrect decision.

In this book, he analyzes the decision-making processes, including the role of the subconscious mind.

His conclusion is that it is the decisive person who lives creatively, happily and successfully. The idea is to gain command of your mind and your emotions — to use them affirmatively, even aggressively. You do this, he counsels, by making up your mind firmly and promptly upon a course of action, and then proceeding without besitation, faltering or doubt.

Anthony announces a miracle!



We gave it Anthony's nickname, Tony. It's a new concept in pool construction that actually comes with its own built-in cantilevered deck.

Even the price is constructed differently. Each Tony will have a different price tag to give you the greatest advantage. If your soil conditions and accessibility are good (and chances are they are), you get an extra low, low price. Why should you pay for someone elses construction problems?

The Tony is the world's first mass-produced pool. An exceptionally low unit price is predicated on the sale of more than 500 pools. Who else but Anthony—the world's largest pool builder—could mass produce and wholesale a quality pool?

You save on a Tony because a new concept in tile design eliminates the need for a costly installation of coping, substituting instead, a bonus of 350 square feet of beautiful cantilevered decking.

The Tony is truly the definitive value in pools today. You'll save much money—but perhaps even more important—you'll save headaches and aggravation for years to come. Anthony—the only pool company on the American and Pacific Coast Stock Exchanges—gives you written guarantees that also hold water.

If you want a big, elaborate, reliable, glamorous swimming pool with a lot of extras and you haven't got much money... what you want is a miracle. What you want is a Tony swimming pool. Fill in the coupon. Or phone.

NEW BOOKS FOR THE JUNIORS—

-Children's literature was enriched in 1903 by the appearance of a bunch of imps called "goops" by their creator, Gelett Burgess.

Dover Publications has now reprinted unchanged Burgess' "Goops and How to Be Them" and "More Goops and How Not to be Them," both complete with all the lively illustrations and both prices at $1.25 in quality paperback format.

The goops endeared themselves to small readers with their antics, pranks and misventures, yet at the same time made some very sound points on behalf of the cause of good behavior in the process. Much of their charm lies in the ease with which youngsters can identify with the goops and their propensity for t r o u b l e, and there is no reason why today's child should not continue to feel those close ties. Burgess' catchy rhymes and fun-filled sketches still seem quite contemporary.

Jacqueline J a c k s o n brings back her adventure-prone Russell children and friend Kenny, who were so delightful in "The Paleface Redskins," for new action and antics in "The Ghost Boat" (Little, Brown, $4.50). There's an eerie touch to this one — is it really the spirit of a drowned fisherman who rows that boat along the moonpath on the lake? Or is there a more earthly explanation? Mrs. Jackson is particularly adept at depicting relationships among children. And in this one she shows a nice touch for maintaining a shivery Halloween-like atmosphere.

"Black Pride" (McGraw-Hill, $4.95) is the title of a book by Janet Harris and Julius Hobson and it might also be a more important phrase than the oft-heard "black power" to a race that has clung to its sense of dignity despite shameful treatment. Two long-time workers in the civil rights field have joined to present the story of the struggle of black people for their rightful place in American life. Special recognition is accorded such men as Prosser Gabriel, Nat Turner, Frederick Douglass, W.E.B. DeBois, Marcus Garvey, Malcolm X and Martin Luther King for their differing contributions to that struggle. It is a story in which the black race can, indeed, take pride, and inspiration. And an answer to those who ask why the Negro doesn't do something for himself. He has — a great deal.

If You Pine For The Pines

Favorites Of The Forests Thrive Here

The pine is a stately and fragrant tree most often associated with the wide open expanses of our mountain and coastal forests.

But there are also pines that are perfectly at home in a Marin urban or suburban backyard or frontyard.

And there is an increasing number of Marinites who derive from pine trees the special satisfaction that other hobbyists gain from growing roses or from fuchsias.

MARIN NURSERIES are well stocked with pines that meet our special climatic conditions.

Certainly the most widely grown in our gardens is a California native, the Monterey Pine.

It is a dignified specimen with radial branches that bear long needles. And where space permits, a grouping of Monterey pines makes a most appealing landscape sight.

For instance, it has long been a favorite subject for the fine art of bonsai. The long-needled tree can also be trained or pruned to attain other interesting effects.

As a landscape specimen it is a picturesque focal point. But you would be wise to start with a fairly large-size plant because of its growth rate and habits.

Other pines for urban and suburban gardens include the Canary Island Pine, which grows in a conical form with blue-green foliage; the Italian Stone Pine, a bush specimen in its youth that matures into an open umbrella head of rich green, and the Austrian and Scotch Pines with a shrubbiness that can be a definite landscaping asset.

THE TORREY PINE is one that does not develop well in our climate, and its sparse foliage can be disappointing.

Right now one of the major pleasures of many Marinites is a drive to the forests of pine and other conifer trees for a soul-refreshing experience of sight, scent and sound.

But between such trips, there is no good reason why they should not be enjoying pines in smaller number and size right on their own home grounds.

Border Possibility

If your are searching for a fine-leaved foliage plant to edge a border, why not consider Irish Lace? This is a variety of marigold grown for its leaves.

CHECKLIST FOR MARIN GARDENERS

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- Cut back hydrangeas by snipping off the spent heads after they have finished blooming, but delay more serious pruning until next January or February. Do feed the shrubs now with an acid-type fertilizer.
- Feed your lawn lightly if it has been a month since you last fertilized it. Continue to water regularly and deeply.
- Plant citrus, avocado and other evergreen fruit trees now while the selection of varieties is good.
- Continue to put out bait for snails. Persistence is the only real protection against these pests.
- You can transfer hibiscus in full bloom from nursery containers into the garden. But also try them in redwood containers to add color to your outdoor living area.
- Plan — but not plant — for the winter annuals and fall bulbs you will be putting into the ground in cooler weather. Where should they go? How many? And what varieties?
- Consider the transformation a bit of water — a fountain, a pond, a waterfall — can make in your garden. In summer, it can make a yard seem degrees cooler.
- Now is a good time to spike the ground in your yard. Summer use and sunshine has almost certainly caused it to bake and compact.
- Looking for some summer reading? Why not a gardening book to help you with your landscaping?

Play It Safe With Power Tools

Handyman's Page

Power tools have enabled millions of home owners to tackle projects they wouldn't have even considered years ago.

Unfortunately, the phenomenal rise of power tool users since World War II has brought with it a marked increase in the number and severity of home workshop accidents. Since this is a fact deplored by all, the manufacturers are continually adding safety features to their products.

In the final analysis, though, only the user can take the steps necessary to prevent accidents.

Statistics reveal that many accidents occur because small hazards are overlooked. A do-it-yourselfer using a power tool slips on a spot of oil in his workshop or a wet leaf on his patio. Or he loses control of a tool because there isn't enough light to reveal that the blade is about to run into a piece of metal.

Nearly every power tool comes with an instruction pamphlet or manual telling not only how to use it properly, but how to use it safely. But the instructions get a quick glance or none at all.

EVEN WORSE, the user deliberately disregards the guard or other gadget designed to reduce the possibility of an accident, simply because he doesn't want to be bothered with it, just as most automobile drivers and passengers neglect to fasten their safety belts.

A good accident-preventing habit is to turn off a power tool when engaging in conversation. Many a nasty injury is suffered when someone using a power tool turns around to answer a question, usually from a member of the household.

If you're using an electric machine and someone walks into your workshop, shut it off and do your talking before resuming work.

WHEN A machine is not in use, disconnect it from the electrical outlet. And when you have to make an adjustment or change of accessories — such as putting in a new blade — unplug the cord. You can never be sure you or someone else won't accidentally turn on the tool while you're working on it.

As for the cord itself, the same rules apply to the handling of it as those on all electric lamps and appliances. Take it from the outlet by pulling the plug and not the cord itself.

There are a few double-insulated power tools on the market. Aside from those, be sure the machine is grounded.

IF IT COMES with a two-pronged plug, ground it according to the manufacturer's instructions. If it comes with a three-pronged plug, use a three-hole receptacle.

If an adapter is used to accommodate a two-hole receptacle, the adapter wire should be attached to a known ground, usually the center screw of the receptacle plate.

A PORTFOLIO OF TIPS ON FLOOR CARE

Armstrong Cork Co., Lancaster, Pa., 17604, has published an updated portfolio entitled "What Every Homemaker Should Know About Floor Care."

The envelope contains articles dealing with:

Maintenance of vinyl flooring.

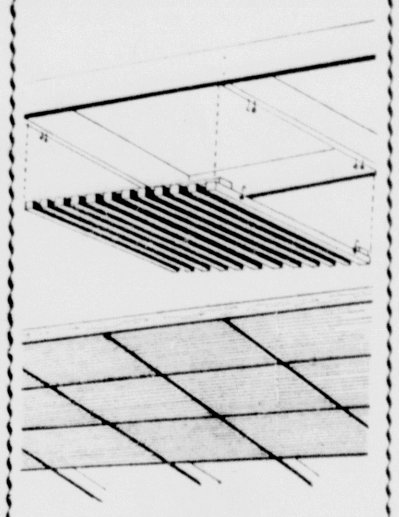
Facts about wood floor care.

Tips on selecting a wax for resilient floors.

Hints for removing spots and stains from floors.

Advice on removal of built-up layers of wax from resilient flooring.

Hanging Shade



FOR SUMMER shade without eliminating winter sun, try a patio roof with removable sun shades. Built of spaced cedar one-by-ones nailed to a one-by-two at either end, the shade pads hook into eyes screwed in the bottom edge of the roof joists and hang slightly below the roof frame. The plan works for both eggcrate and trellis roof designs.

How Well Lighted Is Kitchen In Your Home?

It is sad to say, but the average warehouse is better lighted than the average kitchen.

What is important to remember is that different kinds of work or activity require different levels of light. You need general lighting for the kitchen so that you can see into drawers and cupboards. This is achieved by a ceiling fixture utilizing either fluorescent or incandescent bulbs.

The minimum recommendation is two four-foot 40-watt fluorescne bulbs behind a translucent diffuser. Or you may use a minimum of 150 watts of incandescent, also shielded.

YOU NEED light on your counters. This is higher intensity light so that you can read recipes easily, measure quantities and do delicate tasks like balling cantaloupes, preparing hors d'oeuvres or decorating a cake.

Higher intensity lighting is also desirable over the range. It permits you to see into the pots. An effective light within a ventilating hood is generally adequate here.

And you need higher intensity light over the sink. Most authorities recommend a tube or bulb directly over the sink, but lighting on either side of the sink directly over the adjoining countertops also has its advocates.

SURPRISINGLY, colors popular in other areas of the house, even the darker ones, may be used in the kitchen without impairing the quality of illumination.

The light colors have been used for years, with gloss surface, because of their reflectance qualities. But it is now known that the use of warm and cool colors in shades or tints makes little difference in the general lighting effect so long as minimum reflectance is obtained from the ceiling and walls.

This sounds technical, but it is not so bad as it seems — reflectance is simply a measure of how much light is reflected from a surface.

MINIMUM reflectance from the ceiling should be 60 per cent and from the walls 35 per cent.

If you use very dark colors on the walls, you will fall below the minimum, but there is no reason why dark colors cannot be used in moderation as accent points or panels.

Darker colors for kitchen cupboards are now very popular. But you can use them safely because their position and arrangement in the kitchen are compensated for by light appliances and fixtures. The total reflectance is proper for general lighting.

HERE'S A KITCHEN design that is different. By setting the sink at an angle, additional counter space is available for food preparation. And you can set up an "assembly line" to polish off the evening dishes. Marlite mural panel has been used behind the sink to take the place of a window on the inside wall. The plastic-finished mural is resistant to heat and moisture and can be damp-wiped clean. It can be installed over any solid backing with wallboard adhesive.

Good Guys' Gal Lives Quiet Life

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Joyce Van Patten, who plays Claudia Gramus in 'The Good Guys," lives a much less hectic life away from the madcap series.

Joyce has the following: Blonde hair, blue eyes, a husband named Hal Lynch, two children and two cats.

Her offspring are Casey, 16, and Talia, 10.

THE CATS just moved in on the family without invitation and for no apparent reason were named Pearl and Rastus.

Joyce and her family live in one of those big old Spanish houses built in the smogless days of Southern California when residents chose to think of themselves as living in the splendor of the conquistadors.

However it takes more than stucco walls and red tile roofs to live the life of a Spanish grandee.

THEREFORE Joyce is a typical working actress-mother.

A cleaning woman comes once a week to tidy up the four bedrooms, four baths, spacious oak-paneled dining room, office and living room.

Husband Hal, a singer and actor, is also a master carpenter. He has filled their home with beautifully crafted pieces of furniture, including a desk, dressers, and beds. At one time he made superb guitars.

JOYCE WORKS from 6:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. Her schedule makes it difficult for her to keep regular hours in the kitchen.

'When I'm not working I do all the cooking for the family," she said. "But when the series is in full swing for good old CBS, the family runs out for pizza or fried chicken."

Because her mother is of Italian descent, Joyce has mastered Italian cookery which suits all members of the family.

HAL AND JOYCE entertain as much as possible, usually limiting their dinner parties to three other couples from their social circle of some 20 or so friends, most of them performers.

On off-days and weekends Joyce plays tennis on public courts or at the home of a friend.

She also likes the garden in the sunshine, pruning plants, trimming hedges or sunbathing.

HER IDEA of boredom is shopping. Unlike most women, Joyce would rather work than prowl the boutiques. She wears casual California clothes and favors pants and pert hats.

Joyce moved to Hollywood from New York in 1961 when Broadway shows began diminishing in number. Now she is a confirmed Californian and determined to do something about the smog.

"I'm going to become an activist," she says. "But it's not just California, the whole world is polluting the air and the water. I don't know how effective I'll be. But if all I can do is carry a placard, that's for me."

Joyce agrees that her fellow regulars on the show, Herb Edelman and Bob Denver, are "Good Guys," but Hal Lynch is best of all.

By JOHN SUNIER

"THE BAROQUE AND CLASSICAL TRUMPET" — Works by Scheidt, Bach, Handel, Telemann, Purcell, Manfredini, Vivaldi, Torelli, Albinoni, Hertee, Fasch, Stoelzel and Biber — Various soloists/German orchestras and Eastman Brass Ensemble — Turnabout TV 34295-99 (5 records):

This is a block-buster of a bargain box!

Collecting a tremendous variety of recordings featuring one or more trumpets with orchestra, taken from a variety of earlier issues and some unissued sources, Vox has assembled a rich treasure-store of stirring music. They are arranged in somewhat of a chronological order and demonstrate the development of composing for the classical trumpet over a couple centuries.

The trumpet playing is all of the very highest level of performance, and the sound and surfaces excellent in all respects. While there are sure to be duplicates with one or two selections in most classical collections — such as "The Second Brandenburg Concerto" or Haydn's "E Flat Trumpet Concerto" — the vast majority of the collection is unusual material that will be new to the ear. The modulations in Manfredini's concerto are weird and wonderful, and Stoelzel's "Concerto for Six Trumpets and Orchestra" is a sensational thing. The notes are brief and enlightening reading.

The standard on LP of his tongue-in-cheek piano music to date has been Angel's three-record release with Aldo Ciccolini.

Glazer is a superb pianist. Vox's offering includes several short pieces not present in the series on Angel, and the engineering is notable for its silent background (due to the Dolby noise reduction system being employed).

This adds up to a real toss-up as to which series to purchase.

By the way, some pieces in the Angel series are also not in the Vox, and the Vox is lower-priced. I'm keeping both.

"BUS STOP" is the title of this impressionistic painting by Virginia Kraemer that is included among her oils that are on exhibition at the Torrance Galleries, San Anselmo, through August. Mrs. Kraemer began her art career while a feature writer on the California Girl Magazine staff in Los Angeles by doing her own illustrations for her stories. She has since studied with such well-known artists as Sergei Bengart, Lenard Kester, Robert Ueeker and James Cooper Wright. Prior to moving to Mill Valley last year, she had won 10 awards for her work in Southern California. Torrance Galleries is also showing oils by Jean Victor through August.
